Commissioners Not Supportive Of Countywide Zoning

The Garrett County commissioners announced their stance on countywide zoning this week, endorsing the recommendation of the county's planning commission to not pursue the issue at this time.

In a letter dated Dec. 23, 1999, John Nelson, director of the county office of planning and zoning, explained that the commission's decision was based on the result of a series of public meetings at which "an overwhelming majority of the citizens expressed opposition to countywide zoning." The members also based their decision on the fact that the recently adopted subdivision ordinance "appears to adequately manage growth."

The county commissioners unanimously voted to drop the issue at this time. However, Wendell Beitzel, chairman of the board, did ask Nelson to direct the planning commission to investigate another topic involving countywide ordinances.

"I would like the commission to look into the issue of signage in the county," Beitzel said, stating that the use of large signs in the county has the potential of being a distraction to the area's natural beauty, and that they can take away from the rural nature of the mountaintop. "I would like the planning commission to research the idea of a uniform sign program for the entire county," he said.

Commissioner Ernie Gregg said he agreed that signage could become a problem, but he stressed that he did not want to be overly restrictive to businesses. In researching the issue, Gregg asked Nelson to be understanding of that.

"We don't want to hurt any businesses, but we would like to formulate something rational," Gregg said.

Commissioner Fred Holliday said he didn't know how he felt about the issue, but that he was agreeable to the planning commission's study of it.

Nelson noted that the Deep Creek Lake area is already zoned for signage, and that the State Highway Administration has some uniform restrictions for signage along state roadways. However, if the county formulates a specific plan with regulations, these can override the state's, Nelson said.

GRIC Meeting Moved To New Date, Location

The annual meeting of GRIC (Garrett Rural Information Cooperative) has been rescheduled for Friday, Jan. 14, from 6 to 8 p.m. The meeting will take place at the Grantsville Fire Hall, and is open to all current GRIC members.

"The Grantsville Fire Hall was chosen to try and accommodate GRIC members in Garrett and Allegany counties, and parts of Pennsylvania and West Virginia," a GRIC spokesperson said.

Topics on the agenda include the introduction of new board members, reports from officers and committees, old and new business, and a speech by Howard Bell, president of the GRIC Board.

Further information may be found at the GRIC web site at www2.gcnet.net, or by calling cooperative at 301-387-3048.

TEMPORARY PAL — Garrett Yoder, 4, recently made a friend (literally), complete with a carrot nose and at least one coal eye. The warm spell early this week forced Garrett's pal back to the waters of Deep Creek Lake, though, close to the boy's home in McHenry. With Wednesday's snowfall, the snow buddy could very well be brought back for another visit. Garrett is the son of Gary Yoder and Jenny Kotulak. Photo by Glenn Tolbert.

MLP Juveniles Charged After Sunday Spree

Three Mtn. Lake Park juveniles were arrested Tuesday by Garrett Bureau of Investigation detectives investigating several motor vehicle thefts and destruction of property incidents that took place two days earlier. The two 14-year-olds and one 13-year-old were also linked to a pair of separate motor vehicle thefts, one of which took place in December and one that occurred in November, and have been charged in those incidents as well.

Sunday's incident apparently began when a dump truck and trailer were stolen from the Arnold Brothers Construction lot in Loch Lynn. The 14-year-old suspected of driving the vehicle reportedly traveled through Mtn. Lake Park and on into Oakland. During this initial portion of the episode the operator evidently destroyed approximately 60 feet of chain link fence at Broadford Elementary School and ran over a mailbox in the same area, causing extensive damage to the truck.

After abandoning the disabled vehicle along Fourth Street near the Garrett County Roads Department garage, the suspects reportedly entered the county roads lot and allegedly stole a county truck. The keys to the Chevrolet crewcab pickup were apparently in the vehicle. They then apparently fled the scene by crashing through a padlocked gate, which caused extensive damage to the gate and another county vehicle parked nearby.

Once out of the county lot, the stolen truck was observed by a witness driving along I Street in Mtn. Lake Park as it struck a parked vehicle in the 600 block. The truck was seen leaving the scene of the accident, continuing northbound along I Street until it left the area. It was later located in Loch Lynn on the Arnold Brothers lot, where the events evidently commenced, being abandoned there after apparently running into a second company vehicle there.

In connection with Sunday's incident, each of the juveniles face charges of two counts of motor vehicle theft, four counts of de-

Traffic Stops Lead To Two Drug Arrests

Drivers stopped for speeding on Interstate 68 on December 30 and January 3 were charged with drug violations by Maryland State Police.

According to the report filed at the McHenry barrack by Tfc. B. Broadwater, the suspect, James L. Johnson, 43, Morgantown, W.Va., was westbound on I-68 on Monday at 10:29 a.m. near the Casselman bridge when he was stopped for allegedly traveling in excess of 90 mph in a 65 mph zone.

A license check by Tfc. Broadwater showed that Johnson's license was suspended in Oregon, the report said. A search of the vehicle allegedly revealed drugs and drug paraphernalia.

Tfc. Broadwater charged the suspect with possession of cocaine and possession of paraphernalia.

On Thursday, Dec. 30, at 4:30 p.m., Tfc. J. LeMay stopped an Oldsmobile Cutlas on I-68 near Amish Road, which was reportedly traveling at 88 mph in a posted 65 mph zone.

The driver, Wilfred L. Matiis, 26, Phoenixville, Pa.,

Officials Optimistic About High-Speed Fiber Optic Developments

The topic of high-speed fiber optics in western Maryland was on the agenda at yesterday's Western Maryland Economic Development Strategies Task Force meeting, held at Frostburg State University. The actual fiber optic lines continue to be placed across Maryland (along I-68 and 70 in the western part of the state), and state and local officials are in fervent discussion concerning equitable access to the state-of-the-art technology.

"I feel very positive about what transpired at yesterday's meeting," said Don Storck, director of Information Systems at Garrett Community College. "The state, through its telecommunications office and Preston Dillard of that office, has been extremely supportive of Garrett County."

Dillard was present for the meeting and gave a presentation on the status of the line and the accessibility for western Maryland. While concerns have been expressed over the past few months that Garrett County might not be properly connected to the high-speed lines, Dillard and Storck have confirmed that GCC is actually going to have a connection early on for a pilot evaluation of the new system.

The Maryland General Assembly in 1998 passed legislation creating the "High Speed Connectivity Task Force," set with the task of assessing need, identifying goals, developing recommendations, and guiding the implementation of high-speed computer technology in the state. The goal of this task force is reportedly to achieve economic parity statewide, including a fair distribution of fiber optic line access.

The line being installed is owned by Level 3 Communications, a private company. In order to be given access to the highway property, this company is giving a number of connections to the state as payment. The state will in turn decide where to put certain "hubs" or "nodes" in the line. According to reports, Cumberland could be the site of a major hub. Storck said this would provide a sufficient link for Garrett County.

"The biggest challenge as I see it will be the distribution within the county," Storck said. "Every county in the state is going to have to deal with this issue, deciding exactly how private and commercial links will be established. That's going to be the larger issue in the long run."

Speaker of the House Casper Taylor, founder of the strategies task force, expressed concern yesterday that the entire project is going to be costly and that funding will have to be secured before the western counties (some of the poorest in the state) can adequately access the line. Delegate George Edwards said in an interview this morning that funding is definitely an issue, but he does not project the county losing out on the fiber optic connections because of a lack of money.

"It's going to take some money, yes, and probably some county input. But I don't believe we're going to be left out because of that. We're on top of this thing, and are very well aware how imperative it is that we are adequately connected," Edwards said. The delegate also had praise for Dillard

GCC Board Sets Breakfast With County Chamber

A breakfast for members of the board of directors of the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce has been scheduled for Friday, Feb. 11, from 8:30 to 10 a.m. at Garrett Community College. Invitations to the event will be sent in the near future, according to Joan Crawford of the college.

The breakfast is the third in a series being planned as a community outreach effort to effect better communications between GCC and its constituencies. "We need to know how we can better serve our community, and to inform people about our new programs and services." Crawford said. "These breakfasts provide an opportunity for two-way communication. We are looking forward to meeting with leaders of our business community."

During the fall, GCC board breakfasts were held for the county commissioners, the state delegation, and for area high school guidance counselors and principals.

WAAAH-2K? - The two babies serving as centerpieces of the photos here were born only two days apart at Garrett County Memorial Hospital, yet the calendar places them in interestingly separate time periods — they constitute the very last person in the county to have a 19-- birthdate, and the very first to have a 20-- arrival. Isaac Edward McRobie, shown above with his mother June McRobie, was the first baby of the new year to arrive at GCMH. Young Isaac, whose name means "laughter" in Hebrew, was born to June and William McRobie (not pictured) at 1:35 a.m. Sunday, Jan. 2, and went home to the family's Oakland residence the following morning. Aaron Ray Teets, pictured below, was born on Dec. 31, 1999, at 5:47 p.m., to Jody and Danny Teets of Oakland. The latest addition to the growing Teets family, Aaron (whose name means "light bringer"), is shown with his mom and dad, along with big sis Shalene, age 5, and 4-year-old brother Cody.

Man Airlifted To Hospital After Mishap

For the second time in as many weeks an accident along Maryland Highway on Backbone Mountain has necessitated a Medevac helicopter flight for an injured person, according to the Garrett County Sheriff's Office. The driver of one of the vehicles in the Tuesday evening mishap may face charges after he apparently tried to flee the scene on foot before being discovered unconscious nearby.

A car operated by Jonathan Tichinell, 19, Piedmont, W.Va., was reportedly attempting to pass a tractor-trailer on the Backbone descent toward Bloomington when the car struck the truck's left rear end at 7:30 p.m. Tichinell lost control of the car as it went into a spin and wrecked. The dri-

Commissioners Endorse Bypass Again After SHS Public Meeting

The Board of Garrett County Commissioners have reiterated their position in support of the construction of a proposed Oakland bypass, adding a stated preference for the so-called "Hybrid" option to their general support of Alternate 3, Options A and A-1, or any combination of those three options. The commissioners' unanimous endorsement follows a Tuesday night public meeting at Southern High School, where the citizens who spoke for the record appeared evenly divided between support for and opposition to a bypass of any sort.

In a letter forwarded yesterday to John D. Pocari, secretary of the Maryland Department of Transportation, the commissioners said that they reached their decision after receiving a number of comments directly at their office and at the Tuesday night meeting. "We believe that the majority of the citizens in our community support the need for this project, and encourage you to select a alternate which would fulfill this need," the letter stated.

The commissioners went on to add that they strongly favor the "sweeping" intersection design at the northern terminus for the realignment of Rt. 219, and commented on citizen input over the design of the planned Rt. 219 and Rt. 135 intersection at the realignment's southern terminus. "We support the location of the [southern] terminus; however, we would add that the design of the intersection should consider safety first and foremost while facilitating optimum traffic flow."

The project endorsement was given by the commissioners the day following the SHS meeting, which was attended by approximately 150 citizens. An estimated 24 speakers appeared to be divided evenly between bypass supporters and opponents, although the loudest applause seemed to be reserved for bypass supporters, the vast majority of whom were Oakland business owners and/or longtime residents, including the town's mayor and two town councilmen.

Themes raised most often by bypass supporters appeared to cover three major areas: the rejection of bypass proposals in the past; the existing traffic load downtown Oakland currently bears; and projections of future regional traffic increases if the proposed Wal-Mart store is built in Oakland and Corridor H is constructed in nearby West Virginia.

Several elected officials, including Del. George Edwards and Sen. John Hafer, went on record once again as saying the bypass project was in no way connected with any proposals for a new north/south interstate highway.

Bypass project detractors, most of whom appeared to be affiliated with the local citizen group G.C./CARE, which has a history of opposition to both a new interstate highway and the Oakland proposal, attempted to call each of those

THE WORK GOES ON - Even with the falling snow and frigid temperatures this week, the dedicated workers of the Beitzel Corporation kept their hammers clanging. The project under way is a new 20,000 sq. ft. office building in the Northern Industrial Park, Grantsville. The facility, which will house the operations of Merkle Response Services Inc., will include warehouse space and offices. Currently working in temporary quarters in Grantsville, the 70-plus Merkle employees will tentatively move into their new digs in April 2000. "The roof is complete and they are now working on getting the office space inclosed so they can get heat in there and continue to work through the winter," said facility manager James Wood. Though the new building is not yet complete, Wood said he is taking applications and interviewing people almost daily.

Sheriff's Office Investigating Recent Crimes

The Garrett County Sheriff's Office and the Garrett Bureau of Investigation are following leads in several property crimes that have taken place over the past two weeks. Persons with information on any of these incidents are encouraged to call the sheriff's office at 301-334-1911, or the Crimesolvers line at 301-334-1975.

A 1993 Honda 4x4 four wheeler valued at $2,500 was taken from an Owens Street residence in Bloomington sometime shortly after December 21. The red ATV has a black seat, an aluminum skid plate, and a winch on the front.

A house burglary in Mtn. Lake Park was reported to have taken place during the night of December 26. After the rear door of the Spruce Street residence was forcibly entered a number of Christmas gifts, guns, and compound bows, as well a coin collection, were taken in the incident. No loss estimate was available.

A number of tools and a muzzleloader were taken from a garage in the 1300 block of Spring Street, Kitzmiller, during the night of December 22. The muzzleloader, of an unknown make, is a 50 cal. firearm with a wood stock and is valued at $200. The tools, mostly of the Snap-On brand, were in a three-foot-tall gray wheeled toolbox, and were estimated to be worth over $2,000 in aggregate.

An attempted theft from a payphone in the parking lot of Josie's Restaurant the night of December 29 resulted in $500 damage to the piece of Bell Atlantic equipment. The perpetrator(s) apparently used a drill to try and open the coin box, but failed in the attempt.

Four solid waste trash containers, valued at $150 each, were taken from a pair of Deep Creek Lake area neighborhoods during Christmas week. Three of the plastic green wheeled containers were taken from the Sandy Shores area, and the fourth was taken from the area of Marsh Hill.

Charges Filed After Christmas Eve Altercation

A Christmas Eve domestic altercation in Mtn. Lake Park ended in the arrest of a woman who told deputies that she had beaten her husband, according to the Garrett County Sheriff's Office.

Deputies who had responded to the Allegany Drive residence of Donna Lee DeWitt, 33, and her husband Milton Charles DeWitt, 47, were reportedly told by the woman that she had beaten her husband. The man, who bore cuts to his face, sustained that his wife had punched him.

Donna DeWitt was arrested and charged with second degree assault. She was later released after posting $2,000 in bail money as determined by a district court commissioner. The police report stated that both parties were extremely intoxicated at the time of the incident.

In other sheriff's news, another domestic incident in Mtn. Lake Park resulted in the arrest of a man for allegedly assaulting his girlfriend at their residence.

Lawrence Wayne Ford, 40, was arrested after he reportedly shoved the woman at their G Street home shortly after midnight Saturday. He was charged with second degree assault, and subsequently released on his own recognizance. The report indicated that alcohol may have played a factor in Ford's behavior.

A traffic stop along Garrett Highway just north of Oakland on December 24 resulted in the arrests of the driver, Michael Allen Evans, 23, Oakland, and his passenger, Joseph Allen DeWitt, 24, Oakland. The pair were in a vehicle stopped at 2:36 p.m. for erratic movements, and a smoking pipe with the residue of suspected marijuana and other suspected marijuana residue was found in the vehicle.

Evans was charged with driving while intoxicated (DWI) and possession of drug paraphernalia and was released after posting a $500 bond. DeWitt was released on his own recognizance after being charged with possession of drug paraphernalia.

Swanton residents James Robert Collins, 30, and Jason Douglas Warnick, 24, were each arrested on a charge of giving a false statement that initiated a police investigation. Collins and Roberts had given statements to police in July that led to the arrest of a Swanton woman on a variety of charges.

The woman pleaded not guilty in a recent District Court hearing, claiming that the events leading to the charges had never occurred. Collins and Warnick each took the stand and avoided testifying by exercising their Fifth Amendment rights, reportedly to avoid self-incrimination. Following their December 22 arrests each man was released on his own recognizance.

The Department of Juvenile Justice will be handling the case of a 17-year-old juvenile male arrested on a drug charge recently. The youth was stopped shortly after midnight on December 23 when a deputy observed him speeding and driving his Nissan truck erratically along Garrett Highway south of McHenry.

Following a traffic stop at the Sand Flat Road intersection, a plastic bag containing suspected marijuana was found in his pocket, and the youth was placed under arrest before being released to the custody of his parents.

Va. Man Handed CDS Conviction In District Court

A New Canton, Va., man pleaded guilty to a charge of marijuana possession that had stemmed from his October arrest in Grantsville. The hearing took place during last week's proceedings in Garrett County District Court.

John Wayne Stammer Sr., 43, was handed a six-month sentence with all but two days suspended, fined $355, placed on six months of unsupervised probation, and ordered to complete 60 hours of community service by Judge Ralph M. Burnett. Additional charges of possession of marijuana with the intent to distribute, possession of drug paraphernalia, and possession of psilocybin mushrooms were not prosecuted by the state's attorney's office.

Stammer had been arrested by members of the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force who were acting on a tip that he had drugs in his room at the Casselman Motel. A police officer conducted a scan of Stammer's parked vehicle at the motel using a K-9 dog, which alerted for possible drugs within the car. Officers waited for Stammer to leave his room and drive away in the car, and stopped him shortly afterwards. He was reportedly found to be in possession of a marijuana pipe containing burnt marijuana residue, a plastic shopping bag filled with marijuana, and a bag of suspected psilocybin mushrooms.

In other district court news, an Oakland man pleaded guilty to charges that had resulted from two separate arrests in October, and was handed consecutive sentences amounting to four days in jail.

Jeremiah Howard Shockey, 19, was initially arrested on October 6 by Garrett County sheriff's deputies after he and several others fled the scene of a reported assault in Oakland. The group was stopped in a vehicle along Garrett Highway north of Foster Road, where deputies detected the smell of burnt marijuana and located marijuana and marijuana seeds in the car.

One week later Shockey was arrested by an Oakland City police officer when he and another subject were apprehended at 3 a.m. as they fled from the old Tableland milk plant along Oak Street.

Two of the charges stemming from those arrests, one for marijuana possession and the other for trespassing, each resulted in 60 day sentences, to be served consecutively, with all but four days of the total period suspended. Additional charges of failure to obey a lawful order and attempting to elude police by fleeing on foot were not prosecuted.

DWI Hearings

Two DWI (driving while intoxicated) hearings took place in district court recently.

Two Pennsylvania men, Ronald Gabriel, 24, Uniontown, and Patrick Joseph Marcinko, 38, York, both pleaded guilty to DWI and were each handed a probation before judgment. Judge Burnett also handed each man a 30-day suspended sentence, a $355 fine, one year of supervised probation, and 40 hours of community service.

Correction Noted

Last week's Garrett County District Court reporting incorrectly stated the outcome of the case of Jason Ryan Sines, 20, Oakland. Sines was handed a 30-day sentence, but the full term was suspended by Judge Burnett. A probation before judgment (PBJ) was also imposed.

New Library In Grantsville To Be Topic Of Meeting

Residents of Grantsville will have the opportunity to discuss their interests in having new a library building in the community. A public meeting to address the possibility of getting funding for a new library facility will be held on Thursday, Jan. 20, at 7:30 p.m. in the Grantsville fire hall.

Mayor Gerry Beachy said he would like to see town residents and other concerned citizens become involved in some type of fund-raising. "I think if we can raise a substantial amount like $60,000 it would prove to the state officials that there is community support for this. Right now the officials don't believe the support is here. I think if we had a library in Grantsville that had computers and a larger collection of books that we would see that it would be used," he said.

Beachy said he would like to form a committee to work toward this goal. "Hopefully, at the meeting on the Jan. 20, we will be able to form that committee and find a coordinator," he stated.

Anyone interested in assisting with the project who cannot attend the meeting is asked to call Town Hall at 301-895-3144.

FIRST UNITED BANK DONATES TO OTT - Our Town Theatre was the recipient of a donation made by First United Bank's Oakland community office recently. "First United wanted to contribute to the ongoing expense of operating the theatre," a bank spokesperson said, adding that the funds were raised through a special offer on certificates of deposit. OTT board member Lynn McDaniel, left, is shown accepting the check from William Bittinger, customer service officer at First United's Oakland office.

Endorse Bypass

points into question. Opponents not affiliated with the group appeared to either be residents whose homes would be taken by bypass construction, or young persons expressing concern over what they viewed as future detriments, especially sprawl, resulting from a bypass.

"People are finding shortcuts to get around downtown traffic on their own already," Oakland Mayor Asa McCain told the gathering as he expressed his support for the new roadway.

"These shortcuts often mean drivers have to travel a longer distance and make more turns, and therefore they may speed along residential streets. We've also seen an increase in accidents along Route 219 in the northern end of town because of drivers swinging to the right to use the shoulder to get around other cars waiting to make left-hand turns.

"We had a meeting on this issue at the Courthouse eleven years ago," McCain continued, "and of the 52 people at that meeting, only four voted against the bypass when we put it to a vote. The Greater Oakland Business Association conducted an informal survey of its own recently, and of the 28 respondents only 12 opposed a bypass, while 16 favored one. I've seen five town councils and several boards of commissioners come and go, and each has voted in favor of a bypass when asked."

"I was in business in Oakland for six years," commented town councilman Harold Cannon. "You can't get around the downtown traffic at noon or during the evenings, and people use an alleyway as a shortcut. Also, we can't use Fourth Street to continue moving big trucks through town; it was built as a city street, and the underground public utilities will not be able to sustain the weight of large truck traffic much longer."

While expressing his neutrality on the issue, Oakland resident Bob Stephens raised concerns over the design specifics of any alignment. "When is a bypass a bypass?," he asked the gathering to consider. "If the purpose of a bypass is to route traffic around an area, then do that. Interstate 68 has approximately six exits in a 35-mile stretch, and the plans for a bypass at this point show four exits — the two terminuses at either end, and Memorial Drive and possibly Dennett Road in between — over a five-mile stretch of roadway." Any added access points, he said, could increase the potential for sprawl.

Sprawl potential was cited as a factor by several opponents, including Friendsville resident Crede Calhoun. "People who say they don't want over-development should insist that no development be allowed to take place at bypass crossings," he said. Using his hometown as what he termed as "an example of what Oakland can expect," he warned that in his opinion a bypass "would siphon traffic away from your downtown business community, and cause it to suffer greatly. People who want growth don't know what they are asking for, as growth outside a town will kill its center."

DeCorsey Bolden cited his own long history in opposition to a bypass project, and said he is still opposed to the concept. "Still, I know the bypass is coming, and my only recommendation is that a pedestrian tunnel be put in under High Street to allow children to walk to school."

Fred Crozier, State Highway Administration engineer, addressed that idea by saying that "we're not locked into options yet, and haven't even confirmed we're going ahead with construction. We were under the impression that all children were riding buses to school, but we can work with different ideas for High Street or other locations if input warrants it." He added that design speeds could be lowered to "make it more like a city street," an idea put forth by Oakland resident George Scheffel earlier in the evening.

"I'm for a bypass," Scheffel had commented, "even though all four options take my son's house. I would just like to see it have as many access points as possible, and a speed limit of around 30-35 miles per hour. We also need as many through routes into and out of the high school as possible, and as many sidewalks for pedestrians as we can get."

The public comment period on the proposed project closes tomorrow.

struction of property, and numerous traffic offenses. Damage figures tallied so far include estimates of $1,476 to the county truck, $1,443 to a parked vehicle, $973 to the gate at the county roads lot, and $85 to the vehicle struck along I Street.

GBI investigators have also determined that one or more of the juveniles may have attempted to break into Glass Unlimited before taking the dump truck from Arnold Brothers, causing just over $400 damage to the door of the business. That incident resulted in charges of attempted burglary and destruction of property.

In addition to charges stemming from Sunday's incident, one of the juveniles is also charged with a December 7 motor vehicle theft from the Loch Lynn Service Center, and two of them were charged in a November 29 motor vehicle theft from Glass Unlimited.

After their arrests, two of the juveniles were remanded into the custody of their parent or guardian, while the third was detained by the Department of Juvenile Justice. The DJJ will be processing each suspects' case.

In response to the incident, the Board of Garrett County Commissioners has stated that county employees are to be reminded that keys are not to be left within unattended county vehicles.

Realizing the Impact...

Anyone who has driven along U.S. Rt. 68 over the past several months has no doubt observed the ditch-digging by large equipment along that thoroughfare, and may have known that the work under way is the installation of high-speed fiber optics. What probably is not realized by most, however, is the ultimate, potentially enormous impact of that technology on Garrett County.

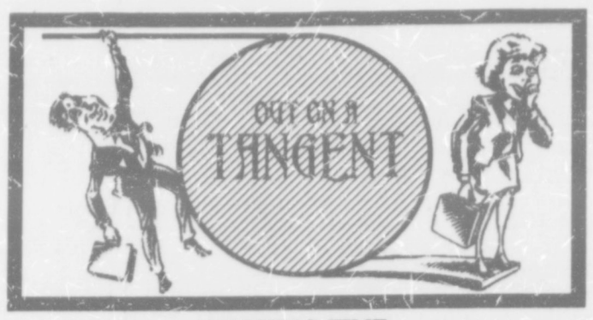
Such was among the topics of another meeting of the Western Maryland Economic Development Task Force that took place yesterday at Frostburg State University. It was announced that this fiber optics network could be in operation by early next year.

Those local residents whose lives do not yet directly involve the use of a computer may be sitting back and thinking that this technology will really have no effect on them one way or another. We beg to differ. The probabilities and possibilities in so many areas are nearly endless.

One of the primary keys to attracting new businesses to any area is the availability and capabilities of communications. The most rapidly growing arena in business and industry is not the large, sprawling factories, but the computer-based operations that do not require huge spaces, but are dependent upon state-of-the-art communications. This is the hottest job market for the immediate and distant future. Such businesses would be perfect for Garrett County. They are totally non-polluting and unobtrusive, which is vital to preserving our rural, recreational assets. We also have a proven, competent workforce available. So simply the acquisition of new business, which means more jobs and more tax revenue, will positively affect each and every resident.

But there are many more ways that this technology can affect us, on a personal, individual level, and whether or not one is computer literate. The education of future generations of our young people will be greatly enhanced, as the door to all of the world's knowledge is opened wide right in our own homes and in front of our eyes. In the area of health care, local physicians and other providers will be able to have life-saving information and diagnosis assistance literally at their finger tips and in a matter of seconds. Simply the communication among family members and friends, regardless of distance, will be incredible in terms of capabilities and, most likely, will be less expensive.

We greatly appreciate the efforts of all involved in pushing for this technology for our county, including Don Storck of Garrett Rural Information Cooperative (GRIC); county economic development director Jim Hinebaugh; various elected officials, such as George Edwards, John Hafer, our county commissioners, and, yes, Casper Taylor; and the many local members of the aforementioned task force, who donate their time, talents, and energy for the benefit of our county and Western Maryland.



MARKING TIME

by Mary Sincell McEwen

So it happened. It came and went without so much as a burp on the television screen or a blip in the lights. The dreaded, hyped, long-anticipated Y2K swooped down upon us and did not a thing. Zilcho. They do say it's good that we spent all that dough on the computer systems, because they might have very well gone belly up otherwise. But then there's all that stored food and water some folks have in their basements or bomb shelters. What to do with all that? How about some donations to starving kids? There are a great many of those on the planet.

I'm so glad it's over. I was desperately sick of hearing about it, like everyone else. And my gut feeling was that nothing would go terribly wrong, and I think that feeling was shared by most people. As for my family's actual Y2K survival scenario, John and I first went to a lovely wedding, then we came home to the boys, sat in our front yard, and watched Milton Proudfoot's splendid fireworks display in the Oakland skies. What a great show! Thanks, Milton. Then we turned on the tube to watch those nutty people in Times Square, stuffed in that city like socks in my dresser (can't quite get the drawer closed), as the big famous ball came down and erupted. A friend had come over to share the evening and she brought us champagne, so we each had a sip of it (dry as sand), John and I gave each other a quick kiss, and then Alex, our 5-year-old, promptly fell asleep, having achieved his goal of seeing in the new year. Robert (7) drifted off, sitting straight up in a chair. We watched him snooze for a while and then woke him to go up to bed. He was furious, adamant that he had only been resting his eyes and he wanted to stay up all night. We informed him that he actually had stayed up all night, as it was past 12. He kept grousing, though, as he dropped into bed and immediately resumed snoring. Michael had thrown in the towel early on, exhausted from swimming all day at Alpine (I had to let them loose somewhere). He didn't even hang on for the fireworks. Falling into bed five minutes before they started, the little bub didn't move a muscle even as the loudest explosions nearly shook the house.

So that was our evening. We survived, our computer survived, the house stayed warm, and the cat seems to have come through unscathed. The only real fall-out in our lives has been the unending debate in the newsroom as to exactly what century/millennium it truly is. John is adamant that the new millennium does not begin until Jan. 1, 2001, while Don is much more likely to believe that it started last week. It comes down to this: Did that monk decide to start counting on the year Jesus was born, or on the year he turned 1? According to the Webster's New World Dictionary, a millennium includes the first year of the next century, i.e., 2000 B.C. through 1001 B.C. was the second millennium B.C. So, that leads one to conclude that the millennium now being over-talked about does not really end until 2001. But if it started on 2000 B.C. -- yikes. And of course there's that little wrench thrown in the mix concerning the monk's mathematical blunder, missing Christ's actual birth by at least five or six years. So then we remember that it is the western world, Christian calendar we are talking about, which does not affect a fairly significant portion of the planet's population anyhow . . . so then, well, it just gets a little silly. But leave it to human beings to put the weight of the world on it. And, of course, any excuse for a party and/or argument is okay, too.

It's just a number. That's it. A number of a system we humans have decided to use to denote time. All those billions of people around the world celebrating, worrying, stockpiling, adjusting, doomsdaying, predicting — all about a number that we have placed on time. And as I mentioned, there are multitudes of people whose last thought was to celebrate New Year's Eve because they are too hungry to do much more than lie on the ground and wait to die. Harsh, yes, but quite true. I keep thinking of all that stockpiled food and water, and that leads me to consider the amount of food my own family consumes or wastes. It's sort of obscene, the wealth some of us have, many of us in this country, while so many others, all worthy, equal human beings in the eyes of God, are so desperately in need. I wish sometimes that we humans could more often refocus some of our energy, our worry, our obsession with the details — taking some away from the truly trivial functions of our lives and redirecting it toward making life more livable for others. But I must admit, too, that more attention is paid to such things than in the past. People are at least more aware of the need out there, and we do respond to it — Warm the Children this year served about 180 kids in need. That's about $80 spent per kid on new winter clothes and footwear. Thank you for that, everyone who took part.

So, happy new year to all, for whatever it might mean to each of you — a new millennium or not a new millennium, a big scare or a big party. It's all just a matter of time, isn't it?

Letters to the Editor

Editor's note: The writers of the following letter to the Garrett County Commissioners requested that it be published in this column.

Dear Commissioners:

Please consider this letter as our stand regarding the issue of the Oakland Bypass. We would like to go on record strongly opposing the Bypass and all the options other than the "No Build" option.

Although we are not lifetime residents, we have been coming to Garrett County all our life and have been residents since 1984. We have raised our children here and feel the quality of life is wonderful, the county government is good, and the education system is terrific.

As we approach the reality of a Wal-Mart in Oakland (which we were never in favor of), the bypass will only take the so-called increased traffic of Wal-Mart to and from Wal-Mart easily and bypass downtown Oakland businesses. What will downtown Oakland become? The construction and location will also be counter-productive to the residential areas located among the bypass choices. We do NOT want a bypass in our neighborhood!

I respectfully ask that you as county commissioners vote against the Oakland Bypass and continue to let the traffic flow through the downtown area.

Sincerely,
Gary Shafer
Jan Shafer

Editor's note: The writer of the following letter requested that it appear here.

To the County Commissioners:

I am writing this because I was not able to attend the "bypass meeting" Tuesday night at Southern High.

I assert that a very significant factor is being overlooked as Oakland seeks traffic remedies - specifically, the north-south "corridor" on the Garrett-Allegany border, which seems to have the full support of every legislator involved.

If this corridor achieves half the benefits being promised for it, much of Oakland's north-south traffic should be displaced from Rt. 219 to the corridor when it is built, or else the corridor is an albatross, or even an outright manipulative conspiracy. (Which I personally doubt, but what do I know?)

Let us assume hypothetically that the corridor will be opened in the very foreseeable future. (Speaker Casper Taylor has indicated that, because the corridor involves several states, federal construction funds will likely be precipitated.) If Oakland traffic levels indeed subsequently fall, is it possible that a "bypass" could become essentially needless — at least for now?

And finally, if the border corridor is so critical to our economic life or death — as we have been reminded three score and ten times now — should we be spending even one dollar on a bypass of hugely less import, rather than save and apply it to the corridor, the sole savior of our economic souls?

Craig Speicher
Grantsville

To the Editor:

For the past several months I have watched in amusement the letters from George Falter and Craig Speicher in their relentless struggle to end progress and keep Garrett County fettered in the chains of economic isolationism. I have read their rantings that decried the proposal of a north/south highway as the destruction of this "pristine" wilderness and wonderful lifestyle we know.

But Mr. Speicher's letter last week was just too much. I now feel compelled to respond to the absurdity spouted by these vocal protectionists. Mr. Speicher seems to assert that the accidents over the past years, which have occurred at the Rt. 219 and Rt. 40 intersections at Keyser's Ridge and Hilltop in the Grantsville area, are a direct result of the construction of I-68. Any sort of logical reasoning would lead one to realize that, if the traffic flow on I-68 were diverted to these roads, the accident rate would increase exponentially. Can anyone reasonably believe that super highways actually increase the accident rate? Perhaps Mr. Speicher's memory is too short to remember the numerous deaths resulting from heavy trucks losing their brakes and careening down Big Savage into Frostburg.

I've often wondered if these preservationists practice what they preach and use old Rt. 40 on their trips to LaVale or Cumberland. Perhaps the real reason Mr. Speicher detests I-68 is the fact that it routed traffic away from the family carwash; who knows.

I think it's high time we let the people of Oakland decide if, and where, they want a bypass. I just hope the commissioners and other elected representatives give these people the attention they deserve, the realization that they are just a few noisy citizens with a right to their opinion. No more! I want them to realize that there are a lot of us out here with very different opinions, just less vocal about it.

Sincerely,
Dave Maust
Grantsville

Editor's note: The writer of the following letter to the Garrett County Commissioners requested that it be published in this column.

Gentlemen:

I'm writing in regard to the construction of the Oakland Bypass. Twenty years ago this was an issue to build or not to build. I was an elected official at that time, and the law was such that if a majority of the elected official voted for or against a construction item in the transportation proposal for that county then that vote prevailed and the majority voted not to build. The proposed building of a Wal-Mart facility north of Oakland off of Rt. 219 has given this item a new life and, from what I read, all elected officials support the building of the bypass. The mayor of Oakland in the Sunday News spoke of the future of our community and the need to grow and protect our environment, among many other things the new century will bring. The construction of this bypass does not protect, but destroys our environment by going through the woodlands and farmlands surrounding the community. The state has on the books a farm land preservation law and the state is the largest violator of said law.

The town of Oakland and Mtn. Lake Park are growing together in the residential area of Dennett Road, 11th St., and 12th St., and this Band-Aid approach to traffic solution will cut the two communities in half, the same as Rt. 135 cut Mtn. Lake Park in half and the loss of the great Amphitheater, an historic blunder. Don't ever trust the Highway Department of Maryland to have any imagination or foresight. The proposal is to close High Street absolutely. The Highway Administration says that the land is too low and too expensive to build an overpass, but it would not be too costly to provide a pedestrian tunnel for children walking or riding bicycles to and from Southern High School. Better to provide for this traffic now than later when someone is hurt or injured and an unsightly overpass is built.

In my opinion, the need for this bypass is not there, as has been expressed by many others, including the reasons, spelled out in The Republican editorial. Thank you for listening, and remember, "Don't trust the Highway Administration!!!."

Very truly yours,
DeCorsey Bolden
Oakland

To the Editor:

While I think Garrett County has many miles of roads that badly need improving, I'm not at all sure that an "Oakland bypass" like the one being considered, should be a part of that plan. If such a thing is ever put in it should be, in my opinion, a simple extension of Ninth Street as a two-lane road with a 35 or 40 m.p.h. speed limit. That way the intersections could all be at grade with traffic signals if necessary. The state would not need a 130-foot wide right of way to do this, We don't need a "beltway" to get around Oakland now or in the future. This type of road would work for the situation in the town of Accident as well.

Let me say very plainly that I believe that anyone's attempt to put another "interstate" type highway through this county is not going to succeed, whether it is tried as a whole project or in piecemeal.

On the other hand, people who don't see the need for any changes and improvements to our main highways probably weren't around when you had to go through downtown Deer Park to get to Swanton or to appreciate the convenience and access that a modern route 219 provided for the fairgrounds.

These are just a few examples where we had to "cut and fill" and cross streams and cut some trees to build the roads that we now use every day and take for granted. They weren't always there!

It was, I believe, back in the late 1950s that the state improved routes 219 south to Gortner and 135 east to Altamont to where 495 now starts, including, by the way, a Deer Park bypass, of all things! Past these points, however, these roads have not changed much since then and are not fit for the kind of truck traffic that we have these days. For example, the attempts to widen the lanes of route 495 going east to Swanton have vehicles driving right up against

THE EPIPHANY

Most Christians in the west have dismantled Christmas, or are on the verge of doing so. Christians in the east are just getting started. By "west" I mean all the churches descended from the Latin rite of the Catholic Church. By "east" I mean the churches which call themselves "Eastern Orthodox" as well as churches in communion with the Pope, but who maintain the old Greek rites.

The divisions between a Roman Catholic and a Presbyterian and between a Presbyterian and a Pentecostal seem so large that it is hard for us to realize that the three are next door neighbors in religion compared to eastern Christians.

Where do eastern Christians live? Their homelands are in eastern Europe. The capital of eastern Christianity, Constantinople, has been in Moslem hands since 1453. Today it is called Istanbul. Russian is the homeland of the largest number of Orthodox Christians. Ukraine, Romania, and Bulgaria are all predominantly eastern whether Catholic or Orthodox. The Christians of Palestine and Egypt are also eastern in their practice.

I have spoken of the homelands of eastern Christians because adherents of eastern Christianity have emigrated throughout the world. There are about 250 million eastern Christians worldwide. About half of them are in Russia. In the United States there are approximately five million eastern Christians, about the same number as Presbyterians and Episcopalians combined.

There are two reasons that eastern Christians celebrate Christmas later than western Christians. One is history and the other is the calendar. The feast of Christmas did not begin to be celebrated until the third and fourth centuries after the birth of Christ.

Back in those days people did not usually have trouble believing that Jesus Christ was God. They did have trouble believing that he was a human being. The development of the doctrine of the virgin birth, along with the celebration of Christmas were ways that the Church could assert and re-enforce culturally that Jesus Christ is 100% human as well as 100% God.

Because Christianity was an illegal, underground religion until 319, individual churches initiated different practices in different places. Some celebrated the birth of Christ on December 25, others on January 6, and still others on January 10. Over time these three dates were coordinated to be the birth of Christ, the manifestation of Christ to the gentiles (symbolized by the coming of the wise men), and the baptism of Christ. Eastern churches favored the latter two dates.

By the end of the fourth century and throughout the fifth, the three feasts of Christ were regularized. Humans — even Christian humans — sometimes evidencing the fault of stubbornness, adjusted to the regularization by ignoring the dates that come from some other church. The Armenian Church, for example, all but ignores Christmas, and lets loose with celebration on the Epiphany (January 6).

The change in the calendar is the second reason that western and eastern observances of Christmas differ. Until 1582 the Christian world, east and west, used the Julian calendar, named for Julius Caesar. The problem with the Julian calendar was that its leap years overly compensated for the fractional portion of the day in each year.

In 1582 Pope Gregory XIII instituted a new calendar with adjusted leap years, known as the Gregorian calendar. The initial effect was to advance the calendar by 10 days. Eastern Christians, however, continue to use the Julian calendar, which today is about 13 days behind the Gregorian calendar.

The neat thing this does for eastern Christians is that the Epiphany and the Baptism of Christ in the Gregorian (western) calendar roughly coincide with Christmas in the Julian (eastern) calendar. This is complicated stuff, but if I have understood it more or less correctly, then they can celebrate old Christmas and new Christmas all at once.

Some reader probably understands all this far better than I do, and will write to set me straight. The short of it is this: one out of eight Christians worldwide celebrates Christmas on a different day than the rest of us. It behooves us western Christians to take note of what our brothers and sisters in the east are doing.

GOP Treasurer Will Challenge Rep. Bartlett

Pledging "uncompromising activism, meaningful middle class tax cuts, and aggressive job building," Maryland Republican State Party treasurer Timothy R. Mayberry filed recently to seek the U.S. House seat currently held by Republican Roscoe Bartlett.

Noting his own conservative, "faith-based" credentials demonstrated in two statewide comptroller races, Mayberry said he will not "attack" Bartlett, as he did not attack Louis Goldstein in previous statewide races. He said he will examine voting patterns to find "all-out effort" to further conservative causes.

According to Mayberry, the "entire Congress has disappointed voters" with lack of action on major issues. Mayberry added that "months of careful deliberation" brought him to the conclusion that his business-building skills and 'vigorous approach' to economic concerns are needed to "bring most of the Sixth District out of the doldrums." He offers a multi-point platform covering business and social issues, support for tax cuts, Medicare prescription payments, and 3-R school reform eliminating "Washington-directed behavior modification" of school children.

A sixth-generation Marylander, age 43, Mayberry lost the 1998 GOP comptroller primary by a scant eight votes out of more than 180,000 cast. Previously he defeated the GOP National Committeeman to become the 1994 state comptroller nominee, running unsuccessfully against long-term incumbent, Louis L. Goldstein. Mayberry defeated the late Mr. Goldstein in Washington, Frederick, and Carroll counties in the 1994 General Election.

In the 1998 primary, Mayberry took Howard County while winning Frederick by 62% and Washington by 83%. Describing himself as a "careful money manager," Mayberry said his expenditures for his statewide races never exceeded $37,000 and he believes "citizens are expected to ante up entirely too much of their hard-earned cash in a disgusting upward campaign-cost spiral."

Glimpse of The Past . . .

THE BIRTH OF DEEP CREEK LAKE is depicted in this photo taken in June of 1924 soon after clearing and excavation got under way to construct the state's largest man-made freshwater body. The steam shovel in the foreground is clearing the space for the Youghlogheny Hydro-Electric Corporation's power house, located near the dam of the lake. Following the construction of the power house and dam, the filling of the lake began and took several years to complete. Local residents still await the announcement that the sale of the lake to the state of Maryland is complete and official. Child Poverty Rate In Maryland Is Lowest In The United States

Governor Parris N. Glendening and Lt. Governor Kathleen Kennedy Townsend recently announced that a U.S. Bureau of the Census survey reveals that Maryland's child poverty rate is the lowest in the United States. The finding was part of a first-ever publication measuring and tracking the well-being of children around the state, initiated by the Maryland Partnership for Children, Youth, & Families.

Maryland's rate of child poverty, defined nationally as the percent of related children under the age of 18 whose families live below the federal poverty level, was 6.9 percent of the state population in 1998, falling from 13.4 percent in 1997. The figures are included in the new publication Maryland's Results for Child Well-Being, a document that tracks multiple indicators to provide a comprehensive picture of the well-being of children in the state.

"This dramatic one-year decrease reflects a downward trend that has been occurring in Maryland over the last several years, thanks to strong job growth, lower unemployment, and welfare reform," said Lt. Governor Townsend, who chairs the Maryland Partnership for Children, Youth, & Families. "We've shown that we can make a difference in the lives of our children, but we still have a long way to go."

The new publication will be produced annually, and is specifically designed as a tool for local communities and state agencies who are developing policies and programs to help enhance the lives of children and families in their communities.

"These figures indicate our policies and programs are moving Maryland forward," Governor Glendening said. "We are proud of our efforts to help children in Maryland, and we will redouble our efforts to reduce the poverty rate even further."

The publication came as the result of three years' work that included statewide public hearings held in a dozen separate jurisdictions across the state, review and research by the Governor's Office for Children, Youth, & Families and the efforts of panels of experts who were asked to review eight separate result areas; Babies Born Healthy; Healthy Children; Children Enter School Ready to Learn; Children Successful in School; Children Completing School; Children Safe in Their Families & Communities; Stable & Economically Independent Families; and Communities Which Support Family Life.

"This book uses data to illustrate our children's well-being across the state," said Bonnie Kirkland, special secretary, Children, Youth, & Families. "We will be able to use this document as a measuring stick to determine which of our efforts are working and which need improvements."

In May 1998, Governor Glendening appointed the Maryland Partnership for Children, Youth, and Families to advise him on critical issues affecting Maryland's children and act as a catalyst for improving opportunities for children and families in our state. Comprised of members of state child-serving agencies, local government, local management boards, citizens, parents, and advocacy organizations, the Partnership's creation represented one piece of a three-year movement to develop a system of outcome-based efforts for Maryland's children and families.

The publication is also available in HTML format on the Internet at http://www.ocyf.state.md.us, followed by the selection of "Results and Indicators."

the guard rails at many points. Anyone who thinks that there is little danger or traffic on this road, is not facing reality! Hundreds of round trips are made each week by tractor trailer coal trucks alone, and it is only a matter of time before a really bad accident occurs.

The entire length of route 495 needs to be improved by relocating it in places, and widening it with shoulders and passing lanes on the grades in others. In my opinion, this would include bypassing Swanton altogether. This would provide much better access to the Southern Industrial Park where we have recently spent large amounts of money to expand the park and improve services. Route 219 south from Gortner should be upgraded like the road it is leaving Oakland, all the way to the West Virginia border. Route 135 from Altamont up to route 38 should be widened with shoulders and passing lanes in several spots, if not continuous, on the upgrade. I'm sure there are other highways in the county that can use these kinds of improvements as well.

While we may not want another interstate splitting our county, that does not mean that road projects that were started many years ago and never completed should not be on our "wish list" to be finished while the state apparently has the money to do them.

I'm sorry to say that I don't see this kind of foresight being expressed by our elected officials at this time.

Esther Friend, Coldwell Banker's Habitat committee chairperson, said the benefits of helping Habitat have been felt by all of those involved. See story. Pictured left to right are Coldwell Banker's Habitat committee members Lana Brenneman Roby, sales associate; Larry Roby, sales assistant; Crystal Williams, assistant rental manager; Wayne R. Johnson, executive director of Habitat; Friend, sales associate; Bob Huebner, broker; Goldie Shugars, sales associate; and Kelly Friend, sales associate.

In a continuing supportive effort for Habitat for Humanity, agents and staff members at Coldwell Banker Deep Creek Realty recently donated over $2,000 to the organization. This money was raised for the local Habitat branch through special events, such as hoagie sales, soda vending machine profits, a Beanie Baby™ trade show, raffles, and donations.

Esther Friend, Coldwell Banker's Habitat for Humanity committee chairperson, explained that the company employees feel a special appreciation for Habitat.

"First, Habitat is an organization that helps people own their own homes," Friend said. "And as real estate agents, we understand and appreciate how valuable that is for the new homeowners and for the community. Second, Coldwell Banker has adopted Habitat for Humanity as its corporate charitable partner on a national level, and we're proud to be a part of that relationship. Affiliates throughout the country do as we do to support our Habitat families and help fulfill a family's dream of owning a home."

Other Coldwell Banker Habitat committee members include Goldie Shugars, Crystal Williams, Paul Shockey, Debbie Estill, and Kelly Friend. A number of other employees took part in the fund-raisers.

In addition to raising money for the local Habitat branch, Coldwell Banker recently supported Habitat's challenge by Keystone Financial to raise funds from the business community to match a donation from Keystone.

The local realty company has also supported Habitat work camps for the past several years. Annually, the office "adopts" a visiting work group and supplies the workers with lunches for the week they are in town. The company also makes and serves dinner to the group one night.

"We've really enjoyed meeting and talking with the young people who volunteer to come to Garrett County to build homes for people they've never met," said Friend. "They obviously have a good time working together, even if they're just sanding drywall. It's an inspiration to us to know that these people have given up a week of their time and paid their own travel expenses just to lend a hand to someone who needs help."

Office members at Coldwell have pitched in with the actual construction tasks, recruiting friends and relatives with special skills and equipment.

"Habitat for Humanity of Garrett County Inc. is very happy to have the help of organizations such as Coldwell Banker Deep Creek Realty in building and feeding work groups coming to Garrett County each year," said Wayne Johnson, executive director of Habitat.

Garrett Youth Council Slates Sunday Meeting

The Garrett Youth Council has slated its regular monthly meeting for this Sunday, Jan. 9, at 3:30 p.m. The meeting will take place in the basement of the log building located at the Garrett County Health Department site along Garrett Highway just north of downtown Oakland.

All interested youth are invited to attend this GYC meeting. Specific event ideas on the agenda for discussion include: brainstorming ideas for a proposed Summer Youth Challenge; a Bowling Bash and Pool Tournament event, tentatively scheduled for late next month; and a band jam.

Participants will also discuss the development of a questionnaire to determine what activities students would like to have take place in Garrett County. As results of the questionnaire are tallied, GYC members will develop a "wish list" of activities.

A third area of discussion will focus on the issue of underage drinking. This topic has been identified as a top priority by the membership of the Youth Council.

Bible Quizzing Events Slated

The Mtn. Top Youth for Christ Bible Quizzing League, which serves Garrett County and nearby Pennsylvania, has announced the schedule of events for 2000.

The opening event will be held at Cherry Glade Mennonite Church, Accident, on Sunday, Jan. 9, at 2 p.m. This will be an opportunity for those interested in participating to get acquainted with the activities of the league and to meet the other members.

The quizzes, slated for January 20, February 20, March 12, and April 9, will be held at various locations in the area on Sunday afternoons and are followed by a family social gathering. Each quiz will focus on information contained in specific chapters of the Bible. A two-day quiz camp in mid-April will complete the season.

New members and visitors are welcome to attend any of the events scheduled by the group. "We are looking for new quizzers and coaches, and some additional adult helpers," said coordinator Janie Beitzel.

For more information, persons may contact Beitzel at 814-662-2942.

Masons To Meet, Install Officers

Oakland Lodge No. 192, Ancient, Free, and Accepted Masons, will have a regular communication on Tuesday, Jan. 11, at 7:30 p.m. in the Paul B. Naylor Masonic Temple. Officers for the year 2000 will be installed. All Master Masons are invited to attend and join in refreshments after the meeting.

Legislative Day Set By United Seniors Of Md.

Issues facing seniors in Maryland will be addressed during a rally scheduled in Annapolis on January 19 from 8:15 a.m. to 2 p.m. The theme of this year's event is "Aging In Place! Your Place Or Mine?"

Aging in place refers to the ability of an older person to remain in his or her home rather than be required to move into some other facility in order to get assistance with certain facets of daily living.

In order to achieve this goal, home-delivered services are needed. These may include hot meal programs, chore assistance, or qualified medical services.

Anyone interested in participating in this event or learning more about senior issues may call 1-800-60 SENIOR or Community Action Area Agency on Aging 301-334-9431.

It is projected that the fiber optic lines will be in place by the end of this year. Connections to the line and use of the high-speed equipment could begin in early 2001.

"This is going to be an important issue in this year's General Assembly," Edwards said. "We're all learning more about it along the way."

Rams' Liller Paces Wins Over Westmar, Fort Hill

After a pair of WMIL wins this week, including an impressive road victory over Fort Hill last night, the girls' basketball team of Southern High School holds a 3-1 league mark and a 6-3 overall record. The Rams downed Westmar, 63-50, at home Monday, and aced a 51-35 win on the Sentinels' homecourt last night. Sophomore guard Ashley Liller turned a pair of impressive performances in each contest, scoring 23 points against the Wildcats and 21 points against the Sentinels.

Fourteen second half points by Liller Monday sparked a Rams comeback that overcame an 11-point Wildcat lead. Westmar had started out hot and Southern cold, as the guests amassed a 21-11 first quarter lead and a 34-23 lead at the intermission.

The guests were paced by a 15 for 26 shooting performance from the field over the course of the first half, but as Southern coach Don Stemple put it, although the Wildcats "shot very well in the first half, we didn't change our defense, just our intensity. In the second half they still had decent shooting (8 for 19), but they didn't get as many shots. I credit our defense for that."

Southern's defense combined with a hot-handed offense during the second half that pulled the Rams within a single point, 40-39, at the conclusion of the third quarter. By the time the contest ended, SHS, which had outscored Westmar by a 40-16 margin over the second half, held a 13-point margin of victory.

Liller tallied 23 points overall and five steals for the Rams, while junior forward Charlena Reeves connected for 17 points and grabbed a team-high 10 rebounds. Becca Gangler, a senior forward, had 13 points. The Wildcats' Angie Johnson scored 14 points, followed by Stacey Langham's 12 points and 10 points from Natalie Sloan.

"We were down and the girls could have packed it in at halftime," Stemple observed, "but they came out strong and played hard."

Southern also won the junior varsity contest, although details were not available.

Liller led the Rams to victory last night in Cumberland by recording 21 points to pace a balanced effort. Bosley added 11 points and Gangler contributed nine points. Fort Hill got the lions' share of its scoring from Chrissy Kiser and Stephanie Skidmore, who each tallied eight points, while Stacey Simpson added seven points.

SHS was up 14-4 at the end of the first quarter and 25-15 at the end of the first half before moving out to a commanding 42-23 lead at the opening of the final stanza.

The Rams travel to Frankfort Tuesday before hosting Keyser a week from today.

RAM CHARGE OVERTAKES WILDCATS - "Never say die" took on an added meaning Monday night at Southern High School as the girls' basketball team stormed back from an 11-point halftime deficit to overcome the Westmar Wildcats by a 63-50 margin. It took a team effort to grab the victory, exemplified above as the entire Rams floor squad streaks up the court with defenders in hot pursuit. Junior forward Charlena Reeves (#45) controls the ball, while from the left, teammates Joy Jackson (#31), Ashley Liller (#21), Gina Reeves (#23), and Becca Gangler (#25) hustle to get into position. Reeves, who took down a team-high 10 rebounds while scoring 17 points, joined forces with sophomore guard Ashley Liller to help spark a 40-16 SHS run through the second half. Liller is shown below driving around a pick set by junior forward Ashlee Spady (#33), on her way to the hoop. Fourteen of Liller's game-high 23 points came in the fast and furious second half charge. The Rams won again last night, turning in an impressive 51-35 victory at Fort Hill as Liller scored 21 points to lead all scorers. SHS holds a 6-3 record heading into a Tuesday road trip to Frankfort.

Rams' Long WMIL Streak Is Halted By FH Sentinels

A 21-game winning streak in the Western Maryland Interscholastic League by the Southern High School boys' varsity basketball team, which spanned some two years, was ended Tuesday night by the Fort Hill Sentinels, who topped the Rams by a 56-50 margin in Cumberland. It was the Rams' third loss of the season, as their record dipped to 5-3 overall and 3-1 in the WMIL. Fort Hill is now 5-2 overall and 2-0 in the WMIL.

Fort Hill's Jeremy Snyder posed by far the greatest problems for Coach Tom Bosley and the Ram defense, as he poured in a total of 33 points, including 10 in the first quarter and 13 in the final period. The Rams simply had no one on their roster who could match up with the 6-5 junior, who also crashed the boards for a game-high 10 rebounds.

The Rams held a brief 8-7 lead at the 4:10 mark of the first quarter, but that's when Snyder began his 10-point first-quarter run with a three-point shot, a three-point play, and two more inside shots. The quarter ended with the Sentinels on top, 14-10.

The largest deficit for the Rams was at the 2:52 mark of the second quarter when they trailed 23-12. They were down by seven, 25-18, at intermission.

Southern won the third quarter, out-scoring the home team by a 14-9 margin, and trailed by just two points, 34-32, going into the final stanza. Then Ram Justin Liller tied the score at 34-34 with a pair of free throws in the first minute of the fourth period, but a bucket by Snyder just 10 seconds later put Fort Hill on top for good. The Sentinels led 45-38 with 3:06 to play, and the Rams could get no closer than five points.

The Rams were forced to foul in the final minutes of the game, but the Sentinels connected on eight of 10 free throws in the final 1:25.

Bryan Panther was the only Southern player to reach double figures, as he finished with 10 points, plus five rebounds. Nathaniel Panther and Liller each scored nine points, Jason Finch hit eight, and Mike Browning also had five rebounds.

The Southern junior varsity team was edged in the preliminary game, 47-45, on a last-second shot by Fort Hill's Nick Mazzone, who led the Sentinel jayvees with 13 points. Nathan Dillon and Jared Mooney each scored 10 points for Fort Hill (4-1), while Ricky Reams, D.R. Parsons, and Chad Panther paced the Rams in scoring with 14, 11, and 10 points, respectively.

The Rams will play again this Friday evening at Mt. Savage and will travel to Allegany next Tuesday.

Ram Freshmen Crush Wildcats

The freshman boys' basketball team of Southern High School coasted to a 63-28 victory over host Westmar Tuesday in Lonaconing behind a 21-point effort by Dennis Tressler. Brian Edwards also reached double figures for the Rams with 10 points.

The Rams built a lead of 29-17 by halftime and continued their dominance throughout the second half. Neil Alexander led the Wildcats' scoring with nine points.

Rams' Teagarden Named To All-WMIL First Team Volleyball Unit

Southern High School's Jennifer Teagarden was named to the All-Western Maryland Interscholastic League's first team volleyball squad recently. The senior setter is Garrett County's sole representative on the first team unit, while fellow Ram Laura Johnson and Northern High School players Heidi Frazee and Mimi Harvey were named to the second team, and SHS's Kari Niner received honorable mention.

Teagarden tallied 156 assists, 36 kills, and 18 service aces with an efficiency rating of 88 percent this past season as she helped the Rams to a 7-7 record. She was voted the Rams' most valuable player both this year and during her sophomore season of 1997, was also noted as Southern's best offensive player last year. The three-year SHS starter intends to continue her volleyball career with the Catamounts of Potomac State College.

Joining Teagarden on the first team were Tracey Little and Cassie Murray of WMIL and Class 1A champion Allegany, runner-up in the state final; Sarah Gattens of Westmar; Jessica George and Jennifer Vance of Fort Hill; and Mount Savage's Lindsey Dickel.

Voted to the second team, in addition to SHS's Johnson and NHS's Frazee and Harvey, were Allegany's Lauren Stillwagon, Westmar's Stacey Langham, and Amber Booth of Mount Savage.

Honorable mention went to the Rams' Niner, Shelly Bishop and Sarah Dotson of Beall, and Kristin Marsh of Westmar.

The All-WMIL selections were chosen by a poll of area high school volleyball coaches.

The age 8-9 participants will shoot four feet in front of the regulation foul line, while the older youth will shoot from the foul line. The girls' division and the boys' 8-9 group will use a girls' regulation basketball.

The winners in each division, boys and girls, will advance to the West District competition, to be held Saturday, Jan. 22, at St. Maria Goretti High School in Hagerstown.

Huskies Fall To Campers, Bag Elks To Remain Even

Northern High School's girls' basketball team maintained its .500 mark by splitting two home contests this week, losing to Allegany on Monday by a 56-38 margin, but rebounding last night to trounce Salisbury 55-23. The Huskies, winners of four of their last six outings, stand at 5-5 (2-3 in the WMIL) as they head into a home match-up with Beall Monday before a Wednesday trip to Salisbury for a rematch with the Elks.

A double-double by forward Bridget Frazee Monday was negated by a stellar performance by Alco's Cassie Murray in the 18-point Camper victory. Frazee, a sophomore, scored 13 points (as did teammate Heidi Frazee), grabbed 11 rebounds, and recorded four steals; however, Murray tallied a game-high 14 points, snagged nine rebounds, handed out five assists, nabbed four steals, and blocked four shots.

Northern, which trailed 12-8 after the first quarter, fell behind by a 25-15 margin at the half and was down by a 39-27 deficit at the opening of the fourth quarter. The Huskies made a run at Allegany in the final stanza, cutting the margin to 10 points with three minutes to go before Alco put NHS away with a 10-2 flurry.

In addition to the Frazees' team-high 13-point tallies, senior guard Heather Nugent hit for 10 points, including six on a pair of three-point buckets.

Northern's junior varsity fell to the Allegany jayvees 26-20. Bethany Sindy led the victors with nine points, while Tara Slider tallied five. Jolene Brenneman, a sophomore, hit for eight NHS points from her forward slot.

Last night against Salisbury, Nugent exploded for 18 points and grabbed nine steals to lead the Huskies to victory. Northern dominated the contest from the outset, taking a 13-4 lead at the end of the first quarter, and a 25-8 lead at the half, before going up by a 41-15 margin at the opening of the final stanza.

Guards Kristin Lander, a junior, and Emily Rawe, a sophomore, contributed seven points each. Bridget Frazee pulled down 13 rebounds to lead the board tally for both teams, and Heidi Frazee recorded five steals. Salisbury's Natasha Munion was high scorer for the Elks with 13 points.

NHS took the junior varsity game by one point, 16-15. Brenneman cleaned the glass for a game-high 21 rebounds, while sophomore forward Christie Flockhart led the Huskies with eight points.

Dozier Leads Huskies To 59-43 Win Over Panthers

Once again leading the Northern High School boys' varsity to a victory, the Huskies' fifth in a row, was junior Rob Dozier, who finished with 22 points and 17 rebounds as the Huskies whipped host Hancock, 59-43, on Monday. The win upped the record of Coach Paul Edwards and his team to 6-2 overall.

Northern wasted no time taking charge in the game, and held a 20-10 advantage at the end of the first quarter. The Huskies added to that lead by halftime, when they led 34-21, and were on top by 15, 45-30, after three periods.

Greg Speicher finished with 13 points for the Huskies, with nine of those scored from three-point range, while Josh Resh netted 11 points and helped Dozier dominate the inside game for the Huskies, as he pulled down eight rebounds.

Tim Umbel paced the Husky defensive effort, as he recorded a game-high nine steals. He also had seven points and five assists.

Leading the Panthers' scoring effort was Spencer

Lakers Struggle Offensively, But Get By Owls Anyway

Their total of 56 points was well below their average of 92.3, but it was still enough for the Garrett Community College Lakers to get by host Prince George's CC last night and extend their perfect Maryland JUCO record to 6-0. It was also the sixth straight win for Coach Dennis Gibson and his squad, and their 12th win in 13 starts this season.

Leading the Lakers last night was sophomore Warren Coates, who was finally back in the line-up after being sidelined with a wrist injury in the early part of the season. Coates scored 14 points, grabbed nine rebounds, and had two steals to lead a team that had obviously not been in action for several weeks.

Both teams suffered from rustiness because of the holiday break, as there were a total of 49 turnovers between them. The score was close from the opening tip-off, and knotted at 24-24 at intermission. Coates sparked a run in the second half that put the Lakers on top for good.

Also reaching double figures for Garrett was Carlos Jones with 13 points. Dexter Levi scored nine points and blocked four shots, while Scott Kochenderfer led the team in assists with six.

Leading the Owls (4-9 overall, 2-5 JUCO) in scoring and rebounding was Reginald Howell, who recorded 13 points and 11 rebounds. Barry Mitchell and Virgis Williams netted 11 and 10 points, respectively.

The Lakers will have a huge test this Saturday night at home when they host the Allegany College Trojans of Cumberland, who are currently ranked 14th in the nation. That contest will tip off at 7:30 p.m. They will also play Monday at home against CCAC-South, a contest that will get under way at 7 p.m.

Sure times are tough. And cutting your advertising budget may seem like a good way to deal with the economic crunch you're experiencing.

But there's one important thing you should keep in mind: The 'hide-your-head-in-the-sand' approach only succeeds in hiding your business from customers and potential customers...until you're soon forgotten! (And wouldn't your competition love that!)

The fact is, when you cut your newspaper advertising budget thinking you'll save money, you end up cutting your best opportunity to:

- Generate customer traffic
- Improve customer awareness
- Increase sales
- And most importantly...MAKE MONEY!

Newspaper advertising helps keep your business going, no matter what the economy.

Turkey Season Yields 334 In Western Counties

Fall turkey hunters harvested 334 wild turkeys in the three western Maryland counties during 1999's one-week season. This is an 11 percent increase over 1998's harvest, but similar to the average of the previous two years.

"Department of Natural Resources field staff reported an excellent reproductive year for wild turkeys in western Maryland during the summer of 1999," said Mike Slattery, director of DNR's Wildlife and Heritage Division. "Fall populations and the corresponding hunting harvest is directly related to turkey poult production during the summer months. Weather conditions were good in western Maryland, enabling more poults to survive to the fall months. Thus, turkey populations increased in the area and hunters experienced a better chance to harvest a fall wild turkey."

Garrett County reported the highest harvest, with 162 turkeys harvested, followed by Allegany County with 137 turkeys and Washington County with 35 turkeys. Hunting pressure for wild turkeys was light during the week-long season.

The previous 10 years' fall turkey harvests for the three western Maryland counties are: 1998 - 301, 1997 - 359, 1996 - 349, 1995 - 570, 1994 - 559, 1993 - 427, 1992 - 370, 1991 - 360, 1990 - 340, and 1989 - 302.

Jane Maye, Daleville, Va., visited last week in Eglon, staying with her father, John E. Teets. Mr. Teets has now entered the Goodwill Mennonite Home at Grantsville and Mrs. Maye has returned to her home. Rebecca Teets is recuperating from hip and elbow fractures and is also at the Goodwill Home.

Jacob Hauser is reportedly progressing well after being hospitalized for jaundice, and is home with his parents and brother, Terry, Jill, and Andrew Hauser.

Herb and Jean Starr spent their Christmas vacation in Ohio visiting with Herb's mother, Annie Starr, and uncle, Raymond Plunkett. They also visited with their daughter, Genny and Al Gasto, and granddaughter, Jennifer and Corey Hartley and family. They returned to Stemple Ridge on Sunday.

Christmas dinner guests of David and Wilma Mae Teets at Horse Shoe Run were their children and families, Paul, Karen, Aaron, Kevin, and Amanda Teets, local; Talisha Edwards of Cleveland, Ohio; David, Rita Sue, Grant, and Maria Harsh, Amboy; and Jolena, Joey, Jolena, and Ethan Slaubaugh, Silver Lake.

Adult leaders and members of Eglon Mountaineer 4-H Club visited at Cortland Acres Nursing Home on Wednesday, where they provided a party with gifts and refreshments for those having December birthdays. They then visited with their "adopted" patients. Those who made the trip were Linda and Sara Lewis, Elaine Roth, Sue Corbin, Kari Harsh, Linda and Sarah Snyder, Matthew and Ashley Bachtel, Dana Feather, Craig Rembold, and Tracy Teets.

A hunting trip for wild boar was taken Monday and Tuesday of last week by Paul and Aaron Teets of Horse Shoe Run. They were accompanied by Shawn Rembold of Eglon. The hunters returned from their journey to southern West Virginia without having seen their quarry.

Clyde Harsh underwent surgery this fall and was released from the surgeon's care last week. On Jan. 1, he celebrated a birthday with a family dinner prepared at the home of his daughter, Connie Harsh. Others present were George, Bonnie, and Amelia Friend, Ernest Knotts, and Willard Harsh.

ver of the truck, Robert Lee Harvey, 43, Barton, managed to keep his vehicle under control during the incident.

Tichinell's passenger, Jamison Wilson, 42, Piedmont, had to be extricated from the car by personnel from the Potomac Fire Company and was transported to Bloomington Elementary School by Tri-Towns EMS, where he was airlifted by a Maryland State Police helicopter to Cumberland Memorial Hospital. Western Maryland's Trooper 5 was not available for the call, so the Frederick-based Trooper 3 made the transport. After undergoing surgery Tuesday night, Wilson was listed in stable condition.

A Garrett County Sheriff's Office K-9 unit tracked Tichinell for 400-500 yards from the scene of the accident and located him lying unconscious in the woods. He was taken by the McCoole Fire Department ambulance to Cumberland Memorial, where he was treated and released. Charges are pending for Tichinell according to sheriff's deputies who continue to investigate the mishap through the GCSO Accident Reconstruction Team.

Other personnel who responded to the accident scene were from the volunteer fire departments of Bloomington and Piedmont, as well as the Maryland State Highway Administration.

The crash marks the second serious mishap on Backbone Mountain in two weeks. A Bloomington woman was flown the scene of a Tuesday, Dec. 28, accident that occurred along the Rt. 135 climb one mile above Bloomington. That collision is still under investigation by the sheriff's office Accident Reconstruction Team as well.

www.A Country Village.Com

Grantsville is the earthbound location of a new cyberspace business in the county. A Country Village. Com (www.acountryvillage.com), established by Candace Fetterly, is an Internet directory featuring country stores, specialty shops, town services, restaurants, eateries, country inns, B&Bs, churches, and other points of interest. Each point of entry for information is denoted by a graphic of victorian-style home, farm, or business.

Candace and her husband, Tim Fetterly, are innkeepers of the Walnut Ridge Bed and Breakfast in Grantsville, where they have been hosting guests for over five years. During this time, they have learned how critical marketing is to success, Candace explained. "We know the importance of marketing, particularly on the Internet," she noted. Since taking that electronic avenue to reach the public, she said their business has doubled. "About 80 percent of our guests find us on the Internet," she added.

Candace said she realized that reaching large numbers of people outside the immediate area may be desirable for other small local businesses. This led to her development of the countryvillage.com project. The cyberspace directory offers a classified ad listing with a link to the business's own homepage for a modest annual fee of $35. "We also can develop your own web page," she said.

A Country Village. Com will provide information and pictures which can be changed periodically. "Small businesses can compete with the big guys on the 'net.' It's inexpensive marketing 24 hours a day," Candace concluded. For more information, persons may call 301-895-4248 or toll free 1-888-419-2568.

UPDATING THE DIRECTORY - Candace Fetterly, "architect" of the Country Village.Com, updates some of the pictures in her new web site directory. Though it is a new site, it is being viewed by hundreds of people weekly.

"Walk-A-Weigh" Keeping Health Officer Healthy

by Peggy Santamaria

"It is one of the best things I've ever done for my health and to control my weight." The unequivocal statement was made by Garrett County's health officer, Rodney Glotfelty. His subject was the Walk-A-Weigh program, sponsored by the Garrett County Health Department.

Last year at this time, Glotfelty had a slightly elevated blood pressure level for which he was taking medication. He had gained weight and was serving in a rather stressful position as head of the health department. "I've always had trouble controlling my weight and the size of my pants kept going up. I had to do something," he reflected.

In April 1999 Glotfelty "got with the program," so to speak. He began walking and logging in his daily and weekly mileage on the Walk-A-Weigh progress chart. Though not actively involved in any sports program, this was one he believed he could easily participate in. "I knew one thing I could do was walk!"

Glotfelty decided to get a treadmill for use on those days when the weather was too inclement to walk outdoors. "I started out slow and gradually increased the time spent walking and my pace. In the first three or four months I dropped 30 pounds," he reported.

He attributes the weight loss to the combination of increased exercise and improved eating habits. Glotfelty noted he had cut out most snacks or replaced them with fruits or vegetables. He also drinks plenty of water each day. He emphasizes that though he watches what he eats and has cut out bedtime snacks, he eats very well at his meals.

REAPING THE BENEFITS - Rodney Glotfelty, Garrett County's health officer, underscores the benefits of the Walk-A-Weigh program in improving health and a sense of well-being. He also notes that walkers are able to see and appreciate things around them that other people may miss.

Besides losing 30 pounds and two pants sizes, Glotfelty has received other bonuses for his endeavors. "My stamina has definitely increased, my stress level has been reduced, and my blood pressure has dropped. I no longer need to take medication," he said.

With a family history of heart related health problems — his father had died of a cardiovascular disease — Glotfelty said he knew that he was at risk. "People with a history of heart disease in the family need to evaluate the situation," he said.

Not only does Rodney Glotfelty feel much better these days, his family does, too. "My family really appreciates this program. They say I am in a much better mood in the mornings now," he concluded, with a smile.

Medicare Benefits Changing In Area; No Rx Coverage

One of the most noticable changes in Medicare benefits this year for Garrett County residents will be the lack of prescription coverage previously available under Medicare contracts with Health Maintenance Organizations (HMOs). This change resulted from the individual insurance providers electing to not offer their policies in certain rural areas. Other changes have been made in the actual Medicare benefit package and guidelines, though the paperwork has not been finalized and released.

Rx Coverage Lost

With the withdrawal of HMO Medicare coverage from Garrett County, many senior citizens again face the dilemma — prescriptions are not covered by traditional Medicare. Such was the problem that snared a great number of elderly on fixed incomes before the advent of the HMO option. In addition to prescription coverage, the HMOs covered preventive care, such as physical exams and doctor visits often not paid for by the Medicare policy, eye care, and dental care.

Medigap Coverage

To supplement the Medicare coverage, policies are available through a number of insurers. These additional policies are known as Medigap policies — they fill in the gaps left by Medicare.

Medigap coverage is available in seven plans of graduated benefits. The more options included in a plan, the more costly the monthly premium. These plans are regulated as to what will be included in the coverage at each level. A number of insurance companies are approved by the state insurance commissioner to offer the Medigap plans.

Help With Prescriptions

There are a number of ways that Medicare recipients can get some relief on the cost of prescription medications, according to June Heselbach, the Senior Health Insurance Program (SHIP) counselor at Community Action Area Agency on Aging.

Heselbach is able to refer seniors to alternative options that they may not know about or not be aware that they qualify for, she explained. "Also we know that some of the guidelines will be changing for certain programs. We will be able to qualify more people for programs that will assist them," she said.

Anyone with questions about Medicare coverage and other programs or options for prescription coverage, may contact Heselbach at 301-334-9431 or 1-888-877-8403.

Being There For Victims Of Domestic Violence, Abuse

by Peggy Santamaria

When a frightened victim of sexual abuse or family violence calls the Dove Center for advise or help, the person answering that hotline phone may well be Karen Lohr. One of the counseling and support staff of Garrett County's domestic violence/sexual assault resource center, Karen's is one of the voices that will offer information and support to young women and children in need of protection and safety.

A Garrett County native who graduated from Southern High School and later went on to Garrett Community College, Karen pointed out that it was her college studies that helped her find the direction that she has chosen. "I always liked working with people. When I studied women's issues I knew I wanted to do something like this. When I took the Psychology of Women course at GCC it opened my eyes to what I wanted to do," she recalled.

Karen applied to work at the Dove Center and accepted the responsibilities of working with the staff at the shelter and handling hotline calls at night. "I was surprised at the number of people we actually serve," she noted, remembering her initial impressions.

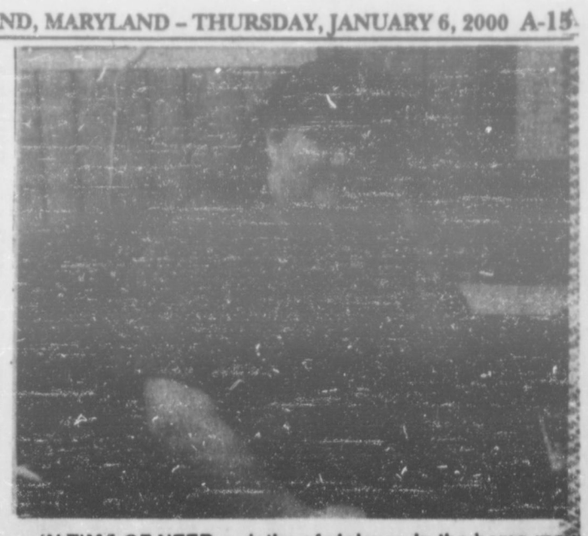
The phone is the avenue of entry for most Dove Center clients. People call in to get general information for themselves and for others. "We listen to what they have to ask or tell us. We ask questions and assess for the proper referrals, depending on each situation," Karen explained.

The caller may need to know about legal options, shelter, protection, or counseling, and it is not uncommon for the caller to be the secondary client, such as the parent of a child in an abusive relationship, she said. Other times the caller is the victim. "I can tell usually when I pick up the phone that it is a hotline call. I can hear the fear in the voice on other end. I know this is a person who needs our help," she stated.

It is the children whom Karen serves at the shelter who affect her most. "Children are the primary reward for me. When they come in, they may be frightened. You hand them a stuffed toy, and they smile. When you are able to bond a bit, it is rewarding."

Karen described her work at the Dove Center as fulfilling for her. She plans to return to college for additional studies. "In September I plan to continue my education at Frostburg State University either in education or social work, but I'm leaning toward social work," she noted.

For information on the services offered by the Dove Center, persons may call 301-895-4300 or 301-245-4600, or for 24-hour service, 301-334-9000.



IN TIME OF NEED a victim of violence in the home may take heart from knowing that Karen Lohr, above, and other staff members are standing by at that Dove Center to answer calls and provide information and support to light the way to safety.

Fluoride: Some Facts, Figures

The following information is taken from a preliminary study by Kendra Todd of the Garrett County Health Department.

- Garrett County ranks third from the bottom in percentage of the population served by fluoridated water.
- In Garrett County 5.3 percent of the population is served by fluoridated water. Garrett County ranks third from the last among state subdivisions for percentage of population served by fluoridated water.
- Oakland is the only municipality in Garrett County currently fluoridating the water supply. Accident had the fluoride equipment installed, but it is unused.
- In a study of children in Oakland (fluoridated) and Mtn. Lake Park (non-fluoridated) the following results were observed:

Percentage with Decay: Oakland 22; Mtn. Lake Park 38.6.

Range of Decay: Oakland 0-6 per child; Mtn. Lake Park 0-11 per child.

Mean Ratio of Decay/Missing/Filled (teeth): Oakland .63; Mtn. Lake Park 1.77.

San Francisco Walk Challenge In Final Phase

The challenge was issued nine weeks ago. The contest would pit the stamina of Garrett County Health Department employees against the strength of the workers in the offices of the Department of Social Services. Which group would be able to walk across the United States first and arrive in San Francisco, Calif.? The health department team was, in fact, the first to tag up on the west coast, make the turn, and begin the return trip to Maryland.

Joe Shaffer of the DSS challenged the health department workers. Teams aligned, donned walking shoes, and began tracking the miles covered. Of course, none of these trekkers ever left the area. Instead, they measured the miles walked along Route 50 and turned them in every two weeks for calculation. Pacing off the miles to San Francisco are 76 employees of the health department and 65 DSS workers.

What is the motivation for the competition? Strong hearts and good health, according to a Geni Uphold of the health department. "Walk-A-Weigh is the health department's walking program that has been in existence since February 1997 and has gotten a large portion of Garrett County off the couch and out walking or doing some form of aerobic activity," she said.

The health department's winning team will receive a plaque recognizing the success of its members. But the contest is not complete. An award ceremony will mark the conclusion of the challenge and prizes will be presented to the person who walked the greatest number of miles and the person who lost the most weight.

The health department is also planning a community challenge to form walking groups to challenge other walking groups. This will take place in February — Heart Health Month. For more information, persons may contact Geni Uphold or Gail Dever at the health department at 301-334-8122 or 301-895-3113.

Staying Healthy, Keeping Warm

Wood Stoves

- A stove should be burned hot twice a day for 15-30 minutes to reduce the amount of creosote buildup.
- Never burn charcoal indoors. It can give off a lethal amount of carbon monoxide.
- Have the chimney inspected regularly and cleaned as needed.
- Do not use flammable liquids to start or accelerate any fire.

Kerosene Heaters

- Be sure the heater is in good working condition. Inspect exhaust parts for carbon buildup.
- Never use fuel burning appliances without proper room venting. Burning fuel produces deadly fumes.
- Never fill a heater while it is operating or hot. Refueling should be done outdoors.

Furnace Heating

- Make sure all controls and shutoffs are in working condition, and leave all repairs to professionals.
- Inspect flue pipes and pipe seams for supports, holes, and cracks. Soot along or around seams may indicate a leak.

Farmers Union Says Check-Off Reforms Are A Big Step In The Right Direction

A slate of U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) recommendations to improve accountability in federal check-off programs is a big step in the right direction, according to the National Farmers Union (NFU).

NFU has long advocated for comprehensive check-off reforms and has endorsed the adoption of recommendations made by a special USDA task force.

"These reforms will build accountability into the check-off programs," said NFU President Leland Swenson. "Producers fund these programs and should have the right to vote them out if they are not operating in their best interests.

We urge USDA to immediately hold referendums on the pork and beef check-off since they have tens of thousands of signatures requesting a vote."

"We commend Secretary Glickman and Under Secretary Mike Dunn for backing all of the task force's recommendations," Swenson stated.

USDA Secretary Dan Glickman announced Dec. 15 he is backing all 21 recommendations of a task force set up to find ways to enhance oversight of agricultural commodity research and promotion programs. Key recommendations include holding mandatory referendums at least once every five years to determine whether to continue check-off programs and to require a super majority vote to establish new programs.

Other task force recommendations include: requiring at least one public or consumer voting member on each board; improving diversity on the boards; requiring boards to use accepted auditing standards and competitive bidding; requiring written policies on travel and expense reimbursement and providing more training. Many of the recommendations will be published for comment in the Federal Register. Others will require legislative action.

A Century Of Farm Progress And Improvement

As we begin a new century, and by popular account a new millennium, it is good to take a moment and look back at the achievements in agriculture in the last century. Here are some milestones from the past 100 years in farming.

•1900 — One farmer takes 35-40 hours of labor to 100 bushels of corn on 2 1/2 acres of land. 2000 — One farmer needs only 2 1/2 hours of labor and one acre to produce 100 bushels of corn.

•1911 — The first Farm Bureau was formed in Broome County, N.Y. 2000 — The American Farm Bureau has more than 4.95 million members in 50 states and Puerto Rico, and there are 2,800 county farm bureaus.

•1914 — The federal-state Extension service was formed, providing a valuable system of direct education for farmers. 2000 — More and more farmers use the Internet for education, information, and marketing. More than 29 percent of U.S. farms have Internet access and 47 percent use a computer.

•1930 — It takes an average worker 91 days to earn enough to pay for a family's food supply for a year. 2000 — An average worker needs only 40 work days to pay for a year's supply of food.

•1940 — One farmer produces enough food for 19 people. 2000 — One farmer produces enough food and fiber for 129 people — 101 in the United States and 28 abroad.

GC Fair Board Members Attend State Convention

The 1999 MD Association of Agricultural Fairs and Shows Convention was held recently in Hagerstown. Several Garrett County Fair board members attended the convention, where they participated in workshops and planned entertainment for the 2000 Ultimate Adventure Garrett County Fair. Several groups booked for entertainment were: Rick K, The Vogues, Texas (the band), and Heaven Bound.

Board members entered several state contests. The Garrett County Fair Premium Book won first prize. A poster, scrapbook, and education display made by board members each won second prizes.

County members and friends attending the convention were: Delmar Yoder, Ralph and Glenna Miller, Kathy and Denny Margroff, Gale Ringer, George Keller, Don Sealing, Janet Patterson, Doris Cooper, and Becky and Dave Tasker.

The fair stockholders also had their yearly dinner meeting recently, at which five board members were elected. The meeting took place at the Bittinger fire hall. Stockholders re-elected were Doris Cooper, Dorsey Guard, George Keller, Ralph Miller, and Freddie VanSickle, each for another four-year term. A business meeting followed dinner and the election.

Fair board members, family, and friends recently gathered for a covered dish dinner at the Deep Creek fire hall. The 2000 Ultimate Adventure Fair plans are under way at this time.

The United States Department of Agriculture has a definition of what constitutes a small farm. They define a small farm as a farm with a gross farm income of less than $50,000 per year.

Many people who are not farmers would be surprised to learn that most farms in the United States are small farms. The traditional family farm continues to disappear and is being replaced by housing developments, light industry, and small farms (farmettes). The USDA estimates that about 71 percent of the farms in the U.S. are classified as small farms. This trend holds true for the state of Maryland as of 1992 when the census showed 75 percent of the farms as small with 54 percent of owners having a principle occupation other than farming, and 58 percent of operators working off the farm.

Terry E. Poole, Extension agent, Agricultural Science, in Frederick County, has published a series of small-scale farming fact sheets with advice, realistic options, and assistance available to small farmers. In his opinion, most small farm operators come from non-farm backgrounds. By not having any previous farm experience, small farm operators are in critical need of basic/fundamental information on farming and technical assistance to help get the farm business operation started in the right direction. Poole lists government supported agencies that provide technical and educational support as well as other resources that are available to assist small farmers.

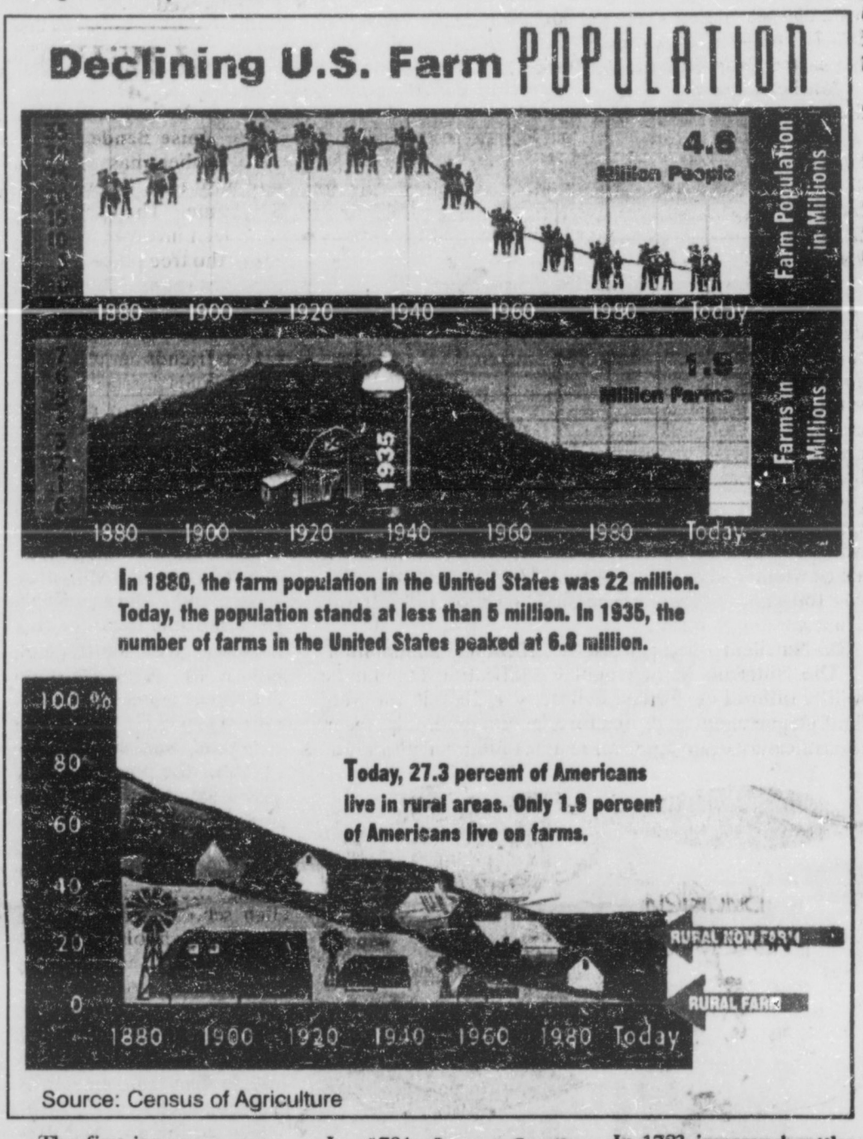
Other sources of information include agricultural newspapers and magazines, books on agriculture, the Internet, and other producers. Joining an agricultural association or organization is a good way to meet other producers and share knowledge and experience.

In his first fact sheet, "Ag 101: Introduction to Small-Scale Farming," Poole discusses what a small farm should produce, saying there is no simple answer, and while some small farm operators are simply looking for a way to maintain the farm tax assessment on their property, most are seeking a way to produce a modest profit on their farm. Due to limitations of small farms, operators need to look for enterprises that involve high value crops or animals. They need to produce commodities that the large farmers are not producing, since small farms are not going to be able to compete with them.

Many small farms in this country are classified as limited resource farms, meaning that the operators have little to no money. Many operators in other areas have moved onto their farm from an urban area, farm on a part-time basis, and work at an off-farm job that provides the primary source of income. Poole lists some problems small farmers must overcome in order to be profitable, or in the least, not lose money. He provides hints on how small farm operators can be resourceful and business smart, making sound business decisions for the farm operation.

He says small farm operators need to look at exploiting already available markets, or perhaps even develop new niche markets. Niche markets provide products that are not commonly available from other producers and have the potential to be very profitable. The secret to success in this marketing venture is to be one of the first to exploit the market. Once everyone else starts selling the product, it is no longer a niche market and the price drops.

In addition to Poole's "Introduction to Small-Scale Farming," other fact sheets include "Sources of Technical Assistance," "Basics of Soil and Plant Fertility," "Soil Organic Matter," "Pest Management," "Root Cellars," "Direct Marketing," "Advertising and Promoting Your Product," "Specialty Crops: Oriental Vegetables," "High-Value Enterprises," and others. His fact sheets can be viewed on the Internet at http://www.agnr.umd.edu/users/frederick/pubs/ or can be ordered from the Frederick Cooperative Extension Service, 330 Montevue Lane, Frederick, MD 21702-8200, phone 301-694-1594, or from the University of Maryland, Publications Office, Symons Hall, College Park, MD 20742.



The first ice cream cone was made on September 22, 1903 in New York.

In 1784 James Small invented the iron plow in England.

In 1783 improved cattle, probably Shorthorns, were introduced in England.

My View From The Barn Door

by Bernice Kepple

As we enter the year 2000, I'm going to take a big step. That step is to finally offer a column about much of the farming done in our area and elsewhere in this nation — small farming. This will be a column to help those who are small-scale farmers, part-time farmers, alternative farmers, large-scale gardeners, or small-scale livestock raisers, such as 4-H and FFA members. This may not be a weekly column, but it will run often, and I am open to suggestions for topics, questions you need answered, and information you'd like to share. In the column I will try to offer sources for information that will be helpful, either printed material or Internet sites, and have your questions answered by those who know.

What I would like to do is give the column a trial period to see if the information is useful to you, the readers, and if you'd like it to continue. Please share your input with me so that together we can help small farmers in this country survive. It may be an impossible task, but it's worth trying. Farmers deserve to be counted; we're now ghosts as far as the U.S. Census Bureau is concerned — virtually invisible. But wouldn't it be nice if we could come back from the dead to haunt those bureaucrats who see large agribusiness operations as the only future for agriculture in the United States?

How Much Water Do Crops Need?

To say the least, it has been a very mild winter. Although most of us would rather not be covered up with snow, we really need some huge snowfalls to restore the ground water supply for our crops. I think you will be surprised at the large amount of water needed to produce crops. The following gallons of water are needed to produce 1 pound of dry matter: Alfalfa-101.2 gal., soybeans-77.5 gal., oats-69.9 gal., and corn-41.8 gal. My first guess would have been that corn would require more water; however, alfalfa needs almost 2.5 times as much water to produce 1 pound of dry matter. 16 tons of corn silage would yield about 5.6 tons of dry matter; therefore, 468,160 gallons of water is needed to produce the 16 tons. That is a lot of water.

The Nutrient Management Certification Examination

Developing a Debt Payment Plan

If you find yourself with more bills than your monthly income can cover, develop a debt payment plan.

Once you develop the plan stick with it until all your debts are paid. A debt payment plan will only work if you really want to get out of debt and are willing to start right now. Paying a little back is better than doing nothing or just worrying about the problem. Paying back a small amount will give you a sense of control. It will start you on your way to solving your financial problems. To set up a debt payment plan, follow these steps:

1. Find out who you owe and how much you owe.
2. Decide how much you can pay back and when you can pay it back.
3. Set up a plan for paying back your debts.
4. Discuss your plan with your creditors.
5. Control your spending by sticking with your debt payment plan until debts are repaid.
6. Occasionally, look over your plan to see if you are keeping up with your debts and your daily living expenses. If there is a change in your income, you need to raise or lower your monthly payments accordingly. Getting out of financial trouble is not easy. You have to admit that you have financial problems and really want to solve those problems. You have to make up your mind that you will pay your debts within a specified length of time. You have to be willing to discipline yourself to pay back the money you borrowed.

Good Will From Goodwill

by Linda Beitzel and Mary Louise Bender

December has been a very busy time in the nursing home. The residents have been involved in decorating the tree placed in the activities room. Volunteers have helped get the Christmas cards addressed to send to friends and families. Our annual Christmas cookie was a tasty and aromatic success!

The December birthday party was hosted by the Zion Lutheran Church in Accident. Birthday honorees were Annie Whiteman, James Cayton, Margaret Lapp, and Myrna Kahl. Each one able to attend the party was given a corsage of poinsettias. A program of Christmas music accompanied by piano, organ, or trombone was enjoyed by all. After the program, they served ice cream, cupcakes, and punch.

The annual Christmas party is hosted by the Springs Mennonite Church. High school students from Mt. View School did a program of Christmas music and Bible readings. Each resident was given a gift. They served a variety of sandwiches, cheeses, crackers, cookies, and punch to residents.

We had many carolers filling the halls with Christmas music. Groups included World Lighthouse children, and another group led by Ruth M. Yoder. Alyne Ladd's daughter, Barbara Elster, hosted a Christmas sing-along. Groups from Grantsville, Ross Glotfelty, and the Brethren Church from Loch Lynn entertained beautifully with caroling in the halls.

Instead of our usual craft day on December 22, the residents wrapped gifts for the Union Rescue Mission. Gifts were bought with money which we had made from selling our crafts.

The staff from Goodwill wants to thank family and friends for the special treats that we received over the holidays.

Kevin Yoder and family want to let everyone know how much they appreciate all the support during this time of their son's illness. Let's continue to remember the family in prayer over the next couple of months.

The Retirement Village and Assisted Living enjoyed a wonderful Christmas program. The program was given by Oak Dale Church. After the program everyone had a great time of fellowship with each other.

We want to welcome to our home Gary Friend and Myrna Kahl from Friendsville, and Rebecca and John Teets from Eglon, W.Va.

Our sympathies to the families and friends of Joseph Cangialosi, Lena McClintock, and Arnold Moses, who passed away in December.

We have a special recognition we didn't want to let by without mentioning. Once again, Jack Smouse has repaired and mended a remarkable amount of clothing. In six months in 1998, he counted 131 pieces and in 1999, 374 pieces. Another great job Jack, thanks for your help!

December programs were presented by the following:

Maple Glen, Joe DiSimone, Lani Reedy and friend, Mary Downton, a group from Mt. View, a large varied group of the community under the direction of Ezra Yoder, Grantsville Community Choir directed by Gloria Martin, St. Michael's Choir, Sand Spring Church of God, Jim Miller and Marty Duncan, Mr. and Mrs. Keefer, Frank and Helen West, Trinity Assembly of God, World Lighthouse, Bell Choir of Bethany, Krista Yoder, Full Gospel, Oak Dale Youth, Cherry Glade Youth, Swanton Mennonite, Sommer's family, Glorybound Singers, Maranatha Women's Ministry, Betty Jo Wiley, Lillian Guthrie, and Dry Run.

Jill Devrick, Mark Utterback United In September Ritual

Mark Utterback, son of Edward and Mary Utterback of Aurora, W.Va., and Jill Devrick, daughter of Ronald and June Devrick of Danville, Ky., were united in marriage on September 5, 1999, at St. Peter's Catholic Church in Oakland. The ceremony was conducted by Father Jerry Knoll of Notre Dame, Ind., and Father Jerome McKenna of Kingwood, W.Va.

The scriptures were read by Noah McCoy of Morgantown, W.Va., and Joy Sims of Silver Spring. Eucharistic gifts were presented by Chris and Debbie Derico of Bridgeport, W.Va. Soloist Bryan Hagley of Frazier's Bottom, W.Va., and organist Muriel Franc of Oakland provided the ceremony music.

Attending the bride as maid of honor was Koneda Devrick of Point Pleasant, W.Va. Bridesmaids were Jennifer Stadler of Denver, Colo., Sharon Shaffer of Farmington, W.Va., Kelly Smith of Columbia, and Katie Utterback of Morgantown. Chelcy Bowers, daughter of Tim and Kathy Bowers of Columbus, Ohio, and Therese Mance, daughter of Tom and Mary Jo Mance of Wauwatosa, Wisc., served as junior bridesmaids. Flower girls were Haley and Katherine Simpson, daughters of Michael and Joee Simpson of Barnesville, Ohio, and Rebecca Zerkle, daughter of Stewart and Renee Zerkle of Hartford, W.Va.

Bridal attendants were attired in floor-length A-line dresses with matching short-sleeved jackets made of tiara crepe. Each bridesmaid wore one of the five jewel-tone colors of blue, green, red, violet, and teal. The dresses were constructed by the bride's mother, June Devrick. Junior bridesmaids and flower girls wore dresses constructed by Jean Blaine of Pomeroy, Ohio, that coordinated with the bridesmaid's dresses. The bride and her attendants carried bouquets made up of white lilies, roses, bouvardia, snapdragons, and ivy tied with gold ribbons. The flower girls carried gold baskets filled with white rose petals.

Serving his brother as best man was John Utterback of Aurora. Groomsmen were Matt Utterback of Herndon, Va., Rob Shaffer of Farmington, Brian Spiker of Kingwood, and Aaron Devrick of Huntington, W.Va. Jeffrey Zerkle, son of Stewart and Renee Zerkle of Hartford, served as ring bearer. The groom and his attendants were attired in black After Six tuxedos with black and gold brocade striped vests. They all wore white roses as boutonnieres. The ring bearer carried a white box decorated with white beaded trim containing the wedding rings.

Escorted down the aisle by her father, Ron Devrick, the bride wore a Mon Cheri floor-length gown featuring a hand-embroidered and beaded bodice with off-the-shoulder sleeves and a detachable train. A fingertip veil with blusher adorned the beaded and embroidered tiara headpiece. The mother of the bride chose a navy ballerina- length dress with hand-crocheted lace bodice, while the groom's mother was dressed in a navy crepe de chine dress and matching jacket.

A dinner and dance reception was held at Canaan Valley Resort following the ceremony. Tim and Shawn Morgan of Bridgeport, W.Va., hosted guests at Canaan during bridal party pictures. The invocation before dinner was given by John Bumgarner of Gallipolis Ferry, W.Va. Master of ceremonies for the reception was Don Brake of Inwood, W.Va., who coordinated all dance music. Flute soloist Marcie Simms of Morgantown provided special music during the reception.

The wedding cake, made by Heather Thorne of Maysville, W.Va., consisted of three white cakes with white icing on a central garden-style cake stand adorned with silk ivy and lilies, and two chocolate satellite cakes with white icing. All cakes were embellished with white icing roses and ribbons.

For their wedding trip, the couple spent two weeks exploring Sydney and Coffs Harbour, Australia. They reside in Aurora, and the groom is the special projects manager for York Bronze Corporation in Kingwood, while the bride is a senior product specialist for SoftMed Systems Inc., based in Bethesda.

The groom is the grandson of Aurelia Utterback of Webster Groves, Mo., and the late Edward Utterback, as well as Dr. Andrew Mance of Oakland and the late Elizabeth Mance. The bride is the granddaughter of Harold and Naomi Bumgarner of New Haven, W.Va., as well as Ruby Devrick of Point Pleasant, and the late Cecil Devrick.

Marriage Permits Recently Issued

Two couples applied for their marriage licenses this week, according to David Martin, clerk of Garrett County Circuit Court.

One couple requested that their names not be published. The other couple was David Wayne McKenzie, 29, and Latricia Marie Hetz, 24, both of Grantsville.

Friends For A Quarter Century Meet Each Other For First Time

by Peggy Santamaria

Shirley Higdon and Ruie Richardson have been friends for over 25 years. Though Shirley lives in Garrett County and Ruie's home is Marionette, Wisc., the two women keep in close touch by means of frequent letters and phone calls. However, though these devoted companions have helped each other through some difficult times, they had never met until several months ago.

It was a surprise visit from Ruie that finally brought these friends together after so many years of correspondence. "I began writing Ruie when I saw her name and address in a craft magazine. We began our friendship by exchanging craft patterns and recipes," Shirley explained.

Soon they began sharing information about themselves, their families, and their lives. A bond developed between the women as they shared thoughts, words, and ideas across the miles. "In 1974 when I was going through five weeks of treatments for cancer, Ruie wrote to me every day. She gave me great support, which I needed at the time," Shirley recalled.

Ruie's correspondence provided a good home remedy for her friend Shirley. "She sent me so many patterns and recipes I could have written a book. This was good for me because it kept my mind occupied and on something else besides my cancer," she added.

Very difficult times also challenged Ruie during these years of correspondence. Her sister was in need of a kidney, and Ruie volunteered to be the donor. "This was such a caring thing for her to do. But that's just the way Ruie is," Shirley stated.

In 25 years, much has changed in the lives of both women and their families. They were there for each other and shared the good news and the trying times of child-rearing. They told each other of Cub Scout meetings, Boy Scout projects, and achieving Eagle Scout standing.

MEETING FACE-TO-FACE for the first time after being pen pals for 25 years was a treat for both Garrett County resident Shirley Higdon, left, and long-time friend Ruie Richardson of Marionette, Wis.

Their children grew up, went off to college, or started careers. As mothers, they each understood what the other was experiencing. "Over the years we have shared the plans and ideas for both our daughters' weddings and the births of my two grandsons and her two grandsons," Shirley said.

Often the women wrote about visiting each other "some time." But that time just didn't materialize. Not until last fall. "Ruie and her husband were going on vacation to North Carolina. When they reached Ohio, they decided it wouldn't take them too far out of the way to come visit me in Maryland," Shirley explained.

A phone call came to the Higdon residence and Shirley and her family prepared for the arrival. "I made posters saying 'Ruie, Turn Here,' to put at the intersection and at the end of our lane — with balloons," she said.

The two women, friends for a quarter of a century, finally met for the first time. "It was just great. We talked and talked. There was just so much to talk about," Shirley described.

In all too short a time the friends parted. They said their goodbyes and spoke of maybe getting together next summer. "We won't wait another 25 years," Shirley stated with certainty.

McDonald's To Host Spirit Night For Bloomington

Bloomington School's eighth grade class will celebrate "Spirit Night" at McDonald's in Westernport on Thursday evening, Jan. 13, 4-7 p.m. The class will receive a portion of the proceeds from sales during this three hour span.

There will also be a "coupon wheel" in the dining area offering chances to win McDonald's coupons. In addition, a dessert will be available with certain purchases. "Sharon Cutter, manager at McDonald's, has indicated that she would offer a free small sundae with the purchase of a value meal," said school principal James K. Morris.

For this special fundraising event, there will also be limited delivery of orders. "With the assistance of Eric Mills, McDonald's will be accepting phone-in orders for people working at Westvaco, with free delivery," Morris added. The phone number to place orders from Westvaco is 301-359-9165.

Profits from the event will be used for the eighth grade end-of-the-year activities. Everyone is invited to take part in the McDonald's Spirit Night on January 13 and to support Bloomington's eighth graders.

Infections of the Urinary Tract Are Common In Women

Up to half of all women in the US experience uncomplicated urinary tract infections (UTIs). Infections typically occur in the bladder (called cystitis) or urethra - the passage from bladder to outside the body. UTI symptoms may include pain in the back or lower abdomen; burning with urination; and frequent urination.

UTIs are the second most common disorder leading to a physician's office visit. Much of the cost of UTI care is for antibiotics.

A home-use test, to detect UTIs is available. These strips are similar to the ones used in physicians' offices. A strip is dipped into a clean urine specimen and evaluated against a color chart. If a test is positive according to the color reaction, the user should contact a physician for further evaluation and treatment.

Packing it all away?

How exciting to "deck the halls"...how sad to pack it all away. Christmas is so emotionally dazzling. As we decorate our houses and bake special goodies in the warm kitchen, we find energy we only seem to possess at that special time. We sparkle and laugh as our spirits are warmed by the exhilaration of the season. Must we be so sad as the holidays end?

You know, we really don't have to pack it all away, literally or figuratively. Perhaps, there is a special ornament that warms your heart or a simple angel. Display it where you will see it throughout the year...where it will bring to your mind and heart the spiritual sparkle of Christmas. Jesus said in John 13:17..."If you know these things, blessed are you if you do them." Surely He meant throughout the year.

Remember to attend your local house of worship regularly this year. There is no better reminder of the Christmas season.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

HOW NOT TO PRAY
January 9, 2000

Background Scripture:
Matthew 6:1-15.
Devotional Reading:
Luke 11:1-13.

Inventor Thomas A. Edison was once asked about whether all his failures to invent a workable light bulb didn't discourage him and cause him to give up. The inventor replied that he didn't think of all those efforts as 1,000 failures. He regarded them as discovering 1,000 ways not to make a light bulb!

Sometime, perhaps we ought to take that same attitude with our prayer lives. Before Jesus taught his disciples how to pray, he first instructed them on how not to pray: "And when you pray, you must not be like the hypocrites; for they love to stand and pray in the synagogues and at the street corners, that they may be seen by men" (Mat. 6:5). "And in praying do not heap up empty phrases as the Gentiles do; for they think they will be heard for their many words" (6:7).

Jesus is aware that his disciples have some negative images of what prayer is. He is telling them that, what they see accepted as prayer in their environment is not real prayer.

First, he teachers them that prayer is a matter of humility, not pride. "Beware of practicing your piety before men in order to be seen by them" (6:1). The purpose of piety in general and prayer in particular is not to draw attention to ourselves. Yet, that is obviously what motivates people to give contributions (aims), so that they may win the admiration of people.

Like Hypocrites

The term hypocrites appears in verse 5: "...you must not be like the hypocrites." Until recently, I thought that when Jesus spoke of hypocrites he meant people who pretend to be what they are not. Actually, Jesus did not likely use a word in Aramaic or Greek that means what the English word hypocrite means: one who acts a false part in life. It comes from the Greek theater and means one who acts a part in a play, but not insincerely.

GCMH Honors Two Employees

DORIS BRANT

CLEMIE McLAUGHLIN

Doris Brant and Clemie McLaughlin were recognized by Garrett County Memorial Hospital as the Employees' Choice Award recipients for October and November, respectively.

Brant has been employed at the hospital for 23 years and is a clerk in the admissions office. "Doris' many years of admitting experience has made her a valuable member of our team. She is well liked by both patients and staff," commented Rita Durst, director of Admissions/Patient Accounts.

"I have been at GCMH for a lot of years and there have been many changes," Brant said of her years at GCMH. "We've gone from handwritten and typed forms to new computerized sign-ins. The most wonderful thing about GCMH is the people. Employees and staff, along with all the patients and volunteers, have made GCMH a successful community hospital."

Brant has three daughters and a son. One daughter is a registered nurse and computer specialist, another is a financial advisor, and the third is a housewife. Her son is a police officer. "I love being a mother and grandmother," remarked Brant. I have four grandsons and five granddaughters with another expected in February, and of course, they are all perfect!" In her spare time, Brant appreciates the Garrett County outdoors. She enjoys fishing, walking, bicycling, and swimming.

McLaughlin has been a patient accounts representative at GCMH for five years. "Clemie is the ideal person for the receptionist position in our office," said Durst. "She is friendly and helpful to patients who call or come into our office."

McLaughlin said she enjoys being a mother. She and her husband, Kenneth, have a son, Richard, who is in the Navy and is stationed in Norfolk, Va., and a daughter, Kendra, a student at Southern Middle School. In her spare time, McLaughlin enjoys walking, reading, going to the beach, and attending sports events, especially when Kendra is playing.

"Receiving this award lets you know your co-workers and peers realize the importance of your job. I feel every employee at GCMH deserves this award. As for working at GCMH, I'm proud to be a member of the team that continues to provide our community with excellent health care," remarked McLaughlin.

"We are very fortunate to have employees of Doris' and Clemie's caliber in our department," concluded Durst.

MSP Arrest 157 For DWI Over Holiday Weekend

Hundreds of additional Maryland state troopers were on patrol this past weekend and welcomed the coming of the new year by arresting 157 allegedly drunk drivers. Last year, during a four-day holiday weekend, 129 motorists were arrested for driving while intoxicated (DWI).

In preparation for the new year and associated Y2K events, over 1,200 troopers were on duty, mostly patrolling Maryland's highways. Each of the 23 Maryland State Police barracks reported making DWI arrests.

DWI arrests in 1999 are expected to exceed 25,000 statewide. In 1998, 24,510 motorists were arrested in Maryland for DWI. Over 2,000 of those arrested were under the age of 21.

In an effort to rid Maryland's highways of drunk and drugged drivers, sobriety check points will continue to be scheduled across the state throughout the year. Last year, Maryland State Police conducted 14 sobriety check points across the state in conjunction with local police, and have observed well over 7,000 cars. These checks alone resulted in over 60 DWI arrests, and have included arrests for suspended/revoked driver's licenses, persons arrested for possession of drugs, outstanding fugitive warrants, recovered stolen vehicles, and have even resulted in arrests for underage drinking.

While the number of deaths has decreased in recent years, alcohol remains a significant contributing factor to motor vehicle crashes. During this New Year's holiday weekend at least eight people died on Maryland highways. Five of the deaths were alcohol related. This compares with five deaths, one alcohol related, last year.

In 1998, according to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, impaired drivers were responsible for almost 16,000 fatalities nationwide, accounting for 305,000 reported injuries and an estimated 1.5 million arrests. For the last few years in Maryland, nearly one-third of fatal crashes involved alcohol.

TAX TIP #1
Must you file a tax return?
The IRS may not want you to file a 1999 tax return. Generally, you must file only if your income exceeds these levels:
• Married filing jointly: $12,700
• Singles: $7,050
• Head of household: $9,100
Higher levels apply once you're 65, and special rules apply in certain situations. For details, give us a call.

MANY NEW MEMBERS of the Deep Creek Lake Lions Club were installed recently because of a disbanding of the Deep Creek Lioness Club and most of those members joining the Lions. The Lionesses, who supported numerous local projects and charities for a number of years, voted last July, with strong encouragement from Lions International, to merge with the Lions Club. The recent installation ceremony was conducted by Lions District Governor Clare M. Newcomer, Hagerstown, pictured above far left. Pictured second from left is DC Lions Club president Del Carpenter. The new Lions include former Lioness president M. Sue Shockey and her officers, Nita Roberts, Bea Crosco, Shirley Panther, Peggy Nelson, Jane Frawley, Robin Shaffer, Goldie Shugars, JoAnne Glotfelty, and Sandy Thoman. Other Lionesses installed were: Clara Anderson, Kathy Berger, Marion Boehmer, Carol Cervi, Sue Eckhart, Mary Ann Fink, Mary Foley, Marjorie Funk, Terri Gregg, Kay Howard, Jane Hughes, Lisa Kinney, Dorothy Leuba, Betty Malloy, Penny Merkle, Gayle Miller, Susan Shockey, Betty Snee, Ruth Umbel, Phyllis Vitez, Robin Weaver, and Judy Wilt. Three other new members installed were Diane Wolfe, Jarrod Hauser, and Douglas Gaither. Among the new projects for the Lions Club this year is the coordination and operation of the annual Highland Festival, slated for June.

Thank You!
We would like to thank everyone at Yough Glades School for helping make our Christmas extra special.
May God Bless You All.

Lecture Series Sets Program On Social Security

"Social Security: The Impact of Reform" is the topic of the keynote address of the first installment of the third annual Women's Lecture Series, set for Thursday, Jan. 13, at 6:30 p.m. at the Will O' the Wisp. The dinner program presentation is designed to provide low-wage earners who will be especially dependent on social security with a better understanding of the Social Security system in order to make suitable retirement plans.

The speaker is Michael Anzick, senior policy analyst in the Social Security Administration's Office of Retirement Policy in Washington, D.C. He is responsible for working on a variety of solvency issues as well as developing and analyzing policy options for promoting retirement income security for Social Security beneficiaries, particularly women and low-income beneficiaries.

Anzick has 10 years of experience as a policy analyst and researcher on health and income security issues. Prior to joining SSA he worked as a research associate at George Washington University's National Health Policy Forum, focusing on health and welfare issues. He has also worked as a policy analyst at the American Academy of Actuaries, a research analyst at the Employee Benefit Research Institute, and a program analyst for the SSA's 1989 Advisory Council on Social Security.

Anzick holds a master's degree in Sociology from Virginia Tech, Blacksburg, Va., and a bachelor of science degree from Shepherd College, Shepherdstown, W.Va., in political science.

The program is sponsored by the Garrett County Branch of Business and Professional Women and the American Association of University of Women. Registration is $10 per person, including dinner and handouts, and may be made by calling Pam Glotfelty at 301-334-0585. Arts at a Glance Eight Days a Week .....

Looking Forward

A fair wind blows for the arts as we enter the new year.

The National Endowment for the Arts enters a new century of support for the arts at the federal level, despite late twentieth-century attempts to abolish the agency. Maryland continues to emerge as an exemplary model for arts development at the state level, with visionary support by the Glendening administration for cultural development. Within Garrett County, both established and new arts organizations are pursuing ambitions and thoughtful agendas to integrate the arts into the community and to broaden public participation in the creative music, dance, theatre, writing, storytelling, photography, painting, and other art forms.

Through the arts we explore, share, and celebrate our diversity and our common humanity. Here's a glimpse of the arts scene poised for emergence in Garrett County, 2000:

•The Spruce Forest Artisan Village enters its 33rd season of artisan demonstrations in the woods and restored log village adjacent Penn Alps in Grantsville. In 2000, Spruce Forest will introduce periodic musician showcases and a new February Cherries and Chill Festival to its long-established schedule of presenting the annual Summerfest and Quilt Show, storytelling, folk art, and the annual Christmas in the Village celebration.

•The Garrett Lakes Arts Festival is making final adjustments to an expanded season of public arts presentations developed to include drama, ballet, jazz, dance, bluegrass and country music, classical piano, symphony, and folk music, as well as workshops in dance, creative writing, and the fine arts. GLAF's 14th season opens in March with the National Players presenting Shakespearean drama to school and public audiences.

•Rehearsals for a community theatre production Thorton Wilder's Our Town are now under way at Our Town Theatre in Oakland. Other scheduled presentations at the theatre for 2000 include Quilters in April and Seascape in June. A recent grant award providing funding support for a new insulated roof will facilitate a wide range of activities at the theatre during the heat of the summer as the organization enters its third annual season since opening with Lang Alone in 1998.

•The first 2000 presentation of fine arts in the Art Gallery at Garrett Community College opens next week with an exhibit of conceptual art titled Farside Charms. Exhibit space at the gallery is fully booked for the year with scheduled displays of paintings, ceramics, pottery, and mixed media. Meantime, the Garrett County Arts Council is continuing to coordinate rotating exhibits of local artists at the Visitor Center in McHenry.

•The Greater Oakland Business Association is planning the third annual Little Yough Summer Concert Series of outdoor music in Oakland, with free weekly presentations scheduled to begin in July and conclude in August.

•Music at Penn Alps will open a new season of weekly Saturday evening presentations of classical music in Grantsville in May.

•The Puzzley Run Folklife Center is developing plans to present a new, expanded season of folk music, bluegrass, gospel, barn floor square dancing, and other explorations of National Pike heritage at the Bietschehof Farm west of Grantsville.

•A Valentine's Concert in February is the first scheduled offering of the Garrett Choral Society in 2000. The society's final scheduled presentation for the year will be its traditional Christmas Concert, slated for presentation December 15-17.

•The Accident Cultural and Historical Society will soon distribute invitations for community participation in the annual Independence Day Exhibition of Art in Accident. The 2000 ACHS schedule also includes a free Concert in the Park with the Accident Concert Band, a community variety show, the annual Christmas in Flowery Vale and Holiday Festival of Music, and other cultural activities.

•Look for Oakland's Ecumenical Youth Ministry to present a special Concert for Peace on Memorial Day, in addition to other musicals for the young and young at heart in 2000.

•A new collaboration of the Garrett County Arts Council, Garrett Lakes Arts Festival, and Garrett Community College will make possible an expanded nine-day Chautauqua Arts Festival at McHenry this summer. This free festival "under the big tent" will include daily concerts, art exhibits, readings of poetry and creative writing, improvisions, and a dramatic exploration of the Civil War in Maryland, with scholars provided through arrangement with the Maryland Humanities Council. The 2000 Chautauqua Arts Festival is slated July 1-9.

•Other arts possibilities in 2000: construction of a long-anticipated amphitheater at Deep Creek Lake State Park, continued collaborations making feasible the establishment of an indoor Garrett County performing arts center, development of a new community arts center by the Garrett County Arts Council, organization of a new McHenry Highland Festival by the Deep Creek Lions Club, local presentations of scores of traditional and new community celebrations and homecoming festivals, innovative arts initiatives in the schools and at the community college, and (last, but not least) reorganization and expansion of the annual Autumn Glory Festival, with events scheduled throughout the county.

4-H Club News

COUNTRY KIDS
by Anissa Jamison
Reporter

The December meeting of the Country Kids 4-H Club was called to order by president Sarah Pysell. Vanessa Logan began the meeting with a report on baking sugar cookies. Andrew Harvey followed with a report on the fruit baskets that club members made and distributed in the local community.

Under new business, members are reminded that market beef must be tagged, and papers and cards be submitted by Saturday, Jan. 15. Enrollment forms are due at the January club meeting.

The annual 4-H Ski Day is set for Friday, Feb. 4. Friends and parents are welcome to participate, and it is suggested that participants bring eight or nine dollars each for rentals and tickets.

Arthur Pysell adjourned the meeting, and then experienced club members each shared something that they entered in the fair to show new members what to expect during the coming fair.

The meeting ended as club members made Christmas ornaments and shared refreshments.

Earns Master's At Shenandoah

Heather Livengood, Springs, Pa., graduated from Shenandoah University, Winchester, Va., December 17 with a master of science degree in occupational therapy. She is a member of the Pi Theta Epsilon (national honor society for occupational therapy) and Omicron Delta Kappa (national leadership honor society).

While at Shenandoah, she served on the Student Government Association as senator for two years and treasurer of Executive Council, and was the current chair of Academic Honor Code sub-committee. She was also an initial organizer of a Pre-OT organization during undergraduate study at the university. She has accepted a position with the Western Maryland Health System, Cumberland.

Livengood is the daughter of Terry and Sharon Livengood and granddaughter of Warren and Josephine Oester, Salisbury, Pa., and Willard and Alvina Livengood of Springs. She is a 1995 graduate of Salisbury-Elk Lick High School.

Prepaid College Trust Enrollment Period Continues

The Maryland Prepaid College Trust's current enrollment period continues through Tuesday, Feb. 29, with current contract prices remaining in effect until that deadline. The enrollment period to follow is tentatively slated to begin in November, with contract prices to be adjusted at that time to reflect the changes in tuition and mandatory fees for the 2001 - 2002 academic year.

By the time of the passing of the December 30, 1999 deadline for tax benefits, more than 200 parents and/or grandparents had taken advantage of "last minute" 1999 tax benefits offered by the Trust. Those who did so were eligible to make a payment for at least the amount they wanted to subtract from their income, up to $2,500 per contract.

"By moving our enrollment period to start in the fall, we are able to offer the last minute tax break each year," said Joan Marshall, executive director of the Maryland Prepaid College Trust. "We know that many people look for the last minute tax deductions at the end of the year. Why not take advantage of the state tax benefits coupled with the terrific college savings offered by the program?"

With the new applications, there are currently more than 3,900 participants in the program. For more information about the Maryland Prepaid College Trust, interested persons may call 1-888-4MD-GRAD or consult its web site at www.prepaid.usmd.edu.

Q. I have a matching green plate and bowl that were given to me by an elderly friend. I guess the dishes are more than 50 years old. The marks on the bottom are different. One says "Catalina," and the other says "Catalina Island."

A. The Catalina Pottery was founded on Santa Catalina Island, off the coast of California, in 1927. Between 1930 and 1937, the company made a full line of color-glazed dishes in several patterns.

Gladding, McBean and Co. bought the Catalina Pottery in 1937. For ten years, Gladding, McBean made some of the Catalina lines using the Catalina trademarks.

No matter which company made your Catalina dishes, they are popular with collectors.

Q. I collect lipstick holders. I haven't been able to learn much about them. Most of mine are the standard shapes, either tube-shaped or with four straight sides. Many are made of metal filigree with gaudy stones. I also have a few plastic novelty lipstick tubes. Can you give me any information?

A. Lipstick tubes with push-up or swivel mechanisms became popular during the 1930s. Costume jewelers and couturiers became involved in designing both single tubes and tubes combined with another accessory – a mirror, watch, flashlight, lighter, perfume flacon, pen, compact or tiny powder puff.

Q. My grandfather bought a brass table lamp at a Boston pawn shop during the 1940s or '50s. The shade is made of sheets of white glass under a decorative brass frame. The mark on the bottom of the lamp says "Bradley & Hubbard Co."

A. Bradley & Hubbard worked in Meriden, Conn., from about 1895 to 1930. The company made brass lamps and other brass items. Your lamp would sell for more than $500.

Home Tips

CARING FOR MARBLE — Cultured marble is easy to keep clean and shiny. A product called GelGloss may be used to provide a protective coat; it's similar to a furniture polish and may be applied at regular intervals depending on use. Liquid cleaners may also be used, but take care not to use powders that contain abrasive elements. They will damage the surface. Ellen B., Stroudsburg, PA.

REMOVING ADHESIVE — Rubber cement thinner (available at most art and office supply stores) removes most adhesives used on labels. Scrape off as much of the paper from the label as possible. Apply the thinner and rub with a cloth or paper towel. It works great on glass, Formica and most nonporous surfaces, but will cloud many plastics. Bob R., Anchorage, Alaska.

Household Help
by John Amantea

Q. The energy bills on the house I bought last summer have been running awfully high this winter. Do you have some general guidelines for improving insulation? — Dominic A., Wilmette, Ill.

According to the U.S. Department of Energy, you should consider insulating your home if you:

- Have an older home and haven't added insulation. (In a recent survey, only 20 percent of homes built before 1980 were well insulated).
- Find yourself too cold in the winter or too hot in the summer. By adding insulation, you create a more uniform temperature.
- Build a new house or an addition, or install new siding or roofing.
- Pay excessive energy bills (you obviously qualify).
- Are bothered by noises outside; insulation can help muffle sound.
- Are concerned about the impact of energy use upon the environment.

If you decide to add insulation, the easiest and cheapest way to go is to add insulation to your attic. To find out whether you have enough attic insulation, measure the thickness of insulation. If there is less than 7 inches of fiber glass or rock wool, or 6 inches of cellulose, you could probably benefit from adding more.

If there is ample insulation in the attic and your home still feels drafty and cold in the winter or too hot in the summer, you may need to add insulation to the exterior walls as well. This is a more expensive measure and normally requires a contractor.

You may also need to add insulation to your crawl space. Either the walls or the floor about the crawl space should be insulated.

A few insulation tips:

- Use higher density insulation, such as rigid foam boards, in cathedral ceilings and on exterior walls.
- Ventilation is very important for providing moisture control and reducing your summer cooling bills. Install attic vents along the entire ceiling cavity to help ensure proper airflow from the soffit to the attic.
- Follow the product instructions on installation and wear the proper protective gear when installing insulation.

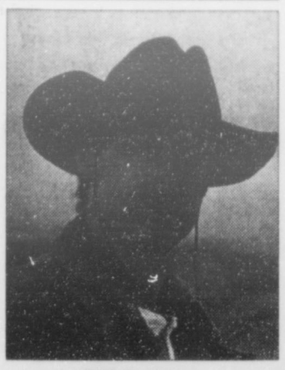
COVER STORY

Pullman bows as director with a pristine Virginian

By John Crook
©TVData Features Syndicate



Bill Pullman

TNT offered actor Bill Pullman a chance to direct The Virginian four years ago, but he says he wanted to get it all right.

It shows.

Pullman's TV adaptation of Owen Wister's archetypal Western classic, which debuts Sunday, Jan. 9, is a masterfully pristine rendering of the author's spare but eloquent prose. Diane Lane, Colm Feore (Storm of the Century), Dennis Weaver and James Drury (star of the '60s series version of the story) co-star.

"There is a real directness in that prose. While there is a way in which the people had a pronounced sense of decorum with one another, in another sense they were very direct with one another. To have that kind of language inside of this world meant taking away other things so there wouldn't be all this clutter," Pullman says.

"(Wister) describes that terrain in a way I thought I never had seen in a Western, when he describes Medicine Bow as 'a bunch of bones that have been thrown on the ground randomly.' That's not a traditional Western main street that we've seen before."

And that is just one of the strikingly original things in the first moments of the TNT movie, as strong-willed schoolteacher Molly Stark (Lane) arrives in what you can call a town only because no other word suffices. Her isolation as an outsider immediately is underlined by Nathan Barr's evocative score, which begs for release on CD as soon as possible.

"It kills me that you picked up on that, because I knew the music was incredibly important," Pullman says happily. "I had been working with another composer but it just became very clear he wasn't relating to the piece."

Panic-stricken to find himself without a composer 12 days before deadline, Pullman remembered a cello group called Apocalyptica he had heard while filming a movie in Finland. An audition tape from the 26-year-old Barr reminded Pullman of the group, and he knew he had found his composer.

"His music has kind of a melancholy that is so appropriate, and you sense the isolation of what's coming," Pullman says. "I just had a feeling about him. I played Apocalyptica for him and could just see the light come on in his eyes. He was extraordinary."

As is the offbeat casting. Pullman remembered the electrifying Feore from stage appearances long before his performance in last season's Storm, and says he thought Lane brought a striking identity to a character who was, for him, the main point of entry into the story for viewers.

Pullman says research revealed a key to playing a character whose given name is not revealed: Many of the characters want to keep their pasts a secret. And casting Western veterans Weaver (Gunsmoke) and Drury in the story was a no-brainer, Pullman adds. Drury even put a few technical people to shame when he appeared to do his cameo.

After his scene with Drury, Pullman says, "I had to grab my horse and ride off, and when he saw how I had tied the horse, he says, 'Let me show you something.' And he had a way of tying the reins so ... you could pull them off and get going without even looking.

"None of the wranglers had seen it before. It was so cool, and sent a chill down my spine because we had been fumbling with it, and to have this guy who had a history with the role show me how – wow. It was great."

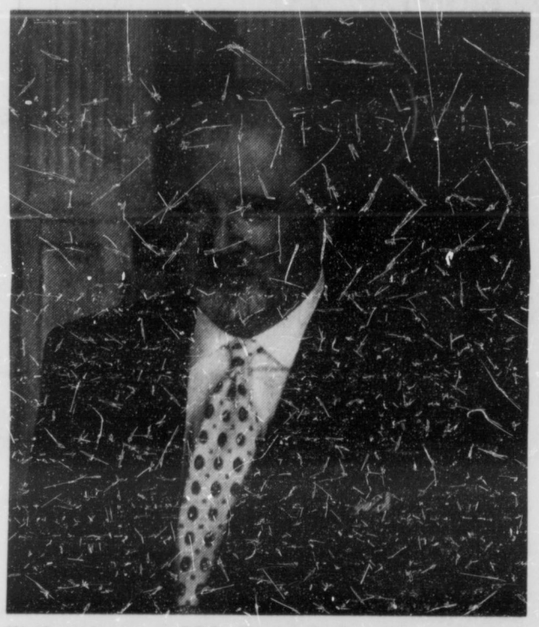
WEDNESDAY



Wednesdays on CBS, David Ogden Stiers plays a belligerent billionaire with a love-struck daughter in Love & Money.

TV PIPELINE

By Taylor Michaels
©TVData Features Syndicate

Dan Butler

Q: The guy who plays Robert "Bulldog" Briscoe on Frasier looks a lot like movie actor Ed Harris. Are they related? –Mrs. C. Wilenken, Santa Rosa, Calif.

A: You are right about the resemblance, but Harris is not related to Frasier actor Dan Butler.

Q: I was deeply touched by your recent comments about Madeline Kahn's battle with ovarian cancer. Your readers may not have heard that, at your column's deadline, this beautiful actress lost her fight. I miss her terribly, and I never even met her. Thanks for caring, Taylor. –Michael via e-mail.

A: I think we were all stunned by how swiftly Kahn's death (on Dec. 3) followed her public announcement about her illness, and I share your grief, Michael.

In the tributes following the death of this adorable actress, I was deeply struck by an uncanny perceptive comment by Entertainment Weekly writer George Hodgman, who wrote, "She could deliver a Rorshach on a character with a single word; by the end of the sentence, you had the complete biography."

My thoughts are very much with Kahn's husband, John Hansbury, and her colleagues on Cosby as they try to cope with a loss that is almost beyond comprehension. Her memory will shine on for years to come.

Q: Can you refresh my memory about a TV show called Down to Earth? It involved an angel named Ethel who tried to take care of a family. –Chad Goodman, Delaware, Ohio.

A: Down to Earth, which aired in syndication from 1984 to 1987, starred Carol Mansell as Ethel MacDoogan, a flapper struck down by a trolley in 1925 who was sent back to Earth to earn her angelic wings by helping the Preston family. The series also featured former Bewitched star Dick Sargent, Ronnie Schell, Rip Taylor and Kyle Richards.

Q: I recently read that young actress Heather O'Rourke died shortly before the release of Poltergeist III. Of what did she die? –Robert C. Pritchard, Columbus, Ohio.

A: The 12-year-old actress died during emergency surgery for a condition called intestinal stenosis on Feb. 1, 1988. Her mother charged that a misdiagnosis contributed to the death.

Q: At the same time Westerns Sugarfoot and Cheyenne were on the air, Ty Hardin had a similar show. Could you please remind me of the name? –Julia M., Port Orange, Fla.

A: Hardin starred as a loner named Bronco Layne in Bronco, an ABC Western set in post-Civil War Texas. It ran (sometimes under the Cheyenne banner) from 1959-62.

Notes from Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

Michelle Geis was named to the dean's list for the fall semester at Virginia-Tech University in Blacksburg, Va. Michelle's football team, the Hokies, played in the Sugar Bowl in New Orleans on Tuesday night. We were rooting for the Hokies, as this was Scott's team also.

Several locals have been attending the Maryland Terps basketball games recently. Rodney and Marci Glotfelty and family attended the game between the Terps and George Mason team last Monday night. They were also overnight guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Farmer in Baltimore.

Carol Bass and children attended the Terps game last Thursday in College Park. They also visited with Mr. and Mrs. Tom Bulka and family in Columbia.

Ellen and Sam Housley attended the Maryland/Coastal Carolina game on Saturday.

Jenny McNally, Scott Pussateri, and Rick Pullen were New Year's Day dinner guests of Ellen and Sam Housley.

Ferne Beachy and Lea Stanton visited June and Bill Green in LaVale on Monday.

Ralph and Ethel Buckel were Christmas holiday guests of their son, Dr. Ralph Buckel Jr., and family in Chestertown.

Visitors at the home of Ruth DiPaolo over the New Year's holiday were Betty and Ellis Sacra, Partlow, Va. A New Year's Eve guest was Loretta Opel. Barry Glotfelty, Frederick, also visited with his mother and other family members. The Sacras and Ruth DiPaolo were Sunday evening dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jacobs, Lonaconing.

Ann McLister and Margaret Wagner visited Mr. and Mrs. Robert Filsinger and daughter in Oakland last week. The McListers returned to their home in Frederick after spending eight holiday days with their mother, family, and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Smith, Timonium, visited Marci and Rodney Glotfelty and family for several days last week.

Helen Englar, Westminster, visited her brother, Dale Glotfelty, Ruth DiPaolo, son Courtney, and the Glotfelty, Bass, and Sussman families.

Believe it or not, Bittinger is still here. We survived the terrible threat of Y2K. I personally knew of one small Y2K crisis. Before midnight on New Year's Eve during a party in my area, a wife demanded her husband take her home immediately because she forgot to do something with her computer. Is it a sign of bad news to come in the new millennium? Will the computer actually need care as a pet or children? Will they actually run our lives? Will they make our lives easier or just add another headache? Just about everyone talked this New Year's Eve that this was not going to be any big deal, with nothing to be afraid of, but also not anything to really celebrate.

When I was a child our family always celebrated the New Year by spending it with Ken and Harriett Buckel and their children, Larry, Bill, Bonnie, and John. The adults played Pinochle and the big boys told scary stories to scare the little ones. They were our double second cousins; Harriett is a first cousin of Dad and Ken is my mother's first cousin. I wonder how common are double cousins.

Unfortunately, this year we will see Ken and Harriett this evening at Newman Funeral Home to pay our respects to their son, John Glenn Buckel, who departed this life unexpectedly. He was born in 1961 shortly after John Glenn orbited the Earth, thus he was named for him. For a long time he was the littlest of the herd of little "towhead" boys running around at family reunions. We will miss John, who was also an outstanding artist.

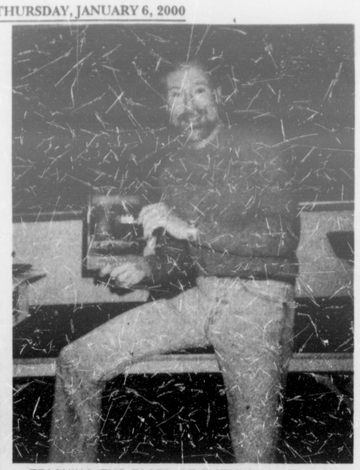
Special Interest English Courses Slated At GCC

Two special interest English courses are being offered by Garrett Community College during the spring semester. Both courses are available to part-time students with no placement test required.

Fiction Writing (ENG-210) is scheduled Mondays and Wednesdays from 3 to 4:30 p.m. The course will be taught by Dr. Greg Jenkins, author of a recently published collection of short fiction titled Night Game. Jenkins is the author of a non-fiction book, Stanley Kubrick and the Art of Adaptation, a dissertation on the films adapted by the late producer from written works. He has also published fiction stories in numerous literary magazines. Jenkins teaches several English courses at GCC and at Potomac State College in Keyser, W.Va.

Another English course, Greco-Roman Myths: The Odyssey and The Aeneid, An Epic Adventure (ENG240), will be taught by Dr. Eira Patnaik on Mondays from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Dr. Patnaik is professor of English at Frostburg State University and has traveled extensively throughout the world. She recently presented an interactive lecture on Japanese Aesthetics as part of the co-curricular program at GCC.

Students may register for these courses at the Student Assistance Center weekdays from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and until 6:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday, Jan. 18-27. For further information, interested persons may call 301-387-3044.



TEACHING THE FACTS OF FICTION in an upcoming class at Garrett Community College is Dr. Greg Jenkins, shown holding Night Game, his recently published collection of short fiction. Jenkins's Fiction Writing course is one of two special interest English offerings at GCC during the spring semester that are detailed in the accompanying article. For further information persons may call the GCC Student Assistance Center at 301-367-3044.

Bloodmobile Nets 39 Units At Jan. 3 Visit

The American Red Cross bloodmobile collected 39 units of blood Monday during a visit to Zion Lutheran Church in Accident. Forty-three persons responded to the visit.

Reaching gallon milestones were: Lawrence Fike, one gallon; Charles Frazee, three gallons; and Kathleen Margroff, six gallons. Martha Leese and Nolla Broadwater were first-time donors.

Local volunteers assisting ARC personnel with the visit were: Rev. Dr. Wilfred L. Karsten, registration; Mildred Haenftling and Arlene George, greeters; Helen A. Harman, Fred Quintero, and Edward Quintero, walkers; and Carol Edmiston, Dot Bowser, Linda Oester, and Charlotte Sebold, canteen. Helping set up were Clark Kolb and Hobert Bowser. Sandwiches and juice were provided by the Zion Lutheran Ladies Aid.

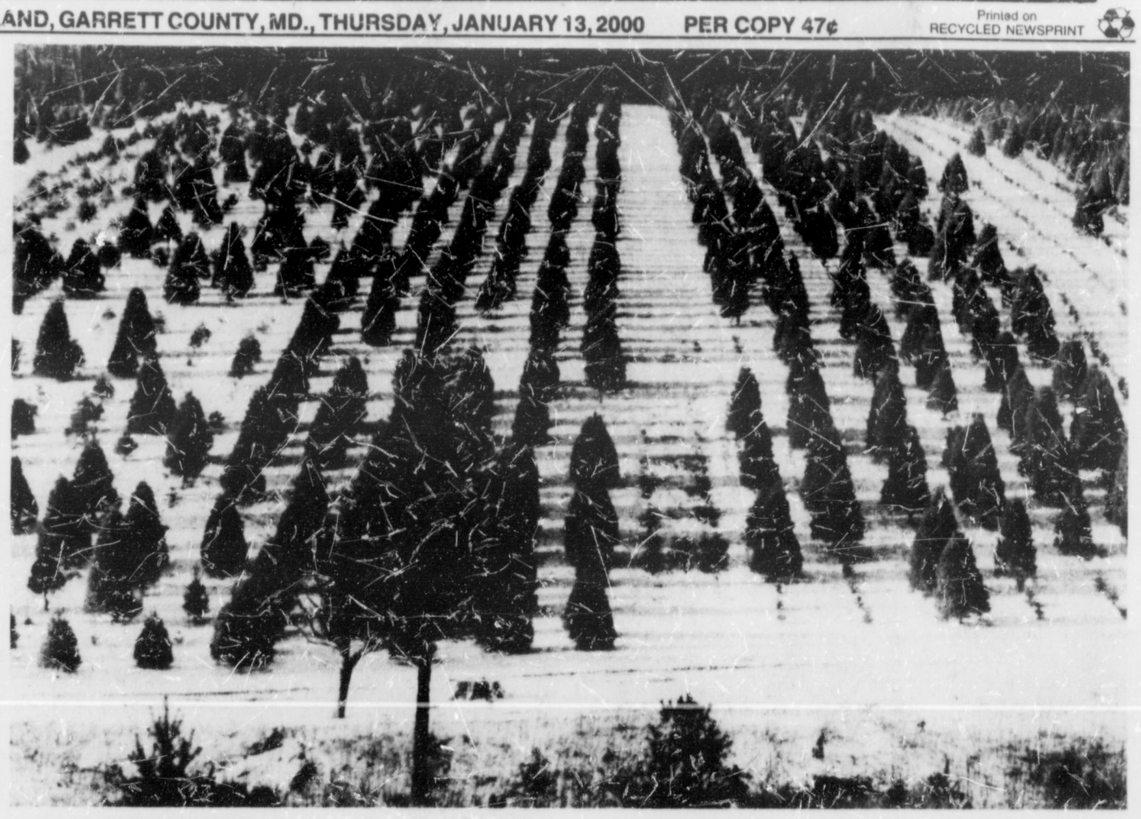
Hospital Limits Visits To Reduce Infection Risks

Garrett County Memorial Hospital has responded to statewide increase in cases of influenza by requesting that only family members visit hospital patients. "Persons with colds, upper respiratory infections, and/or gastrointestinal illness symptoms are strongly requested not to visit hospital patients," said Dr. Charles Walch, chairman of the hospital's infection control committee.

Although the Garrett County Health Department has reported only a few documented cases of Influenza A, the county's health officer, Rodney Glotfelty, said he does expect the number of cases to increase based on the amount of influenza seen statewide and in the surrounding areas.

"While the increased cases of flu in other areas of the state have caused them to go on an 'alert' status, Garrett County is not in this position," Glotfelty explained. He did, however, stress that anyone with flu symptoms should see a physician as soon as possible to limit the duration and severity of the illness.

The Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene has stated that once the virus enters a person's body, that person may be able to spread it to others for three to five days after illness begins. (See related stories in this section.)



SAFE FOR ANOTHER YEAR — If trees can breathe sighs of relief, maybe these conifers are doing just that, having been overlooked last month by the Christmas crowd. Most likely, only the caretakers of this Swanton tree farm and perhaps some wandering wildlife will tromp through the rows of pines again until next season. The photo was taken at one time during the past week when snow lay on the ground. With ever-changing temperatures and nearly constant winds, the past few days have been odd, weatherwise. Tuesday morning began with hard rain, which in almost an instant switched to a ground-covering snow, causing a few fender benders and a lot of sky watching. The wind continues yet today, blowing snow into the area as our press begins to roll.

Mtn. Lake Park Town Council Votes In Favor Of Fluoridation

The mayor and town council of Mtn. Lake Park voted unanimously Tuesday evening to implement the fluoridation of the town's water supply. This vote followed a report made by an ad hoc committee composed of town residents.

The report, read by committee member Suzanne Sincell, reflected the extensive amount of information evaluated by that group and the benefits and risks and costs of adding fluoride to the water. Having studied and discussed the information, the committee recommended implementation of a fluoridation plan.

"Our committee did a lot of research, with lots of assistance and cooperation from many local dentists and the health department," Sincell stated. "There is a lot of new positive information since the last time the town considered fluoridation. We found the benefits of fluoride are monumental, far out-weighing any possible, minimal risks."

Mayor Paul Shockey praised the committee for their work. "I really thank the committee for all they did. It was an excellent job. They had good resources," he said.

In addition to a great number of residents present to voice opinions on the issue, county health officer Rodney Glotfelty, local dentists William Yant and Albert Getty, and health department employee Kendra Todd were in atten-

Man Pronounced Dead At Scene Of Accident On Mayhew Inn Rd.

One man was killed in an accident on Mayhew Inn Road near Red Run Road on Saturday at 8:52 p.m. Frederick resident Brandon Teague Chesnik, 27, was pronounced dead at the scene after being thrown from the vehicle in which he was a passenger, according to the report filed by Maryland State Police at the McHenry barrack.

Investigating officer Tfc. K.P. Stakem said that Chesnik was a passenger in a 1992 Jeep Wrangler operated by Justin R. Warfield, 24, Frederick. The Jeep was westbound on Mayhew Inn Road when Warfield allegedly attempted to pass another westbound vehicle on a snow-and-ice-covered portion of the road.

The driver lost control of the vehicle, causing it to slide off the roadway, strike a ditch, and overturn, Tfc. Stakem said. Two of the passengers, Chesnik and Stacy Anne Shewbridge, 22, Frederick, were thrown from the vehicle. Warfield and Shewbridge were taken to Garrett Memorial Hospital, where they were treated and released.

Another passenger, Matthew B. Hull, 29, Frederick, was flown by medevac helicopter to Cumberland Memorial Hospital for treatment. He is listed in "stable" condition.

Police said that alcohol may have been a factor in the accident and that investigation is continuing.

Failure To Yield

Three people were injured Tuesday afternoon in a two-vehicle accident on National Pike, west of Negro Mtn., when the driver of one vehicle allegedly failed to yield the right of way to the other.

Tfc. B. Willetts reported that Rhonda J. Broadwater, 22, Grantsville, was driving a 1999 Nissan westbound on National Pike at about 3:30 p.m. Robert A. Durst, 22, Confluence, Pa., was operating a 1984 Ford F150 eastbound on National Pike at the same time.

Tfc. Willetts said that Broadwater attempted to make a left turn in front of the Durst truck, which struck the Broadwater vehicle and subsequently struck a tree. Broadwater's Nissan then allegedly spun around and struck a parked car.

The injured — Broadwater, Durst's passengers Amber L. Smith, 20, and Robert D. Durst, 3, both of Confluence — were transported to Cumberland Memorial Hospital by Northern Rescue Squad. Grantsville VFD also responded to the scene of the accident.

Police charged Broadwater with failure to yield

BOE Adjusts Schedule For Coming Year

The Garrett County Board of Education, meeting for the first time in 2000, focused on some "housekeeping" matters for the coming year. The schedule for the regular monthly board meeting was one of the items on the table that board members agreed to modify.

While retaining the day and place of the meeting — the second Tuesday of each month at the Oakland office of the board of education -- the decision was made to change the time of opening the meeting to 4 p.m. for public comment. Executive session will follow, with the public session resuming at 5:30 p.m.

Officers Selected

The board also selected officers for the year. Rodney Durst will serve as president and Madeleine Collins was tapped as vice president. Jim Raley, who completed his year as board president, was thanked by the group and presented with a token gift of thanks from fellow board members.

Student Recognition

Southern High School senior Brianna Thayer was recognized by the board for designing the Christmas card that was selected by school superintendent Dr. Wendell Teets to be sent as a holiday greeting from the BOE.

Art teacher Sonya Pratt and Brianna's parents, Colleen Mouyard, Mtn. Lake Park, and Jerry Thayer, Oakland, were present. Dr. Teets described his annual selection of the student's art

Officials Hope To Drill New Well To Provide Needed Water In County

Environmentalists angered about well site

While Garrett County officials work to determine the existence of a pure, plentiful aquifer in Savage River State Forest, they are being met with opposition, mostly from downstate, about the possible drilling of a well on state lands. The location of the aquifer, having been pinpointed by Jim Casselberry, a noted hydrogeologist from nearby Pennsylvania, is currently marked with a pink ribbon in the forest. A test well will be drilled on the site within the next several months, according to officials.

A controversy over the water source has risen between the government officials and some environmentalists. The location of the proposed well is within a site designated as a Sensitive Management Area, which by state law cannot be used for resource extraction. However, that law can be amended through public meetings and comment, according to reports. The Department of Natural Resources did agree to allow the town of Grantsville to drill a test well on the site to determine if the aquifer is actually there. The DNR is allowing this test without forcing the town to conduct a public hearing on the issue.

If an aquifer is located on that site, a public hearing will be held before the actual drilling of the well. Currently, the staff of the Garrett County Office of Economic Development is working with the DNR and the town of Grantsville to proceed.

"We are trying hard to do this in a smart way," said Jim Hinebaugh, director of the development office, who spoke with the county commissioners about the issue on Tuesday. While most local officials of both Grantsville and the county offices are in support of the well being constructed, environmentalists, led locally by Jon Boone, Oakland, have expressed their anger with the proposed use of public lands. Boone's brother Dan, a former staff member of the DNR's Heritage Division and now a Patuxent Research Center employee, reportedly jumpstarted a protest among Sierra Club members and other environmental groups, the members of which then sent hundreds of postcards to Annapolis objecting to the plan.

The environmentalists fear that the disturbance to the sensitive area would not only be detrimental to the old-growth forest and its inhabitants, but would also set a precedence of allowing more forms of resource extraction on protected lands. Delegate George Edwards has voiced his strong support of the well being built, and has maintained that the construction of it would

Deep Creek Dunk Event Scheduled For Next Month

by Peggy Santamaria

For those who participated in last year's debut of the Deep Creek Lake Dunk, it may be hard to believe, but it is almost time to do it again. February 26 is scheduled as D-Day (Dunk Day) in Garrett County.

The not-for-the-squeamish event is a fund-raiser for Special Olympics Maryland, and co-sponsoring the death-defying dip into the frigid lake waters is the Maryland State Police.

Last year's bone-chilling spectacular featured over 150 scantily clad individuals plunging into the 32 degree water as snow flakes swirled about them. To the cheers of crowds lining the beach in front of Uno's Restaurant, most of the dunkers beat a hasty retreat once they were briefly submerged. This year over 200 participants are expected.

Each dunker must raise pledges of $50 to enter the challenge. In many cases, friends and employees gleefully contributed to see several "dunkees" take the plunge.

Registration forms became available this week and may be picked up at the McHenry barrack of the Maryland State Police or from other local presenting sponsors including The Republican, the Garrett County Sheriff's Office, Oakland Police Department, Wisp Ski Resort, and the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce. For more information persons may call 1-800-541-7544.

Seven Local Juvenile Boot Camp Guards Fired By DJJ

Seven staffers from among Garrett County's three Leadership Challenge camps were fired this week for allegedly assaulting juveniles in their care, according to the Maryland Department of Juvenile Justice. The action comes in the wake of an ongoing investigation spawned by a Baltimore Sun investigative series on the Savage Leadership Challenge Camp that reported allegations of abuse by camp guards.

DJJ officials would not release the names of the fired employees, but they are reportedly among 14 guards from the Savage, Meadow, and Backbone Mountain facilities who were removed from their duties and placed on administrative leave in December. Three of the seven allegedly oversaw the particular juveniles that The Sun followed for five months at the Savage Mountain camp and for nine months after their return home.

The series led to the appointment of an independent assessment team by Governor Parris Glendening to investigate activities at the camps. The team's findings led the governor to close the Savage facility and remove DJJ staffers from the other two Garrett County camps, as well as his firing of Juvenile Justice Secretary Gilberto de Jesus and four other top department officials. Bishop L. Robinson, who chaired the assessment team panel, has been named the DJJ's interim secretary.

The Maryland State Police have launched a criminal investigation into the allegations and the Federal Bureau of Investigation has

Garrett County's Eldest Resident Dies Thursday At Home In Deer Park

LAURA MAE FLANIGAN

After witnessing the arrival the new millennium and the third century in her lifetime, Garrett County's eldest known resident, 105-year-old Laura Mae Flanigan, died Thursday, Jan. 6, at her home in Deer Park.

Born July 19, 1894, in Deer Park, she was the daughter of the late Joseph and Elizabeth Friend. She was also preceded in death by two husbands, Emanuel B. King and Walter W. Flanigan.

Mrs. Flanigan began working at the Deer Park Inn as a young girl, driving her horse and buggy to the establishment, where she delivered flowers and vegetables. She was a former Deer Park correspondent for The Republican, a member of the Deer Park United Methodist Church, and a longtime member of the Deer Park Homemakers Club. She was also featured in a November 1998 issue of The Republican when, at 104 years of age, she exercised her "responsibility and freedom as a citizen...and went to the polls...to cast her vote."

Survivors include one son, Harry R. King, Deer Park; two daughters, Betty Beckman, Oakland, and Dolly Baggett, Fairfax, Va.; seven grandchildren; eight great-grandchildren; 10 great-great-grandchildren; and numerous step-grandchildren, step-great-grandchildren and step-great-great-grandchildren.

Friends were received at the Durst Funeral Home, Oakland, where a service was conducted Sunday, Jan. 9, with the Rev. Neil Parsons officiating. Interment followed in Garrett County Memorial Gardens.

The family suggests memorials take the form of contributions to Southern Garrett Rescue Squad or the Deer Park Community Volunteer Fire Department.

Ribbon-Cutting Marks Opening Of GCS Addition

The Board of Garrett County Commissioners joined other local officials on Tuesday at the ribbon cutting for the newest addition to Garrett Container Systems Inc. in the Central Garrett Industrial Park. The 5,000-sq.-ft. structure, completed in late November, complements the primary 15,625-sq.-ft. facility built in 1995.

A HUB Zone certified company, Garrett Container Systems (GCS) designs, manufactures, and markets precision aluminum shipping and storage containers for both commercial and government markets. The containers are designed and produced in a variety of configurations, including a standard rigid container and a unique folding container. The company's fabrication process permits quick and economical construction in requested dimensions.

JUST DROPPING BY at Buddy and Patricia Peed's home the other day was the news helicopter belonging to WJZ-TV Channel 13. "I was outside running the snowblower when a helicopter began circling overhead," Peed said. "I waved, and it came down and landed in our side yard, which was completely unexpected." The surprise visit came as the Baltimore-based chopper was aloft over Garrett County filming snow scenery. After filming a short interview with the Peeds about how this winter's weather how been proceeding so far on the mountaintop — "They told us it was a slow news day around the city, so they decided to come up here for a look," Peed recalled — the news crew climbed back aboard and headed for home. The drop-in visit to the Red Run Heights Road residence took place December 28.

McHenry Woman Injured In Md. Highway Crash

A McHenry woman sustained minor injuries this morning when her vehicle collided with another on Maryland Highway at Deer Park Hotel Road this morning, according to the Garrett County Sheriff's Office. She was treated at Garrett County Memorial Hospital and subsequently released.

Dina Dee DeWitt, 33, was traveling westbound on Route 135 shortly after 8:30 a.m. when her car was struck by a 1997 Nissan operated by Deborah Ann Bean, 43, Deer Park. Bean reportedly pulled out across the highway from Broadford Road in an attempt to reach Deer Park Hotel Road, and was reportedly at fault.

DeWitt was transported to the hospital by the Southern Rescue Squad, which was assisted on the scene by the Deer Park Volunteer Fire Department. Sheriff's deputies have charged Bean for failing to yield right of way to DeWitt's vehicle.

cause a minimal disturbance. Other local officials agree, explaining that if the well is built, the needed equipment will be brought in on an old logging road. Four or five nearby trees will be taken down, and a 12-inch hole will be punched into the ground. A pump will be installed and will stand about four feet high on the aquifer site. Because the water is pure, no treatment house will be needed, although Commissioner Chairman Wendell Beitzel said a small stone structure could possibly be placed near the spring.

"Even so, it would be a very small structure," he said. He noted that if another well has to be dug because of the controversy, the water could very possibly not be pure or of sufficient pressure. A water flow that has to be treated will cost the county far more money.

"If that logging road wasn't there, we wouldn't even be considering this," said Ron Petrella, administrator of the county's sanitary district, who also spoke with the commissioners Tuesday. Petrella said he respected the environmentalists' concerns and understood why they are worried. "But we are very well aware of how important it is to be careful on this land. We will be in and out. That's it."

An adequate water supply in the northern part of the county has been an ongoing concern, both to residents there and to county officials trying to attract businesses to locate in the Northern Industrial Park and in the Keysers Ridge area. A devastating fire in June 1998 destroyed the G&P Auto building in downtown Grantsville. Firefighters reportedly ran out of water, or at least lacked adequate wate pressure, to save the building. The volunteers battled the blaze for hours, during which several firefighters sustained minor injuries, and at least one was seriously hurt.

"So we're not wanting this water for economic development alone," Hinebaugh said. "These residents need a better supply, for their own homes and for their safety."

After the fire, a new well was constructed on private property near Puzzley Run. Producing water at 100 gallons per minute, this well has partially alleviated the problem, Hinebaugh said. The water from this well is very low in iron, an element that is often found in high levels in the surrounding areas. If this proposed Savage Forest well water has the same purity and pressure, and if the county and state agree to build it, the existing problem will most likely be completely remedied.

Edwards has of late become vocally supportive of the well's construction, being quoted in several published reports. Hinebaugh said the delegate has also talked one-on-one with Governor Parris Glendening about it.

"People need water," Edwards said. "It's not like we're drilling for coal or oil." The delegate also has noted the fact that the state and federal governments currently own about 90,000 acres of land in the county. "If we can't disturb one acre of that for something people need, then there's something very wrong," he said.

Dan Boone has been quoted in reference to the sensitive area, calling it the "Yellowstone of the East," and imploring state officials to disallow the well's construction.

The proposed well will supplement the water system significantly, local officials maintain, and will further the upgraded plan proposed by Hinebaugh's office and other entities. It will enhance the residents' system, as well as the industrial park. This will allow Hinebaugh's office to present a much more attractive package to prospective business owners, and will allow existing companies to expand. The plan also includes an enhanced supply to Keysers Ridge. Hinebaugh said many inquiries have been made about that area, from the private and public sector, and the eventual strengthened water supply is "an exciting prospect."

With or without the new well, a portion of the entire water project is proceeding, as a 400,000 gallon reservoir tank is going to be installed on the top of Negro Mountain by Specs, an engineering firm from Cumberland. This tank will fill with the water from the new Puzzley Run well, and, if the state forest well is built, that water, too, will go into the tank.

While the controversy continues downstate, county officials are quick to commend the local DNR staff involved in the issue.

"I simply cannot say enough about the DNR people here," said Meg Ellis of the economic development office. Ellis has coordinated much of the project and has been meeting with other officials for months. "The local DNR staff people are very understanding of the need for the well, and they are being extremely helpful in providing advice as to how to proceed with the project with minimal disruption to the environment there. There is an understanding among all of us up here that we want to do this as carefully as possible." Hinebaugh and Petrella also commended the local state staff of the DNR for the cooperation and assistance.

The test well will be drilled in the near future. If a sufficient aquifer is located, a public meeting will be held to obtain input on the issue.

Guards Fired

opened a civil rights investigation. Filing of criminal charges, if any, is not expected to occur until the next session of the Garrett County Grand Jury convenes in March.

"These terminations are the direct result of investigations by the governor's task force," said DJJ spokesman Bob Kannenberg. "Leadership Challenge staff suspected of violating departmental policy are being investigated, and staff found to have violated policy are being terminated."

Of the seven remaining guards placed on administrative duty who were not fired this week, five have resigned. Two others are still employed by DJJ and are reportedly working in the agency's Cumberland office, where they are to have no contact with juveniles until the investigations are concluded.

The allegations and ensuing investigations have reportedly uncovered a pattern of abuse at the DJJ facilities going back to 1996. The findings have caused several other states to reconsider the operations of their juvenile justice military-style boot facilities. Maryland's Leadership Challenge camp system had been viewed as a model for the rehabilitation of juvenile offenders.

Glendening has directed Lt. Governor Kathleen Kennedy Townsend, who oversaw the formulation and operation of the boot camps, to also focus on problems the state's after-care system. The effectiveness of current after-care programs for juvenile offenders has been called into question. The recidivism rate of boot camp graduates, many of whom hail from inner-city Baltimore, has been called unacceptable by several state elected officials.

Lighthouse Beam Earns "Positive" Response In Area

The 47-foot lighthouse overlooking I-68 from Grantsville, turned on its beacon for the first time on New Year's Eve. The green beam shines through a series of glass rings in a century-old Fresnel lens, obtained from the Canadian Coast Guard. It casts a steady light in all directions. Pastor Dewayne Johnson of the World Lighthouse Worship Center, where the beacon is located, reported receiving many positive comments about the structure from community residents.

Prior to this New Year's Eve event, there had been some concern voiced by local residents that the light would be intrusive and offensive to those in neighboring areas, Pastor Johnson explained. He said he had read letters to the editor in the newspaper about these concerns. "Though I know the people who wrote these letters, no one ever asked me about the light and what it would be like," he said.

Some of these same people did speak to Pastor Johnson after the light was turned on, and told him that they had thought it would be a rotating light that would be too bright, and would shine in their windows at night, he noted.

Grantsville mayor Gerry Beachy had also heard complaints from residents about the potentially "unpleasant" light. "Before it was turned on, some people said they were afraid it would be too bright, too intrusive. But since it has been turned on, I have heard no negative comments," Beachy said.

Replicating the 19th century Peggy's Cove lighthouse in Nova Scotia, the Worship Center constructed its lighthouse to reflect spiritual symbolism in it colors: white and red representing purity and the blood of sacrifice. "The green comes from Revelations 4, which describes that around the throne of God an emerald light shone," Pastor Johnson explained.

NO ONE COMPLAINED when the light atop the 47-foot lighthouse replica was turned on for the first time on New Year's Eve. Its green beam shines from the World Lighthouse Worship Center, which overlooks I-68 in Grantsville.

The steady beam of light, he said, signifies the gospel going out in all directions of the earth.

W.Va. Man Faces Felony Charges After GBI Arrest

A West Virginia man was arrested in Grantsville Thursday evening on numerous felony charges in connection with a theft scheme that covered three states, according to the Garrett Bureau of Investigation. The subject remains incarcerated in the Garrett County Detention Center on a bond amount that totals $78,000.

Richard Eugene Beal, 46, Bowton, W.Va., was taken into custody without incident at the Meshach Browning Club at 5:30 p.m. by GBI detectives, Garrett County sheriff's deputies, and Maryland State Police troopers. A long-term investigation by the GBI and the Pennsylvania State Police alleged that Beal would use the minimum amount necessary to open accounts at banks in Pennsylvania, and the Keystone Bank branch in Grantsville. He would then reportedly take the 10 starter checks and write bad checks for purchases at hardware and equipment supply and rental businesses.

As detectives were investigating the Grantsville bank incident, they learned that the bank had just received a phone call from Casselman Lumber seeking verification for a check Beal was attempting to write there. He had left the scene by the time police reached Casselman's, but shortly afterwards a report was received that he was at the Meshach Browning Club. Beal was apprehended at the bar, and his truck parked outside allegedly contained a snowblower in the bed that was stolen in Meyersdale, Pa., and a handgun that was lying on the console in the cab.

Charges of felony theft, uttering bad checks, and illegal possession of a handgun were filed at that time. He was described as very cooperative during questioning, and reportedly told detectives of other incidents in Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

Additional charges were filed against Beal for felony theft of two Stihl chainsaws worth $394 each from Golden Rule Sales in Hyndman, Pa.; felony theft of a $740 generator from Keim's Sales and Service in Berlin, Pa.; felony theft of last month of a Honda generator (valued at $2,800) from Underwood Rentals in Oakland; and felony theft and bad check charges stemming from the purchase of $1,500 worth of hogs from a Grantsville-area pork producer.

Beal was also served with an Allegany County arrest warrant dating back to 1993.

The GBI has requested assistance from the community in an attempt to identify other victims of Beal's alleged criminal activity. He used starter checks from recently opened accounts using the names of Richard Eugene Beal, William Price, and William R. Day. Persons who have made a transaction involving Beal are asked to call the GBI detective Jeff Murphy at 301-334-1909.

Debris Burning During Winter Months Advised

Landowners outside incorporated towns who are interested in burning brush or debris may want to take advantage of the winter weather conditions. According to the Open Air Burning Regulations, Title 8, Department of Natural Resources (DNR), Subtitle .07, Maryland Forest Service, "burning may occur at anytime when the ground is covered with snow, if all other requirements are met."

The open-air burning regulations apply to activities in woodland and within 200 feet of woodland, or to a flammable material that could carry fire to the woodland. There should be a firebreak at least 10 feet wide around the fire and adequate personnel and equipment present to control the fire. The fire should be out cold before all personnel leave the scene.

Landowners who wish to do some open-air burning while the ground is covered with snow are still required to obtain a burning permit from the health department. These permits can be obtained by contacting the Garrett County Health Department Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at 301-334-8980. Once this permit has been obtained, the landowner should contact Garrett Central Alarm via the non-emergency number, 301-334-1929, prior to burning. This should reduce the chances of one of the local fire companies being called out on a false alarm.

Oakland Man Is Sentenced For 1995 Theft

An Oakland man was sentenced to two years in jail last week by Judge Fred Thayer of Garrett County Circuit Court. Randal Keith Wray, 46, pleaded guilty to two counts of felony theft, stemming from a series of thefts that occurred in 1995. Seven additional related counts were not prosecuted, according to the court report.

For the first count, Thayer sentenced Wray to two years in the Department of Corrections, with one year suspended. For the second count, he ordered the same sentence, to run consecutively to the first. The balance of the jail term is to be served in the Garrett County jail, as ordered by the judge. Upon his release, Wray will be on supervised probation for two years.

The defendant was arrested following thefts that occurred at the site of Keystone Paving Inc. Numerous items of construction equipment were stolen in October 1995.

A Keyser, W.Va., man entered a guilty plea to DWI (driving while intoxicated). Joseph P. Graham, 39, was charged with the offense by a Garrett County Sheriff's Office deputy in May of last year.

Thayer accepted Graham's plea and sentenced him to 30 days in the local jail, suspended. He fined the defendant $500 plus court costs, and placed him on probation for one year, according to the court report.

Traffic charges against a Deer Park man were not prosecuted last week, by order of the state's attorney. Benjamin John Shaffer, 25, had been charged with driving with a suspended license and not wearing a seat belt. The alleged offenses took place in February 1999, when Shaffer was stopped by a Maryland State Police trooper.

Town Meeting Set To Discuss Library

The board of trustees of the Ruth Enlow Library of Garrett County will conduct a town meeting on Thursday, Jan. 20, at 7:30 p.m. at the Grantsville fire hall. The topic of discussion will be the new library to be constructed in Grantsville.

The public is encouraged by the board to attend and bring ideas and support.

Oakland Photo Contest Being Held By GOBA

Business people in the town of Oakland are looking for just the right pictures to use in upcoming publicity campaigns, and they're turning to the public for help by offering prizes for photos that best fit the theme "When You're in Oakland, You're Home." The photos should capture the essence of life in a small community and must be original works.

"We decided on a photo contest as a way to have the community participate in our efforts at publicizing our community," said Mikal McCartney, president of the Greater Oakland Business Association (GOBA), the organization that is sponsoring the event. "The idea came to us that, by asking the public to capture on film what they see as unique aspects of our community, we could accomplish two things. First, it will provide us with a wide range of people who live and visit our town, and who see things in new ways and allow them to publicize how they see our community. Secondly, it will provide good material to use in updating our Internet site and in all the other publications that we'll be producing in the coming months."

McCartney said that the Internet site, www.oakland-md.com hosted by GCNET, has already proven to be "invaluable" in promoting both the town and the region. "But we're updating and making it more interactive now, and some of the prize-winning photos will be used on the site to help us do just that," she said. The Oakland web site currently has more than 75 photos of local people and places. It recently sponsored a "Name that Wildflower" contest. Details of the photo contest will also be published on the web page.

Participants are urged to consider the theme "When you are in Oakland....you are home" when shooting photographs, but other themes include "Celebrating Our Past, Working For Our Future" and "Oakland... Your link to the past, present, and future."

The grand prize will be a $100 gift certificate to downtown Oakland stores. Second prize will be a progressive day of dining, starting with breakfast at Englander's, lunch at the Cornish Manor, and dinner at the Board Room. Third prize will be getting a digital record of one's home and its belongings for insurance records. Fourth prize will be a T-shirt with www.oaklandmd.com.

Photos should be 4x6 glossy prints and mailed to: Oakland Main Street, 109 S. Third Street, Oakland, MD 21550, or they can be dropped off at Oakland Town Hall at 15 S. Third Street. Contestants are urged to look at the Oakland web page to get an idea of the types of photos that are being sought. The contest will end February 28, 2000.

For more information on the Oakland Photo Contest, persons may contact the Oakland Main Street Office at 301-533-4470 or by e-mailing to contests@oaklandmd.com.

Please Butt Out...

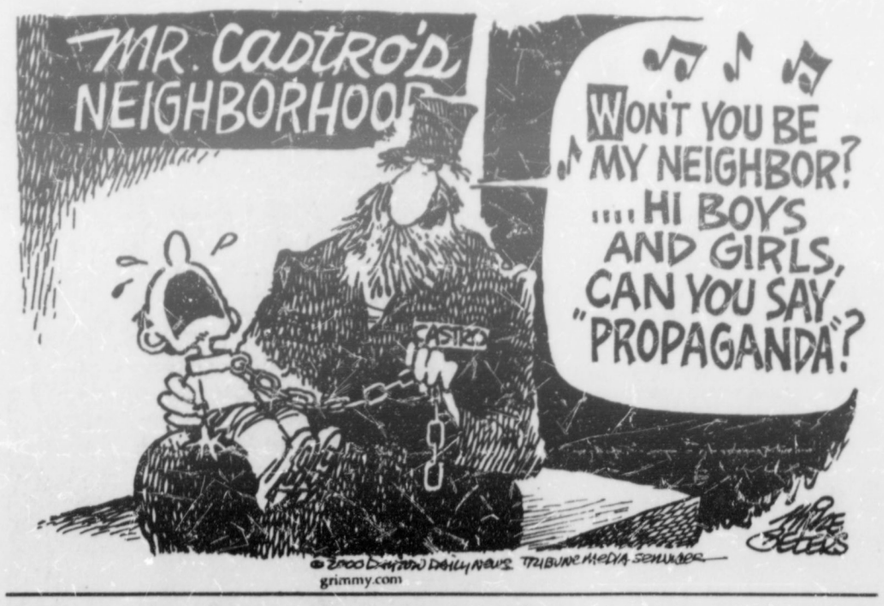
Various environmental groups are up in arms because the town of Grantsville has been given permission by the Department of Natural Resources to drill a test water well in a nearby area of the Savage River State Forest. The spot is in a Sensitive Management Area, and their fear is that allowing the town to drill this well will kill the wildlife and open the door for the land to then be raped by mining, timber cutting, and who knows what else.

The level of their outrage is matched only, or perhaps exceeded, by ours, but directed at their protest. The environmental impact of this test well is virtually non-existent, the water is desperately needed by Grantsville and the surrounding area for protection and human consumption, and the giant leap to the conclusion that mining and timbering will follow is absolutely preposterous.

It's infuriating and insulting that certain environmentalists who reside "downstate" decide that they, and not local officials, have the authority when it comes to turning a spade of dirt or removing a tree on state property in Garrett County. The assumption is that those of us who live here haven't the intelligence, the foresight, or the concern for our own environment that they have. Meanwhile, the urban sprawl continues virtually unchecked in their own neighborhoods, while Garrett County continues to offer the best in wilderness opportunities and the most pristine, natural settings in the state for the enjoyment of both residents and visitors.

Most of us who live here highly value, and do a good job of protecting, our environment. The state and federal governments own more land in Garrett County than in any other Maryland county anyway (90,000 acres), and huge tracts of it are well protected by state laws. The days of mass clear-cutting of timber and stripping the land for mining without reclamation are long over. To their credit, environmentalist groups have been instrumental over the years in bringing about regulations to curtail and control the harvesting of resources from the land. But drilling a relatively tiny hole in the ground to check for water is not going to make a dent in the environment of that particular piece of land.

We sincerely hope that the governor and any other powers that be do not give in to this ridiculous crusade by far-away, over-zealous "experts" who believe they have the right and the knowledge to determine what Garrett County needs and does not need.



Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

This is just to compliment you and The Republican's management for expanding the range of the personals columns to include what I regard as writing quality of the highest order by Joan Sussman in her Bittinger newsletter, published as the "Notes from Bittinger" column.

Once a week Joan's writing makes me want to live in Bittinger or go there and hang out (even though I know Gortner is "where it's at").

The column provides consistent stream-of-consciousness bulletins that flow into edgy considerations of things seen or perceived, and then smoothly eases into mainstream considerations reporting hard news. It sometimes drifts into a subtle, close to dreamy, quality that can take the reader out of the column and into whatever or wherever Joan writes about.

I prefer to read small papers since the national papers are so dreary and redundant in their reportages these days. Keep up the good work.

Sincerely,
W.L. Welch
Gortner

To the Editor:

Much of the argument about an Oakland bypass seems to be about whether there is too much traffic now. In my opinion sometimes there is, and sometimes there isn't. But that is not the issue. How much traffic will there be in the future? The proposed bypass will most likely not be open for travel for five or more years. Garrett County is actually growing. There will be a Wal-Mart Super Store on the north side of Oakland by the end of the year. There will be a lot more traffic.

In the 1950s, Cumberland did not want I-70, and the road went north at Hancock. With the exception of the stretch between Hancock and Washington, Pa., I-70 parallels U.S. 40. It was another 20 years before US 48, and another 20 until it became I-68. Imagine traveling east from Garrett County without I-68. Imagine just half the traffic on I-68 going through Grantsville on US 40, trying to get through LaVale and Cumberland. Think of twice the present traffic trying to get through Oakland in 5, 10, or 15 years.

Yes, 30 million dollars is a lot of money, a big price for a short road. But if the money isn't spent on an Oakland bypass, the State Highway Dept. will most likely spend the funds somewhere else in Maryland. The money will not go to some other Garrett County project. In the big scheme of things, neither county property tax nor state income tax will change depending on whether or not the Oakland bypass is built.

And please, don't confuse a two-lane Oakland bypass with something called Intercontinental One. A route for that road, if it will ever exist, has moved east.

If the by-pass is not built within the next five years, it will likely be another 20 years before it reappears on the state agenda. By then, it will be too late. Traffic in Oakland and surrounding roads will be a mess!

Sincerely yours,
T.C. Rissell
Swanton

Editor's note: The writer of the following letter to Garrett County Commissioner Wendell Beitzel requested that it appear in this column.

Dear Mr. Beitzel:

I'd like to thank you for your proposal to investigate development and implementation of outdoor signage regulation in Garrett County.

Route 219 between Keyser's Ridge and Oakland was once considered a "scenic" highway. With the exception of the Deep Creek Lake area, this highway is increasingly becoming one continuous corridor of advertising and promotion. It is one small irony that a large segment of this advertising is directed at promoting Deep Creek Lake businesses, where outdoor advertising along the 219 corridor is limited.

Another disturbing trend is illustrated by a new 40' billboard recently installed in field along the highway just south of Accident. (This billboard visually dominates the skyline.) The first advertising to appear on this new billboard las fall promoted a Pennsylvania resort in direct competition with our own local interests!

As you are aware, outdoor advertising is but one of many forums of promotion available to local businesses. Others include print media, radio, the Garrett County Visitor Center, brochure racks, etc. To regulate outdoor advertising in the public esthetic interest does not prohibit freedom of speech or deny business promotion. Regulation merely conforms with the maintenance of high standards of environmental quality in the public interest.

This is important to an area such as ours which economically relies on tourism and outdoor recreation.

One model to consider is the Stowe, Vermont, area, long favored by tourists for its natural beauty and outdoor recreation opportunities. Signage in Stowe is highly regulated, but not prohibited. Accordingly, businesses are easy to locate and identify by passing motorists, but the landscape is not blighted by unlimited commercialism.

I hope your colleagues on the board will appreciate your vision for a clean, esthetically sound environment, uncluttered and uncompromised by redundant and distracting outdoor signage. I hope the Planning & Zoning Commission will take serious note of your proposal.

Sincerely,
Steve Schlosnagle

HUSBANDRY*: A REVIEW

Nathan Griffith has given us a work on putting the stead back in the farm, a work dedicated to the belief that, before a farm has a right to be a commercial success, it needs to be successful in providing for the family that lives on the farm. That concept, so self-evident only a few years ago, has become a near heresy on the typical "English" American farm.

While the Amish farmer (with the indispensable help of his wife and children) typically grows all of his meat, dairy products, fruits, and vegetables at home, the "English" farmer — what the Amish call the farmers who do not speak German and do not live the plain life of the Anabaptists — buys everything at the grocery store and sells his crops from the farm as commodities.

Nathan Griffith's book is a road map for those who would like to find their way back to the farmstead. His method is his title: Husbandry — The Surest Way To Leisure, Plenty, Prosperity and Contentment (available from Cobblemead Publications, HCR 68, Box 185, Trout, WV 24991: $21 including shipping).

My chief disappointment is that Griffith does not himself discuss the concept of husbandry, though his own experiences as well as his advice illustrate it well. The word "husband" is among the oldest words in the English vocabulary.

In the word's original meaning, the husband was the man of the house, but not just any man, and not merely a married man. The husband had a middle status in society. He was a freeholder, neither the servant nor the lord of others. Almost as old as this first meaning, the word "husband" soon took on an economic and, usually, agricultural meaning, which it has largely lost today.

In the libraries of agricultural colleges, one can still find books titled, Animal Husbandry, but most of them are covered with dust. Modern books speak of "management."

Griffith's use of "husbandry" mostly pertains to the husbanding of the land and of the resources which the land will reasonably support, finally in support of the family that lives on the land. For me the most essential difference between husbandry and mere management is set forth in the divine mandate to Adam and Eve in Genesis 1:28: "replenish the earth."

The key to agricultural husbandry is the long-term commitment to build health of the land from which one expects to derive a living. Such adages as "You have to give to get" and "It is more blessed to give than to receive" relate to this belief that husbanding a farm means putting more into it than one expects to take out of it.

I found Griffith's personal story interesting because it parallels my own experience. Both of us in our separate ways discovered that to farm part time the way most farmers farm full time leads inevitably to disaster. In the model of farming, which he appropriately calls husbandry, one learns to live off the farm first and to make money off the farm second. Griffith tells how to do that clearly and concisely.

Along the way Nathan Griffith enters the fray of several controversial battles — battles that most of the world consider lost. For example, he attacks the pasteurizing lobby fiercely (but no less fiercely than they deserve). As one who drank raw milk for the first 10 years of his life and whenever possible thereafter, I am ready to march to Griffith's drum in that cause.

He makes the general point as well as the specific one: we live in an age when the powers and principalities do not seem satisfied until every living thing is served up dead to the public.

Nathan Griffith has written a book which deserves a place on the shelf of the farmer, the homesteader, the self-sustainer, and indeed for every ordinary person who is looking for a practical hope toward a better life.

LISTING CAN MAKE YOU DIZZY
by Mary Sincell McEwen

The practice of list-making is popular to a gagging fault in the country these days, with pundits formulating lists of things ranging from Best Films of the Century to Best Millennium Cow-Kicker Shin Guards. You can't pick up a magazine, read a newspaper, or tune in to VH1 (which actually has a show titled "The List") without seeing a roll call of people or things that someone, somewhere, has rated numerically. I figured we better get on the stick here at The Republican and do a list so that we continue to be on the cutting edge of trendiness. That's our prime directive, as everyone knows.

So, what to list? I pondered this awhile, tossing out ideas to myself, sitting alone at The Republican board of directors table. Okay, we don't have a board of directors. Or a table. We mostly talk around the waxer. But anyhow, I did ruminate on this, thinking of things like Least Effective Parenting Tools (number one: "Using any self-help book written by a childless professional") or Best Time Managing Techniques (number one: "Get sent to prison"). Finally I settled on one, being a rather easily irritated individual: "The Most Annoying Things of the Century." Now, there's nothing more annoying than a murderous maniac with charisma, so I ought to make Hitler number one, but I think it's best to forget him all together. With that in mind, I configured the following:

The 10th Most Annoying Thing of the Century: Those outrageous pay scales for people playing games on a big field or playing Pretend on a big screen. Granted, I like movies and some sports, but I guarantee I have learned volumes more from good teachers in my life, yet they get paid about the same as the kid who delivers an actor's pizza or an athlete's shoe string washer. That's wack.

Ninth: Those little snappy things kids throw on the ground during Autumn Glory. I hate those.

Eighth: Fashion shows of clothes that nobody, and I mean nobody, would wear for love nor money. Those starved, bored models, dressed in things like gold lamé feed sacks and spirals of wire, morosely traipse down runways, while a bunch of people with nothing better to do regard them smugly and talk amongst themselves about the ravishing lines and breathtaking risks the designer has taken. Good gravy. Give me my jeans, hold the wire.

Seventh: Who the heck decided that popcorn would make a good snack for people at the movies? And, then, what parents let their kids grow up chewing that popcorn with their mouths hanging open like camels? Honestly, I really wish that person would have thought up pudding or something equally quiet instead of the loudest food ever created. People just sit there in the theatre, staring at the screen, throwing that corn at their faces and chomping it with their tongues hanging out. Drives me nuts. (Cheesh — maybe I ought to get a life, huh?)

Sixth: That monotonous chopping sound in the rain forests.

Fifth: The out-of-hand sound bite thing for news shows. Granted, there's a lot of competition for news, but for pete's sake. They come on for a few seconds during your favorite comedy and say, "A deadly disease is killing millions — Could you catch it?" (You find out later they meant millions of lady bugs) Or "Could your eye teeth give clues to your child's life expectancy? It's probable. Stay tuned." Give us a frappin' break.

Fourth: And since I'm harping on the media (my own profession), how about the increasingly prying study of celebrities'/politicians' activities? If we so desire (and even if we don't), we can have (or be exposed to) the low-down on nearly every aspect of a celebrity's life — his favorite night spots, his eating schedule, his shampoo, his most recent divorce proceedings, his gastro-intestinal condition, or how regularly he sees to his cuticles. I keep thinking that one of these days it's just going to blow up and there will be a blackout of all intimate details of people's lives. We can only hope.

Third: The berserk collecting rage of the last 30 years, generally of useless items, especially lately, and the resulting rape of the word "retired." The buyers are astoundingly gullible, believing any manufacturer who claims whatever product, left in its plastic casing, will be worth a gazillion dollars in five years. It's the manufacturers talking, you guys — the people who make and sell the items. (I am now rapping on your forehead. Hello?)

Second: The continuing demise of the English language. I would like to have a funeral service for the words "lie" and "lay," since hardly anyone seems to know how to use them correctly. The same goes for "went" and "gone," as well as the writing of "its" and "it's." I wrote a column about that some eight years ago and was chastised for caring about the proper usage of words. The complainant in effect said it just doesn't matter. I disagreed then and I do now. I contend, strongly, that a person gets farther in this life if he or she can properly and eloquently speak the language. Sorry. We all have our pet peeves.

And now, what you've all been waiting for (if you haven't already used this page for a napkin), the number one Most Annoying Thing of the Century: Lists.

Passing On Right

Eric Lapp, 23, Accident, was operating a 1998 Ford Escort on Route 219 near Mayhew Inn Road when he reportedly attempted to pass on the right of 1999 Dodge Caravan driven by Joseph Bogaski, 26, Pittsburgh. Tfc. Eric Derham reported that Lapp's Escort struck the rear of the Bogaski vehicle.

Trena Shelley, 28, Accident, a passenger in Lapp's car, was injured in the mishap and taken by Southern Rescue Squad to Garrett Memorial Hospital, where she was treated and released.

Deep Creek VFC also responded to the scene of the accident.

Failure To Control Speed

Three people were treated for injury following an accident on Route 219 in which one driver was charged by police with failure to control speed to avoid a collision.

Tfc. M. Kleddinger reported that on January 5 at 6:41 p.m. Glenn R. Sanders, Oakland, was driving a 1988 Dodge pickup truck northbound on Route 219 and slowed his vehicle for deer crossing the road in front of him. A 1998 Oldsmobile, driven by Debra Parandhamaia, slowed behind the Sanders vehicle. A third northbound vehicle, a 1992 Mercedes driven by Angela M. Blythe, Oakland, allegedly failed to reduce speed when approaching the Parandhamaia car, and a collision resulted.

Tfc. Kleddinger reported that the Blythe vehicle struck the rear of the Parandhamaia vehicle, forcing it into the Sanders vehicle.

All three drivers were taken to Garrett Memorial Hospital, where they were treated and released. Police filed charges against Blythe.

Proclamation Photos Curtailed

The news staff of The Republican newspaper has announced a change in procedure in regard to "proclamation" photographs. For many years, the staff has agreed to take photographs of persons or organizations who are proclaiming certain observations, causes, or celebrations. These photos have traditionally been of the Garrett County commissioners and representatives of the proclaiming organization. The newspaper staff will no longer provide this service.

However, organizations which engage in activities relevant to the proclaimed week (such as blood pressure checks for a health-related week, presentations for fire-prevention week, etc.) are encouraged to contact the paper to request coverage. Persons who wish to take their own photos of proclamations with the commissioners may bring these photos to the newspaper office for publication consideration. The news deadline is Tuesday at 5 p.m.

Special recognition by the commissioners, such as the honoring of Northern High School's football team this week, will continue to be covered by the news staff.

Truck Stolen

A 1990 Ford F-150 pickup truck, owned by James D. Rush, was reported stolen by unknown suspects from a residence in Friendsville sometime between midnight and 8:30 a.m. on January 7.

Assault Charges Filed

An investigation last week by two adult protective services workers resulted in assault charges being filed against a Grantsville man.

Tfc. T. LeMay of the McHenry barrack of Maryland State Police reported that Don A. Quinn and Martha J. Layton were attempting to conduct an adult protective services investigation when Richey David McKenzie, 45, became "extremely agitated" and allegedly threathened them with a gun.

McKenzie was charged with two counts of assault in the second degree and reckless endangerment. He was held on emergency petition.

tions in the Industrial Park in 1991 with three employees, has increased its employment base to 41, with additional staff of 4-6 expected to be hired in the near future.

Recently awarded contracts from the Department of the Air Force Armament Center at Eglin Air Force Base in Florida and the Department of the Air Force at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base in Ohio necessitated the addition for inventory storage and control. Also, new equipment was recently added, including a CNC milling machine, iron worker, bending machine and a CNC control for an existing saw. "The addition of new machinery and our increased workforce necessitated this building addition and will demonstrate to our customers and suppliers that we are a proactive company ready to accept new business," said Don Morin, president and owner.

"The GCS management and employee team, which was successful in obtaining ISO 9001 Registration in July of 1999 and HUB Zone certification, has been awaiting this building addition to improve our overall organization, control, and performance" noted Mark Tonkovich, operations manager.

Quality/Support Manager Jim Kesselring also commented on the new structure. "This building provides GCS with new challenges related to space utilization, storage, inventory control, and production processes," he said.

Funding for the addition was provided in part through the Business Revolving Loan Fund, which is administered by the Garrett County Development Corporation and funded from the MILA program of the Maryland Department of Business and Economic Development and matched by the Garrett County Board of County Commissioners.

"The Garrett County Development Corporation is pleased to partner with the state of Maryland's Department of Business and Economic Development in providing financial assistance to make this addition possible" said Cristine Kepple Sweitzer, chair of the corporation. She also noted that the commitment from the Garrett County Commissioners to match this program was a "key" factor in making this state and local funding partnership possible.

Wendell Beitzel, chairman of the Board of County Commissioners, reiterated the board's ongoing commitment to economic development in the county. "It is indeed gratifying to see the growth of this company, from a staff of three in 1991 to over 40 now. This kind of steady growth is a great foundation for the economic future of Garrett County," he concluded.

RECOGNIZING STUDENT ARTIST - Brianna Thayer of Southern High School was recognized by the Garrett County Board of Education this week for her artwork, which was selected by school superintendent Dr. Wendell Teets for use on the 1999 board of education Christmas card. Brianna was given a framed copy of the poinsettia design and message she submitted. In the photo above from left are board president Rodney Durst, Brianna displaying samples of her original painting, and Dr. Teets presenting her with the framed copy.

Fluoridation

Glotfelty, a proponent of fluoride, spoke from personal experience of seeing the benefit of fluoride for his friends growing up in Oakland. "My friends would have no cavities because they grew up with fluoride in the water. I didn't and I have a mouthful of fillings," he said.

Todd, who recently completed a preliminary study on the effects of fluoride in Garrett County, described her findings when comparing the dental health of children in Oakland to that of children living in Mtn. Lake Park without the benefit of fluoride. In her case studies, she noted, the incidents of tooth loss and decay were greater in the population with the untreated water than in the population with fluoridated water. "In fact, the children from the non-fluoridated town had nearly three times the rate of decay as children from the fluoridate town," Todd reported.

After speaking about the numbers of dental professionals and others supporting fluoride, Drs. Yant and Getty said that the issue is of such significant importance, that cost should not be a factor to permit defeat of the motion to implement a fluoride program. The dental professional community, they said, would undoubtedly assist with the expense of the program set up.

The issue of cost was addressed by Ron Petrella, director of the Garrett Sanitary District. Petrella said that the price tag for equipment and installation would be about $8,000. That amount, amortized over a three-year period, would be about 23 cents per year, per customer, he said.

Glotfelty said that he was reasonably sure that grant funding would be available for both the equipment and treatment material for the first year.

The time frame to install and implement such a system would depend on several factors, including funding and the input by Loch Lynn's population, which share the water supply with Mtn. Lake Park.

Shockey said that he had received 31 letters in support of the fluoride initiative and 1 against it. When Shockey asked that any opponent present voice opposition from the floor, there was no negative response. Later in the meeting, however, one resident did come in who spoke against the decision to fluoridate.

The unanimous vote from the council received a positive response from Shockey. "I feel like we really accomplished something here. The council did a fine job reviewing and responding to the report. It is good to be a part of something that will have long-term and immediate benefits," Shockey said.

Loch Lynn will review the information on fluoridation and the decision by the Mtn. Lake Park council during the next town meeting on Feb. 7. Loch Lynn's mayor, Charles Tressler, attended Tuesday night's meeting. He said he has had positive response from residents of that town.

Read. Then Recycle.

Non-Traditional Trans. Project Funds Available

Proposals for non-traditional transportation projects are being solicited by the Maryland Department of Transportation's State Highway Administration. Projects deemed eligible can be constructed by local governments and community groups with up to 50 percent of the funding provided the federal government's Transportation Enhancement Program under the Transportation Equity Act for the 21st Century (TEA-21).

"Instead of walking along old, cracked sidewalks or driving a car, would you rather bike along a path leading to your favorite park or rollerblade along a rehabilitated rail/trail lined in greenery?" asked SHA spokesperson Valerie Burnette Edgar. To date, more than $52 million in federal funds have been awarded to 121 projects in Maryland through the Transportation Enhancement Program. Projects funded so far have included urban greenways, rail-trail conversions, and historic site preservation and landscaping.

To provide better customer service, Edgar continued, SHA recently changed the procedure by which proposals are processed. Applications for funding will now be accepted on a continuous basis, eliminating the former biannual deadlines. The new rolling deadline will allow SHA to expedite review of proposals and provide more guidance on how to prepare projects for funding eligibility. While applications will be accepted throughout the year, funding decisions will still be announced twice a year, in spring and fall.

The Transportation Enhancement Program requires that the sponsor(s) demonstrate a relationship of the project to the transportation system and provide at least 50 percent of the entire project cost. Details on these and other guidelines are available from SHA's web page at www.sha.state.md.us/oppe/tep.htm or by calling the Enhancement Liaison at 410-545-5675 or toll free at 1-888-204-4828.

Covered buttons lined the zipper, and matching lace bordered the hemline and chapel-length train. The head piece, covered with pearls, held a fingertip-length veil of imported French illusion.

The guest book was attended by Tabitha Bowser; the programs were distributed by Melissa Bowser; and the bubbles were distributed by Emily Sisler. All are cousins of the bride.

A reception was held at the Ramada Inn, Somerset, Pa. The tiered, heart-shaped wedding cake was baked by Christie Thomas. Photography was provided by Ken Specht Photography, and the videographer was Rick Brenneman.

A rehearsal dinner was hosted by the groom's parents at the Oakhurst Tea Room, Somerset. The bride was guest of honor at a bridal shower, hosted by her aunts and sisters at Sand Spring Church of God Fellowship Hall, Friendsville.

The bride is a graduate of Northern High School and has a degree in nursing from Allegany College of Maryland. She is employed in the intensive care unit at Somerset Hospital, and by Ruby Memorial Hospital, Morgantown, W.Va., as a registered nurse in the cardiac department.

"Farside Charms" Art Exhibit, Reception Slated At Garrett CC

The Art Gallery at Garrett Community College is hosting a contemporary installation by Steve Schlosnagle, administrator of the Garrett County Arts Council. Titled "Farside Charms #233," in reference to being the 233rd exhibit shown at the GCC gallery, the current installation challenges conventional conceptions of art. The mixed-media display ""hopefully elicits a broad range of emotional responses," said Schlosnagle, "including delight, humor, introspection, perplexity, and perhaps even a degree of anger or revulsion."

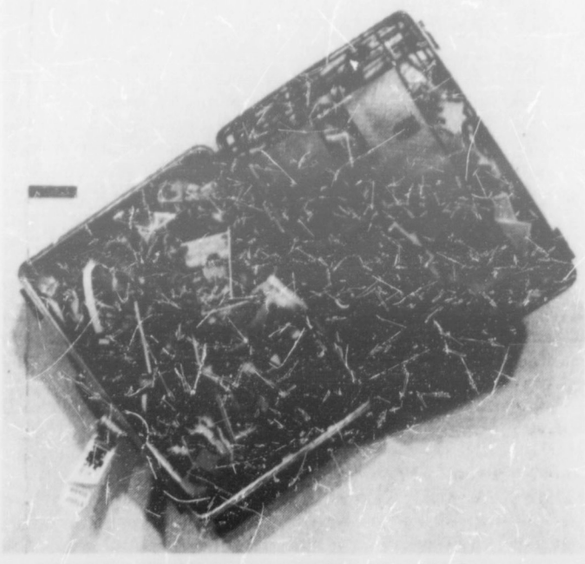
The public is invited to a free fireside reception for "Farside Charms," set for Friday evening, Jan. 21, beginning at 7 p.m. Schlosnagle will lead an art talk titled "Fifteen Minutes" at 8 p.m., and folk musician Susan Weisbrod will provide a brief musical interlude consisting of relevant Joni Mitchell tunes. Refreshments for the reception will be provided through the courtesy of the art gallery.

The most traditional works featured in the "Farside Charms" exhibit consist of combinations of found objects literally relating to Appalachian woods heritage and the unique legacy of natural patterns bestowed by a nearly extinct species of tree — the chestnut. A large black-and-white piece titled "Draned" explores the human relationships spanning space and time which emerged through the administration of the James Drane House preservation project in Accident from 1985 through 1996.

The balance of the display is contemporary in tone and execution, Schlosnagle said. "'Y2K ART II' adds an innovative twist to the fictional work of art which serves as the basis for relationship exploration in the Broadway play ART. 'Frisky Nudes' reflects preconceived expectations, while 'Duck' actually reflects the perceiver. 'Buzzy Funnies' serves as a playful spin on the 'fuzzy bunnies' occasionally conjured by a popular television art instructor. 'Found' begs the basic question, 'What's art?'" concluded Schlosnagle.

The Art Gallery at Garrett Community College is open during regular college hours. "Farside Charms" will be on display through January. Additional information is available by calling the Art Department at Garrett Community College at 301-387-3024 or the Garrett County Arts Council at 301-387-3121.

The gallery program is funded in part by a grant from the Garrett County Arts Council and the Maryland State Arts Council, an agency of the state of Maryland, with funding from the National Endowment for the Arts.



PROVING THAT ART IS WHERE YOU FIND IT, many of the works currently on display in the "Farside Charms" exhibit at the Garrett Community College Art Gallery are found objects picked up by an observant Steve Schlosnagle. The mixed-media display includes works made of both natural and man-made materials. "Night Vision," pictured above, is a piece of tree wood that bears a striking resemblance to a deer's head, while the work shown below is simply titled "Travel." The suitcase filled with postcards "explores the artistic heritage and traditions of European visual masterpieces and links the content of European art museums to the installation in the community college at McHenry," explained Schlosnagle. The art exhibit runs through January, and the public is invited to a fireside reception beginning at 7 p.m. on Friday, Jan. 21. The reception will feature a talk by the artist, musical entertainment, and free refreshments.

Notes from Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

I saw some cousins that I had not seen in a long time on Sunday afternoon at the memorial service for our cousin, John Buckel. Connie Klotz Savage, Linda Glotfelty Oester and daughter Shelley, and, of course, Larry Buckel and Bonnie Buckel McElroy were there, as well as many of Harriett's family and also Ken's family. I thought it was the annual cousins' picnic. Unfortunately, I couldn't visit with them at the meal afterwards at the fire hall, as Lloyd and I had to rush out to Northern to catch our Claire's first home basketball game.

Claire's 8th grade team defeated the team from Braddock Middle School in Cumberland by three points. We were excited about the excellent defensive play that Claire put in. She even stole the ball one time. She is very inexperienced since this is her first year at playing, so she did not get a lot of playing time. I am so glad she gets a chance to play inter–school sports. It was much different when I was in junior high school. In our 8th grade physical education class we had a very good team. We asked the principal if we could form a real girl's team, but they told us "it is against the law," which was not true. I remember we played a game with the 9th grade PE team while all the kids from both grades watched. We did win.

Remember the old way the girls' basketball games were played? The guards stayed on the defensive end of the court and the forwards stayed on the other end. It was a stupid way to play a great game, but that was how it was in the "good old days." Since I was a guard, I never ever got a chance to shoot.

My most glorious moment on the basketball court was in my early years when I was on the Garrett Community College faculty teams, which was before my kids came along. The faculty fielded a team for intermural competition against student teams. In the final game, someone passed the ball to me in three-point land, and a student, Scott Stem, who was an awesome three-point shooter, shouted, "Shoot, Joan!" So help me, I did and, "Swish," nothing but net. If Scott had not yelled at me, I would never have known how wonderful the feeling was to make a big basket. We did win the championship. Not bad for some old has-beens; however, we did have on our team Dennis Gibson and Ann Welham, who were real players.

I was proud of myself, but not as proud as when I watch my Claire doing her very best. She looked so serious and intent in trying not to make any mistakes since in so close a game, one mistake could lose the game. But they got their very first win. Also, on the team from Bittinger is one of Claire's friends, Tarah Sines.

Playing on the 8th grade boys' team were Brent Housley and Robbie Glotfelty. Robbie even passed up a chance to attend the Maryland vs Duke basketball game at College Park to play in his game. However, his parents, Rodney and Marci, went to the game at College Park only to see the Terps lose the game. Matthew Bass played on the 7th grade boys' team. It was a full Sunday afternoon of basketball games.

If it is not enough that the hoop season is in the early stage, the cold dreary rain must be an early sign of winter in Bittinger. I hope we get some more decent snow, since my family members are whining because they want to do some cross country skiing. From somewhere the sun came out for awhile. The huge flock of crows in our pasture got a chance to bask in bright sunshine. I never saw so many crows in one place. Well, so much for the sunshine, as as fast as I wrote, the rain is back harder than ever. However, here the sun is again back and brighter. That's our weather in Bittinger. Whoops, now a big thunder clap and now the hail!

Now for some social activity in Bittinger. Holiday dinner guests of the Poholskys were Blair Buckel, Stanton/Beachy families, Brent Housley and the Monty Pagenharts, Oakland, and Wilma Calhoun, who celebrated her 91st birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. Dwaine Platter and children of Smithsburg were weekend guests of relatives here, and attended a Platter family gathering at the home of their grandmother Anna, near Jennings.

Jeff, Sheli, and Ashlin Gray, Hanover, recently returned from vacationing with relatives in Massachusetts and a skiing trip to Maine. They were Sunday dinner guests of Jim and Donna Glotfelty, where other guests were William and Linda Oester, Salisbury, Pa.; Julius and Karmen Carey, Frostburg; Dwaine, Lisa, Adam and Amanda Platter, Smithsburg; Jodi Platter, Grantsville; and Ida Reckner. Many of them attended the memorial service held Sunday afternoon for John Buckel at Emmanuel Lutheran Church in Bittinger, and the fellowship afterward at the Community Building. They returned to the Glotfelty home for the annual treasure hunt for the grandchildren, where other guests were Cheryl, Tim, and Taylor Glotfelty. Cheryl and Tim has just returned from spending several days with her parents, Herbert and Mary Harman, at the Donald Harshberger home in Laurel. Herbert is recuperating there after undergoing heart surgery last week. He hopes to return to his home in the Cove area in a few days.

Healthy-O-Living in Garrett County

Mountain Top Mental Health Associates Inc.

Dubé Leaving CSA Position

by Peggy Santamaria

The quality of life for people in Garrett County who have mental illness has been enhanced during the last 18 months or so, largely through the efforts of David Dubé. As the first director of Mtn. Top Mental Health Associates Inc., the county's core service agency (CSA), Dubé has worked to achieve the goals set forth by the community of providing a holistic approach of integrated mental health services. Recently, however, Dubé announced that he will be relocating and therefore leaving his post.

Under his leadership, opportunities and services for county residents with mental illness have expanded to include more housing, more coordination of services, and extension of services to a wider population. "David has done a remarkable job in developing additional resources for Garrett County that we never had here before," said Christine Felker, president of the board of directors of MTMHA.

Dubé has accessed funding for a local housing coordinator whose responsibility it is to ensure there is a continuum of care in the home, providing graduated levels of support for those with mental illness. "Housing is one of the biggest problems that face people with mental illness. There are a lot of hurdles we have overcome, but there is much more we need to do," Dubé said.

In addition to focusing on improving the housing opportunities, specialists are now working to coordinate the mental health services currently provided in the community for adults as well as for children and families. The coordinator works to ensure there is a smooth integration of services to meet individual client needs. "It may be best for the consumer to combine activity A from one provider and activity B from another provider," he pointed out, noting the importance of meshing services in the best interest of the consumer.

Under Dubé's leadership, youth in the community are receiving new attention. "We are now focusing more on child services," Felker noted, adding that a new person has recently been hired who will concentrate on assessing the mental health needs of and services for children in Garrett County.

Parents raising a child with an emotional or mental disturbance may benefit from in-home intervention and an explanation of the various support options available to them in this stressful situation. "Respite care may be helpful to the parents. Preserving the family unit in the community is very important," he said.

Mary Ann Brenneman, who is on the board of directors of the Garrett County branch of the National Alliance for Mental Illness, spoke about Dubé's dedication to the consumer of mental health services. "We have made tremendous strides since he has been here. Concern for the consumer has come to the top of the list. I have been very impressed with what he has done," she said.

Howard Gerard, who is a member of the board of directors of MTMHA and of Garrett County NAMI, praised Dubé for his efforts on behalf of mental health consumers. "He has been wonderful. We have seen changes for the good and great progress, because he really cares about the mentally ill," Gerard said.

To meet some of the individual consumer needs, Dubé accessed a grant that provides discretionary funds. "We now have monies that can be used flexibly for individual client needs. It could be used for dental work, glasses, some type of medication not covered by insurance, or even a tutor," Felker said.

Dubé indicated that while some improvements have been made in delivery of mental health services in Garrett County, obstacles remain. "We have the money in the community to do the job. We need to get providers on the same page. The mental health system is made up of individual agencies. The biggest challenge is to develop a shared vision and to act in the best interest of the consumer," he noted.

Next week David Dubé will leave his office and begin preparations for his move to Arizona. The work he did in establishing the Mtn. Top Mental Health Associates and his contributions to the well-being of individuals with mental illness and their families have been widely and deeply appreciated.

The board of directors of the MTMHA will soon begin the process of seeking a person to carry on the work so ably begun. "David accomplished so much. Now the infrastructure is in place and the agency is at a wonderful 'taking off' place," Felker said, indicating her hopes for the future.

The Flu's Here

Along with the rest of the state and the nation, Garrett County has seen its share of flu symptoms recently. Across Maryland, a marked increase over the last two weeks in flu-like illnesses has been seen by hospital emergency rooms, infection control practitioners, and laboratories, according to the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene (DHMH).

It is not necessarily too late to take preventive action against invasion of the infection by getting a flu shot, according to DHMH secretary Dr. Georges C. Benjamin. "The peak flu season usually arrives in late January or early February, and typically lasts from six to eight weeks. It has arrived earlier this year compared to last year. If you get a flu shot in the near future, you'll probably be protected for the last half of the flu season. It takes up to two weeks for the influenza vaccination to provide full protection," he said.

Remaining supplies of the influenza vaccine are limited. In Garrett County, the health department reports a small portion of the vaccine is still available, and some physicians in the area report having a supply of vaccine on hand. Anyone considering getting a flu shot at this time is advised to check with a family doctor or call the health department at 301-895-3111 or 301-334-8111.

Tips To Fight Flu

Flu-like symptoms include: fever, soar throat, cough, headache, and muscle aches. Persons experiencing these symptoms should consult a doctor about medications that can limit the duration and severity of the illness. Persons should also get plenty of bed rest. Fluids, including hot water, herbal teas, and chicken soup, may help relieve cough and congestion. Smoking will irritate throats and make the coughs worse for those people with the flu.

There are many steps that can be taken to help prevent becoming infected with the flu.

- Cleanliness is essential. Hands should be washed often. Anything that a sick child or adult has touched should also be cleaned. Hands should be kept away from noses, eyes, and mouths.
- Well-balanced, nutritious meals help build up resistance to influenza.
- Personal items, such as tooth brushes, and food and drinks should not be shared.
- The flu is spread by hand-to-hand contact and through the air when people cough, sneeze, and talk. To help prevent the spread of germs, people should wash their hands often, cover their mouths when they sneeze or cough, and use disposable facial tissues that can be thrown away after each use.
- Once the flu virus enters a body, the carrier may be able to spread it to others for three to five days after sickness begins.

Persons seeking more information about the influenza virus may contact the health department at 301-334-8111 or 301-895-3111.

Red Cross Feels Impact Of Flu On Blood Collection

As an increasing number of area residents become ill with influenza, the region's blood inventory remains low. The Western Potomac Chapter of the American Red Cross has encouraged residents of the tri-state area to donate blood to help rebuild the region's supply.

According to Kim Gluck, blood services director, it is important that an adequate blood supply must be readily available at all times. "The American Red Cross must be prepared for every kind of emergency during the winter months so that we can effectively respond to the needs of the public we serve," she said.

To be eligible to donate blood, individuals must be at least 17 years of age, weigh 105 pounds, and be in generally good health. Individuals can donate every 56 days.

A weekly blood drive is held on Wednesdays from noon to 6 p.m. at the Chapter House in Cumberland. In addition, bloodmobiles are scheduled this month at Potomac State College, Keyser, W.Va., on Jan. 26, from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. and at Keyser high School, Jan. 27, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

March Of Dimes Goal: Prevention Of Birth Defects

The March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation, in its efforts to educate the public about the extent, effects, and prevention of birth defects, has issued the following statistics.

In Maryland each year it is estimated that nearly 3,000 babies are born with birth defects. In an average week in Maryland, of the 1,376 babies born, 138 are born to teen mothers, 33 to mothers who receive late or no prenatal care, 118 babies have a low birth weight, 26 have a very low birth weight, and 12 will die before reaching their first birthday.

The Garrett County Health Department has joined with the March of Dimes to help women in this area learn what they can do to increase their chances of having healthy babies.

Some birth defects are preventable. The U.S. Public Health Service, recommending that all women of childbearing age (age 15-44 years old) consume 400 micrograms (400 mcg or 0.4 mg) of folic acid each day, stated that folic acid, a B-vitamin, taken before and in the early weeks of pregnancy, can reduce a woman's risk of having a pregnancy affected by a neural tube defect. In the U.S., neural tube defects affect an estimated 4,000 pregnancies each year. The most common of these defects is spina bifida, the leading cause of childhood paralysis.

In order to consume the recommended amount of folic acid, experts advise women to eat foods rich in folate and to take a multivitamin or folic acid pill every day. Foods rich in folate include leafy green vegetables, orange juice, and beans. Certain breakfast cereals are now fortified with folic acid, as are enriched grains and pastas. Most experts caution that it is difficult to maintain the daily requirement without supplementing a women's diet with multivitamins or folic acid pills.

A recent report by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention released the findings of a survey showing that only 13% of the women studied knew that folic acid helps prevent birth defects, and only 7% knew that it should be taken before pregnancy to prevent birth defects.

The March of Dimes notes that other birth defects are preventable because they are associated with behaviors such as smoking, substance abuse, and poor nutrition. Fetal alcohol syndrome, one of the leading causes of mental retardation, is 100% preventable.

AMERICORPS SUPPORTS DOVE CENTER - The participants in the AmeriCorps After-School Program at Southern Middle School recently conducted a food drive for the Dove Center, Garrett County's domestic abuse shelter. Students received extra points in the program if they brought in cans of food. AmeriCorps members at the Garrett County Health Department also assisted the center by donating $25 earned as participants in the WKHJ/Uno's Restaurant Trivia Challenge. Above left, Elizabeth Gibbons, After-School Program coordinator, presents some of the donated food to Linda Spassil, director of the Dove Center.

What Steps Can Women Take For Healthier Babies?

Not all birth defects can be prevented, but a woman can increase her chances of having a healthy baby. Many birth defects occur early in a pregnancy, before a woman knows she is pregnant. Since half of all pregnancies are unplanned, the following steps are recommended for women by the National Birth Defects Prevention Network.

- Take a vitamin that has folic acid in it every day.
- Have regular medical check-ups.
- Talk to health care providers about any medical problems and medicine use (both over the counter and prescription). Ask about avoiding any substances at work or at home that might be harmful to a developing baby.
- Eat a balanced, healthy diet.
- Avoid eating raw or undercooked meat.
- Avoid alcohol, tobacco, and street drugs.

Huskies Breeze To Another Invitational Championship

With six individual championships and seven runner-up placings, the Northern High School wrestling team cruised to an easy first-place team finish in the annual Garrett County Invitational Tournament, held at Southern High School on Saturday.

The Huskies, coached by Scott Stough, amassed 121.5 points to easily defeat six other teams, plus B teams that were entered by both Northern and Southern. The host Rams finished in third place with 63.5 points behind Northern and second-place Linganore with 72 points. Hyndman was fourth with 56, followed by Somerset with 45.5, Northern B team with 44, Georgetown Prep with 43.5, Southern B team with 28, and South Harrison with 10.

Five of the 14 championship bouts featured a Northern Husky against a Southern Ram. Winning titles for the Huskies were Pete Stein, Blake Huber, Paul Beitzel, defending Maryland state champion Brandon Stein, Keith Artice, and Trey Brenneman. Pete Stein won the 103-pound title by pinning Southern's Chris Hayhurst. Huber took the 112-pound division by recording a decision over Ryan Price of Somerset. Beitzel won the 130-pound class with a pin of Somerset's Matt Sarver. Brandon Stein recorded a decision over Southern's Nick Sines to win the 135-pound class, and Artice captured the 145-pound title with a decision over Andrew Grant of Southern. Trey Brenneman was the victor in the title bout of the 215-pound class, as he out-pointed Richard Kim of Georgetown Prep.

The Rams, coached by Kurt Lear, finished with three individual titles and three runners-up, as Jeremy Hayhurst won the 160-pound division with a decision over Northern's Mark Wolf, Shane Stahlman captured the 171-pound title by pinning David Wampler, also of Northern, and John Hayhurst, a defending Maryland state 1A/2A runner-up, was the champion in the 189-pound class when he out-pointed Northern's Ryan Brenneman.

Second places for the Huskies were earned by Matt McNees (119), Jeremiah Guard (125), Brandon Kamp (140), Adam Brenneman (152), Wolf (160), Wampler (171), and Ryan Brenneman (189). Earning runner-up trophies for the Rams were Chris Hayhurst (103), Sines (135), and Grant (145).

Other individual weight class titles were won by: Dave Pucino (119) and John Gurole of Linganore (125), Nathan Satzer (140) and Butch Davis (heavyweight) of Hyndman, and Drew Toth (152) of South Harrison.

The Huskies and Rams will meet each other again this evening at Northern, and yet again next Thursday night at Southern.

Husky Matmen Lose First, Rebound Against University

Prior to capturing another Garrett County Invitational Wrestling Tournament on Saturday (see separate story), the Northern High School Huskies sustained their first regular-season defeat of the 1999-2000 campaign, as they dropped a 33-22 decision to Fairmont West last Thursday evening in a tri-meet at Fairmont. The Huskies dominated University High of Morgantown in their other match, 60-9.

It was nearly three years since Coach Scott Stough and his team experienced a regular-season loss, as their last defeat was at the hands of Meyersdale on January 21 of 1997.

Husky, Ram Booters Earn All-Area, All-WMIL Honors

Butler, Sincell Top WMIL Players

BROOKE BUTLER

MIRIAM SINCELL

Area and Western Maryland Interscholastic League soccer coaches recently completed their balloting in selecting area players for post-season honors, and Garrett County's two high schools were well represented in the final lists for All-Area and All-WMIL selections.

The top local picks in the girls' lists were Brooke Butler of Northern High School, who was named WMIL Offensive Player of the Year, and Miriam Sincell of Southern High School, who was selected the WMIL Defensive Player of the Year.

Other local first-team All-WMIL picks were Megan Burner and Becky Martin of Southern, and Ashley Warnick of Northern. Second-team All-WMIL selections included Brittany Naylor, Bonnie Riley, and Sarah Teets of Southern, and Trisha Kamp of Northern.

Named to the All-Area first team were Butler, Sincell, Burner, and Martin, with Naylor and Warnick each named to the All-Area second team. It was the second year in a row that Sincell and Martin were named to the first team.

Getting honorable mention All-Area were Randi Beiler and Kamp of Northern, and Alison Ulino of Southern, while Beiler and Heidi Pierce of Northern, and Southern's Gina Reeves and Ulino received honorable mention All-WMIL.

In the balloting for the boys, Northern's Woody Kenner and Ronnie Lipscomb, and Southern's Michael Schwalm were named to both the All-Area and All-WMIL first teams, while Dustin Slider was selected first team All-WMIL and second team All-Area. Also named to the second team All-Area squad were Don Parsons of Southern and Mike Fletcher of Northern. Southern's Chris Remley, Bryan Schwalm, and Parsons, and Northern's Gilpin and Fletcher were also named to the second team All-WMIL.

Receiving All-Area honorable mention were Remley and Bryan Schwalm of Southern, and Gilpin of Northern.

Senior striker Brooke Butler was the area's third leading scorer, first in the WMIL, and paced the Huskies to their best record in school history and their first WMIL championship. The WMIL Offensive Player of the Year scored 10 goals in 13 games and had three assists for goals.

"Brooke's real strength is the fact that she is such a powerful striker from the left side," stated Northern coach Lisa Lantz. "She has an unstoppable left foot. As a senior, she also provided a lot of experience and leadership for our young team."

The Huskies won the WMIL with a 6-0 league record and finished with an overall mark of 10-3.

Sophomore sweeper Miriam Sincell, named the WMIL Defensive Player of the Year, utilizes exceptional foot speed and quickness in leading the Southern defense, which gave up only 18 goals in 12 matches this past season. In seven of those matches, opponents scored one or no goals. Sincell also scored one goal for the Rams.

"Miriam is one of the quickest and smartest defensive players in the entire area," said Ron Petrella, head coach of the Rams. "She always seems to be in the right place at the right time. Her speed allows her to stop offensive surges in the defensive zone, and she is able to quickly recover and get into position to stop break-aways. I know our goalkeepers are pleased to have Miriam playing right in front of them."

Sophomore midfielder Megan Burner excelled on both offense and defense for the Rams, as she was the second leading scorer on the team with seven goals and four assists.

"Megan is our 'quarterback'," Petrella said. "She is a very talented athlete and is so competitive that she is sometimes very hard on herself. She is a leader who possesses a good attitude and tremendous soccer skills."

Sophomore goalkeeper Becky Martin, who was the area's defensive player of the year as a freshman, made 92 saves and allowed only 17 goals this past season, giving her a save percentage of .844. In brief appearances as an offensive player, she scored two goals. She was named by her team as Player of the Year.

"Becky brings to the field qualities that cannot be coached — desire and the willingness to play," Petrella said. "As keeper and captain of our team, she sets the example for others to follow. She is one of the best keepers in the area, and I look forward to her being a member of our team for the next two years."

Northern High junior midfielder Ashley Warnick is another versatile players, as she excelled not only mid-field, but in the goal as a keeper for the Huskies. Besides being a key to Northern's success on offense, as a keeper she recorded 74 saves and allowed only 16 goals for a .822 save percentage.

"Ashley is a great multi-purpose player," Coach Lantz said. "At midfield she scored goals and provided a lot of field direction. In the goal she was very aggressive and had a number of outstanding saves. I'm very happy that she will be back in the line-up next year."

Northern's Trisha Kamp is also a junior, and considered by Lantz as another of her field leaders. "Trisha is without a doubt the most aggressive player on the team," Lantz said. "She is fearless, and her effort in every match is outstanding."

Brittany Naylor, who is a freshman striker for the Rams, led the team in scoring and was fourth in the area with 13 goals in nine matches. "Brittany had a great first year, I look forward to what she will bring to our team over the next three," Petrella said.

Bonnie Riley, the only starting senior on the Southern squad, was another tenacious defensive player for Petrella and Ram fans. "I will really miss Bonnie next year," Petrella said. "She is a leader, a captain of the team, and was an integral part of our defense."

Sarah Teets will return to the Ram line-up for one more season, having gone from being the team's leading scorer her sophomore year to a key defensive player this past season. "Sarah did not receive the accolades she deserves," Petrella said. "After being our leading scorer, she unselfishly accepted the challenge of filling a void we had on defense, and she played wonderfully. I was very proud of how she willingly gave up a 'glory' position for the benefit of the team."

The coaches also commented on the honorable mention selections.

"Randi Beiler is a great team player," Coach Lantz said. "She played very well at midfield, but was an outstanding back-up goalkeeper, where she recorded some incredible saves.

"Heidi Pierce provided a lot of speed and excellent defense consistently throughout the season," she concluded.

"Gina Reeves was our third leading scorer," Petrella said, "and she is an aggressive player who drives herself to be the best she can be. Alison Ulino fought back from a knee injury to become an integral part of our defense. She brings the desire to play every day and has a great attitude."

Woody Kenner, junior goalkeeper for Coach Tom Ables and the Northern Huskies, had an excellent season in goal, with the highlight of his season being in a 2-0 playoff loss to powerful Williamsport. In that contest Kenner had 27 saves, involving a number of break-away opportunities. He finished the season with 115 saves and allowed only 17 goals.

b(NHS GRIDDERS HONORED — The West Region 1-A football champs of Northern High School traveled to Oakland Tuesday to receive recognition from the Garrett County commissioners. The team members and their coaches gathered in the commissioners' meeting room, where the three elected officials congratulated the young men on their perfect regular season record and their valiant efforts in play-off competition. "You probably don't realize it right now, but the things you learn in high school sports — discipline, responsibility, team work — will be useful to you for your entire life," said Commissioner Ernie Gregg. The sentiment was echoed by Commissioners Wendell Beitzel and Fred Holliday, who also joined Gregg in commending Coach Phil Carr and his assistants for their success in leading the team. In the front row, left to right, are players Rob Dozier, Josh Resh, Brant Green, Marcas Rugg, Dave Wampler, Brandon Stein, Keith Artlce, and Adam Brenneman. In the second row, same order, are Toby Gilpin, Josh Swandol, Justin Robison, Dan Rounds, Adam Butner, Nathan Resh, and Dale Hetrick. Third row: Brandon Wilkens, Ryan Brenneman, Ryan Savage, Mark Wolf, Brandon Kamp, Bill Rodeheaver, and Jason Perry. Standing, left to right, are Commissioners Beitzel, Gregg, and Holliday, and Coaches Phil Carr, Joe McKenzie, and Frank Ewing.

Southern Mat Members Win Many Trophies

Nineteen members of the Southern Mat Club youth wrestling team competed in a tournament Saturday in Kingwood, W.Va. Sponsored by the Preston Mat Club, the event involved nearly 500 individual wrestlers representing 48 teams from five states. The SMC team members brought home 13 individual trophies and as a team, earned the third place team trophy.

"I am so proud of these kids," stated Coach Dave Taylor. "The very best wrestlers in this part of the country were at this tournament. After our performance this weekend, I consider these SMC wrestlers to be included as one of the most talented groups of young wrestlers around."

Individually, three wrestlers defeated all their competitors to earn first places. Jakob "Bubba" Scheffel (5&6, 50#), Daniel Carr (9&10, 80#), and Casey Kamp (11&12, 75#) each won all four of their matches to claim top honors in their respective classes. Additionally, four more SMC wrestlers lost only once in their class to claim the second place trophies. Lex Ozias (7&8, 45#), Justin Ratliff (11&12, 75#), Tyler Gregory (5&6, 50#), and Scott Wildesen (11&12, 108#) each lost only once in the final round.

Third-place honors were claimed by three SMC wrestlers. George "Brutus" Scheffel (7&8, 50#), Scott Wildesen (13&15, 102#), and Jeremy Gregory (11&12, 100#) each lost only once and earned third place trophies. Fourth-place trophies were won by Jakob "Bubba" Scheffel (7&8, 50#), Justin Ratliff (9&10, 75#), and George "Brutus" Scheffel (9&10, 55#).

Those wrestlers who won individual matches, but were unable to capture trophies, were Ryan Ratliff (5&6, 45#), Coty Rasel (5&6, 50#), Nicholas Brant (7&8, 55#), and Paul Beckman (11&12, 80#). The other SMC wrestlers who competed in Kingwood were Gavin Murphy, Rusty Gover, Chris Hechmer, Aaron Friend, Colin McCaffrey, and Jeffrey Gregory.

"These kids did an outstanding job," said Coach Darrell Ozias. "From our three individual champions all the way to our first-year wrestlers who had never stepped on the mat before, the SMC wrestlers showed the determination it takes to be a winner. Every single SMC athlete who competed did his very best, and we as coaches can't ask for any more than that."

On Sunday, another 19 SMC athletes traveled to Short Gap, W.Va., for more wrestling action at Frankfort High School. At this event, five team members finished the day unbeaten. Gavin Murphy, Ryan Junkins, Colin McCaffrey, and Kurt Gangler each won two matches without a loss, and Nathan Gover won one. The following wrestlers won at least one match at Frankfort: Coty Rasel, Brady Donaldson, Michael Paugh, Nick Brant, Rusty Gover, Kevin Mauk, Shane Knotts, and Chris Tepper. Zachary McCaffrey, Derek Fratz-Orr, Anthony Hook, Leslie Green, Aaron Friend, and Anthony Cervi also competed.

This weekend, the team will travel to Clarksburg, W.Va., on Saturday and Keyser, W.Va., on Sunday.

Northern Girls Trounce Beall; Downed By Salisbury At Buzzer

The Northern High School girls' basketball team has nowhere to go but up, or down, after splitting this week's action to remain at .500 with a 6-6 record. The Huskies began the week on a peak after a 41-28 trouncing of Beall's Mountaineers at home Monday, but fell in a heartbreaker last night as it took a three-pointer at the buzzer for host Salisbury to emerge on top by a 47-46 margin.

The Huskies downed the Mountaineers Monday night behind the scoring duo of senior guards Heather Nugent and Heidi Frazee. Nugent scored 12 points while Frazee accounted for 11 points and took down nine rebounds, the same number of rebounds grabbed by Bridget Frazee, a sophomore forward. Senior guard Mimi Harvey came away with five steals.

Northern, which held a 13-10 advantage after the first quarter, held Beall to four points in the second quarter and was up 22-14 at the half. The Huskies led by a 28-20 margin after three quarters.

The NHS junior varsity team stormed Beall by a 31-17 margin. Sophomore forward Christie Flockhart notched a double-double of 10 points and 10 rebounds for the Huskies, while the Mountaineers' Jennifer DeVore led all scorers with 11 points.

Last night's contest was a hard-fought battle that ended when Salisbury's Megan Lishia launched a three-pointer that downed the Huskies at the buzzer by a single point. Lishia's bomb from the corner put the finishing touches on a come from behind victory for the Elks, as the Huskies had mounted a 14-5 lead after the first quarter, a 21-19 halftime advantage, and were up by one, 34-33, at the opening of the final stanza.

"They picked up their play and we didn't," commented NHS head coach Julie Hoffman. "They came out strong in the second half and outscored us from then on."

Nugent paced Northern with 13 points, and also dished out four assists and took five steals. Heidi Frazee scored 12 points and Bridget Frazee added seven points and pulled down 12 rebounds. Salisbury's Jenny Pope led all scorers with 17 points while Lishia contributed 15 points. Natasha Munion added 13 points.

Flockhart led Northern to a 19-14 victory in the junior varsity contest, as the 5-11 forward grabbed nine rebounds and scored six points.

Northern travels to Fort Hill Monday to take on the Sentinels, prior to a Wednesday visit to Flintstone.

Herbert Dedicates Biking Trip Across America To His Father

by Jessica Hinebaugh

Bicycle enthusiasts from around the world, including at least one Garrett County resident, are gearing up for the challenge of a lifetime — the 2000 Big Ride Across America, which raises money for the American Lung Association to fight lung disease. The scenic 3,250-mile ride will begin in Seattle, on June 19, 2000, and end 48 days later in Washington, D.C., on August 5.

Past Big Ride cyclists have described the adventure as a life-altering experience, capped off by personal achievement they've only dreamed about. Future riders may see the event as the ultimate adventure and a way to make a contribution to a worthy cause.

Swanton resident Adam Herbert, currently a junior mechanical engineering student at the University of Maryland at College Park, will be participating as Rider #2037 in the 2000 Big Ride Across America. "It has always been a dream of mine to bike coast-to-coast, but I've always been unsure of how I could accomplish this voyage," Herbert said. "My father, Douglas Herbert, once suggested that I make the journey in the name of a worthy nonprofit organization. Until his recent death caused by lung cancer I simply did not have enough motivation to take on such a large task. However, I now feel that bringing awareness to lung diseases and the harmfulness of tobacco is something that I must do."

Herbert has been mountain biking for the past five years. When his father died in May of 1999, Herbert decided to participate in the 2000 Big Ride, so he purchased his first road-bike in August. "When I found out that the true meaning of the ride was to help others, I was hooked," said Herbert. The Big Ride will be his first serious road-event.

He started training for the challenge in October, while attending college, by biking to various area places around College Park with help and directions from many people familiar to the area around the university. While on winter break from college, Herbert has been biking continuously every day. He covers about 40 miles each day all over Garrett County, and will continue his training when he returns to college.

Herbert was once intimidated by the sheer mileage he must cover each day in the Big Ride (81), but many of his fears were put to rest when he met bikers who rode in the Big Ride in past years. "The main thing that helped boost my confidence was meeting a 70-year-old man who had participated last year," Herbert said. "He assured me that the mileage flies by. The hardest thing to do is just get up every day."

Each rider will raise much-needed funds to benefit local and national lung disease research and education programs. These programs include camps for children with asthma, asthma research, initiatives to reduce air pollution, and training high school students in tobacco use prevention.

"Each rider must raise a minimum of $7,000 in donations to be able to participate in the ride," Herbert commented. "Being a full-time engineering student at the University of Maryland, I thought I simply did not have the time to raise this large amount of money. However, after my father passed away I realized that this was something that could be done — with hard work and perseverance. My personal goal is to raise $10,000 in donations by May 2000."

Even more important to many riders is educating people along the trip about the dangers and causes of lung disease. Herbert wants to emphasize the dangers of smoking and the effects the habit has on a person's health. "Much pain and suffering can be stopped, but only if we take the time to teach each other about the dangers of smoking," he commented.

The participants want to be able to connect with individuals they educate and try to make sure they do not have to experience the distress lung diseases cause families. One in every seven deaths in America is directly related to lung disease, and the ratio is growing. "Lung disease is one of the nation's fastest growing health problems," said Ernest P. Franck, president of the American Lung Association. "Most people know someone whose life has been touched by lung disease. They could have a nephew with asthma, lost a mother to lung cancer, or watched a close friend die from emphysema."

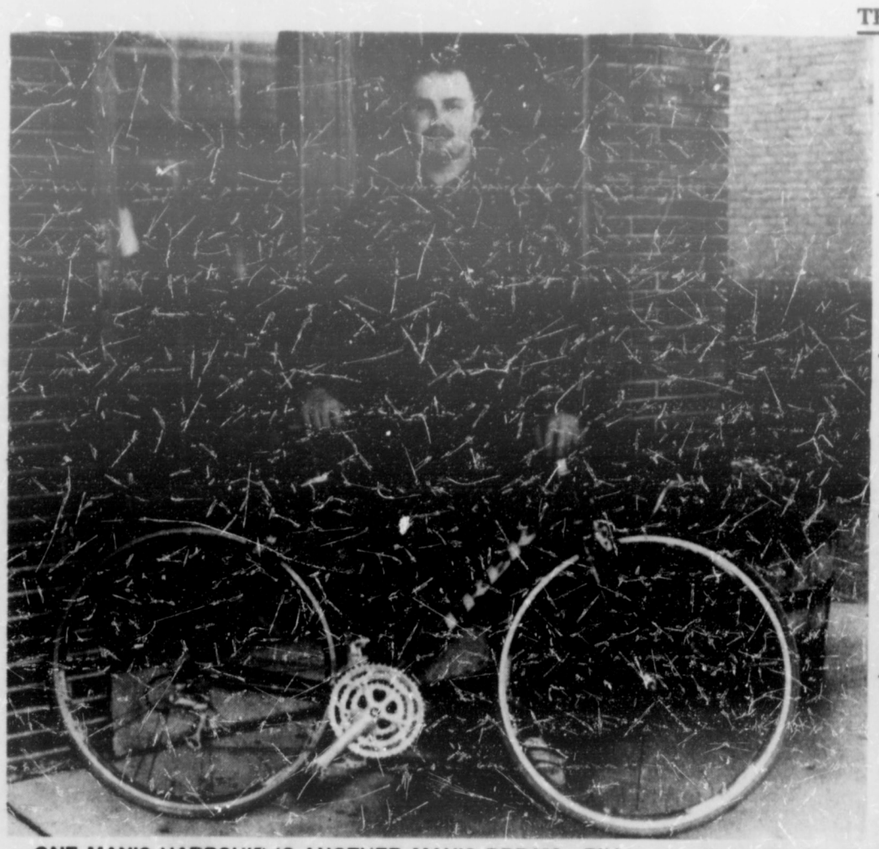
Pedaling an average of 81 miles per day, Big Ride cyclists are supported on the route with a "city on wheels" that includes hot breakfasts and dinners, en route stops with refreshments, hot showers, gear support, and bike and medical support.

The route takes the bikers through the mountains, valleys, major cities, and back roads of 12 states including: Washington, Idaho, Montana, Wyoming, South Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, and Maryland. Some of the highlights on the tour include the Rocky Mountains, Mt. Rushmore, the Mississippi River, Gettysburg, and the Lincoln Memorial.

The 2000 Big Ride is expected to raise over $4 million for local American Lung Association programs and research. The ALA is one of the oldest non-profit, voluntary health organizations in the nation. The ALA provides advocacy, research, education, and programs to promote healthy air, healthy people, and healthy lungs.

Space is still available for anyone who would like to participate in the Big Ride with Herbert and numerous other bikers. For more information or registration, persons may call the Big Ride toll-free at 1-877-BIG-RIDE, visit the Big Ride web site at www.bigride.com, or send a message to bigride@lungusa.com.

Persons wishing to contribute much-needed funds to Herbert's goal of $10,000 in donations may find a copy of his donation form in this week's edition of The Republican. Copies of the donation form, information about the 2000 Big Ride Across America, and a statement by Adam Herbert can also be found at High Mountain Sports and at Herbert's web site at www.wam.umd.edu/~ajherb.



ONE MAN'S HARDSHIP IS ANOTHER MAN'S DREAM - Biking 81 miles a day for 48 days isn't exactly your run-of-the-mill daily workout; it's a challenge many people would never even think about attempting. But for one local resident it's the dream of a lifetime. Adam Herbert, shown above, is biking across the country in the 2000 Big Ride Across America, which raises money for the American Lung Association's battle against lung disease. He has decided to dedicate this ride in the memory of his father whose recent death was caused by lung cancer. Not only will the funds Herbert raises contribute to the oldest non-profit, voluntary health organization in the nation, but he will be educating people along the route of the Big Ride about the dangers of tobacco. His adventure begins on July 19, but until that time, training and fund-raising will become a necessity to ensure Herbert's life-long dream will be a reality. (See story for details.)

Helpers Needed For Maryland's Special Olympics

Garrett County will be the site of the Special Olympics Maryland (SOMD) 2000 Winter Games. The Wisp Resort in McHenry will again host the special athletes from across the state, who will compete in the alpine and cross-country events February 27-29.

Volunteers are needed to assist with the event set-up and breakdown, to keep score, distribute food and beverages, enter competition data, escort athletes to competition and awards, and several other jobs. Many time slots will be open for volunteers in the morning, afternoon, and evening hours, and will run from two-hour tasks to all-day involvement.

General orientation and volunteer training sessions are scheduled and required for anyone assisting with the SOMD events. One orientation is slated for Tuesday, Feb. 22, at Frostburg State University, 7-9 p.m., and the other, for Saturday, Feb. 26, at the Wisp Hotel, 4-6 p.m. Volunteers attending one of these general orientation sessions are eligible for free night skiing at Wisp on Saturday, Feb. 26, after 6 p.m.

Registration forms, which are currently available at most retail stores in Garrett County, must be completed and returned by February 11. Volunteers will be scheduled on a first-come, first-served basis. For more information persons may contact Chad Brown at 301-895-3793.

Little League Slates Junior/ Senior Format

Oakland's Little League Senior Division will be divided into two separate leagues for the first time this coming season. One league, the junior league, will include 13- and 14-year-old players, while the other league, the senior league, will be composed of 15- and 16-year-old participants.

The new format should allow for more playing time for 13- and 14-year-old players, according to league spokesperson Doug Copeland. "We are trying to form four teams in each league," he added, "and currently we feel as though we may not get enough players to form all teams. We need all interested youth from the ages of 13 through 16 to play in order to get four teams.

"The Oakland Little League encourages all interested youth from surrounding communities to join our league. Interested players from Accident, the Deep Creek Lake area, Kitzmiller, and McHenry, nearby West Virginia communities of Aurora, Bayard, Elk Garden, Mt. Storm, and Terra Alta, and all other surrounding communities are urged to try out," Copeland stated.

Tentative tryout dates for both the junior and senior leagues have been set for Saturday, Feb. 19, and Sunday, Feb. 20, although confirmed dates and a site will be announced at a future date in The Republican. For further information interested persons may call Jane Roberson, Little League president, at 301-387-6991; Ed Wildesen, senior league vice president, at 301-334-8785; Doug Copeland, public relations, at 301-334-8359; or Mark Proulx, player agent, at 301-334-9589.

Herrington Manor Posts Ski Trail Info Via E-Mail

Herrington Manor State Park has announced the posting of a new computerized newsletter that provides periodic updates of conditions of the park's cross-country ski trail network. The free e-mail newsletter will be sent at least weekly, or more often as trail conditions change, and will included ski rental costs and information as well as general park information and announcements.

Herrington Manor State Park has over nine miles of groomed trails and six miles of natural trails. "New this year are sled rentals for those who still enjoy the thrill of sledding," a Maryland Department of Natural Resources spokesperson said, adding that the park has two sled-riding areas, one for beginners or children and one for the more advanced.

Persons interested in being placed on the E-mail newsletter list can contact the park via the Internet at hmsp@gcnet.net. Further information is available through the park office at 301-334-9180.

Tee-Ball, Minor League Baseball Registration Set

Registration for the Oakland-area tee-ball and minor league baseball leagues is set for this Saturday, Jan. 15, from 2 to 5 p.m. at Shaffer Ford in Oakland. (This marks a change in the starting time from last week's announcement.) The tee-ball league is open to 5- and 6-year-olds (players must turn 5 by August 1), while minor league play is open to 7- and 8-year-old participants.

All players interested in participating in tee-ball or minor league must register at this time. All registrants must be accompanied by an adult and must bring a copy of their birth certificate. There will not be a tryout for these leagues, so no gloves or bats will be needed at registration.

For further registration information interested persons may call overall organizational president Jane Roberson at 301-387-6991, player agent Mark Proulx at 301-334-9589, tee-ball vice president Torie Helbig at 301-334-2942, or minor league vice president Jason Shreve at 301-334-4663.

Tryouts for Little League play (ages 9-12) have tentatively been set for Saturday, Feb. 19, and Sunday, Feb. 20, at a site to be announced in The Republican. Players turning 9 by August 1 must try out for Little League and are not eligible for minor league play.

NHS Drops Overtime Thriller To BW; Rebounds To Down Savage

The boys' basketball team of Northern High School lost a hard-fought heartbreaker in overtime to Bishop Walsh Friday night, 52-49, but the Huskies bounced back against Mt. Savage Tuesday to take a 56-42 win. The WMIL split gives NHS a 3-2 league mark and a 7-3 overall record.

It took a three-pointer by BW's Nebosja Bogdanovic "from NBA range," in Coach Edwards' estimation, for the Spartans to catch Northern at the buzzer Friday. The clutch tré knotted the score at 46 as regulation expired, bringing on an overtime period that saw Bishop Walsh tally six points to the Huskies' three.

"Bogdanovic hit that three-pointer with a man in his face to tie it," Edwards said after his squad's five game winning streak was snapped. "That was a big-time shot. We had held him to seven points up until then as (power forward) Josh Resh did a very good job on defense. Had Bogdanovic not made that shot, he would have finished with seven points," less than half the 16.4 average BW's top shooter had brought into the contest.

After furious play through the first quarter, the Huskies opened the second stanza down by a 12-8 margin. At the half BW was up 20-15, but Northern brought its home crowd to a fevered pitch as the Huskies battled back through the third quarter to tie the score at 33 with 12 minutes to go.

"Both teams deserve credit," the NHS skipper stated. "Both played well and exceptionally hard. We got down early and fought back, finally getting the lead for the first time in the fourth quarter. Our inside guys (Resh, a senior, and junior center Rob Dozier) player great again."

Resh led all scorers with 19 points, while Dozier notched 12 points and pulled down 14 rebounds. Jeremy Frazee, a junior guard, contributed seven points. Mike Serpone's 15 points led the visitors, while Bogdanovic tallied 13 points and Dado Papic scored 12 points, 10 of which came in the second half, while also blocking several key Husky shot attempts.

Bishop Walsh won the junior varsity contest 50-40 behind Jayme Bradley's 14 points. Josh Swandol recorded 13 points for Northern.

Rob Dozier notched a double-double Tuesday night against Mt. Savage, scoring 17 points and pulling down 17 rebounds. The junior center and his teammates jumped out to a 13-6 lead after the first quarter, held a 23-18 advantage at the half, and were up by a 46-34 margin at the opening of the fourth quarter.

Junior guard Greg Speicher added 12 points and Tim Umbel, a senior guard, handed out five assists, and the Huskies ripped the nets from long range with five three-pointers. Adam Moulden played a strong inside game for Mt. Savage, matching Dozier's rebounding total while scoring 12 points of his own. The Indians' Larry Baker added 10 points.

Northern's jayvees took their contest, crushing the Indians by a 50-23 margin. Landon Southerly scored 12 points to pace the Huskies and Swandol notched 10 points. Mt. Savage's Billy Miller led all scorers with 16 points.

NHS takes to the road for its next two outings, a contest at Salisbury tonight and a Tuesday battle at Fort Hill. The Huskies return home this coming Thursday, Jan. 20, to host Turkeyfoot.

SHS Freshmen Busy; Win Two Of Three Games

The freshman boys' basketball team of Southern High School, coached by Jon Hegeman, played three games this past week and came away with two victories. The Rams whipped the Allegany freshmen in Cumberland last Thursday, 39-21, lost to host Pendleton County on Saturday, 51-42, and rolled over visiting Frankfort on Monday, 60-39.

Dennis Tressler and Joe Davis each scored 10 points to lead the Rams against Allegany.

Tressler and Davis also paced Southern against Pendleton County by netting 14 and 12 points, respectively. Nathaniel Hevener scored a game-high 20 for Pendleton, while Jake Owens finished with 13.

"Pendleton County outplayed us in every area of the game," Hegeman said. "They were the better team. However, Matt Stephens played an outstanding defensive game for us."

Stephens also led the Ram offense in Monday's win over Frankfort, as he pumped in 16 points. Davis and Tressler also reached double figures with 11 and 10 points, respectively. Josh Blankenship led the Falcons with 11 points.

"Our defense was pretty good today," Hegeman said following the game. "We caused numerous turnovers and then converted them on the other end. All 11 of our players had a good performance for us, especially Nathan Fitzwater, who took two defensive charges."

The Ram freshmen will play again Monday at Tucker County.

Rams Top Indians In Low-Scoring Contest, Edge Alco

Upping their overall record to 7-3 and their Western Maryland Interscholastic League mark to 5-1 this week was the Southern High School boys' varsity, which topped a stubborn Mt. Savage team in Oakland on Friday, 46-35, and then won a two-point thriller over Allegany in Cumberland Tuesday night.

The Rams had considerably more trouble defeating the Mt. Savage Indians on Friday than they did back on December 10, when they coasted to a 68-49 victory; however, they took the lead early in the contest and maintained it throughout the game.

Southern held a 10-6 lead at the end of the first quarter, and was on top by nine, 27-18 at intermission. They managed just six points in the third stanza, and took a 33-26 advantage into the final eight minutes.

Mt. Savage cut the Rams' lead to six points, 39-33, with about four minutes to play, but Southern went on a 7-2 run to secure the 11-point win.

Mike Browning paced the Rams in scoring with 14 points, while Nathaniel Panther finished with 11. Leading the Indians (2-6 overall and 0-5 in the WMIL) were Larry O'Baker with 14 points and Mike Preston with nine rebounds.

There was a total of only 21 baskets hit in the entire game, and each team connected on 18 free throws.

"Mt. Savage prepared very well and played us hard," stated Southern coach Tom Bosley.

The Southern junior varsity won the preliminary game (score not provided), with Chad Panther and Joel Helbig leading the Rams in scoring with 12 and 11 points, respectively.

The varsity Rams played what Coach Tom Bosley described as "their best game of the season" Tuesday night when they held on to defeat host Allegany for the fifth consecutive time. Southern took an early lopsided lead (13-1), and maintained the lead until the fourth quarter. A three-pointer by Nathan Simpson tied the score at 43-43, and after the Rams built the lead back to seven points, the Campers rallied again and knotted the score at 51-51 in the final minute. Normally one of the area's top foul shooting teams, the Rams made good on only two of 12 opportunities in the final period, and connected on just 12 of 29 for the night.

Ironically, though, it was one of the two good free throws in the fourth quarter that gave the Rams back the lead, and ultimately the win, as Ryan White connected with just 54 seconds left to break the 51-51 deadlock. Justin Liller hit one more foul shot with just nine seconds to play to conclude the scoring for the night and preserve the victory for the Rams.

Liller led the Rams in scoring and rebounding with 13 points and seven boards, while Nathaniel Panther and Mike Browning each netted 10 points and Justin Stephens was right behind with nine points.

Southern held a 20-9 lead at the end of the first quarter, a 31-24 advantage at halftime, and a 41-36 edge after three quarters. A basket by Ryan Rebuck late in the fourth quarter, after the Rams had missed 10 straight free throws, is what tied the score at 51 apiece.

"If you take away our foul shooting, it was the our best game of the season," Bosley said. "Certainly our inside game was the best I've seen so far.

"Justin Stephens had his best game ever for us," Bosley continued, "and I thought Josh Bosley defended Nathan Simpson very well."

Simpson led the Campers' scoring effort with 17 points, while Rebuck came off the bench to record 10 points, 10 rebounds, and three blocks.

The defeat dropped Alco to 6-4 overall and 3-1 in the WMIL.

The Southern junior varsity lost another game by a single point in the preliminary game, as Allegany jayvee Robby O'Brian hit a lay-up with just two seconds remaining to give his team a 51-50 victory. Joel Helbig and D.R. Parsons paced the Rams' scoring effort with 13 and 12 points, respectively. Aaron Laffey led Allegany with 12 points, Dan Diehl hit 11, Derek Jamison scored 10, and O'Brian added nine.

The Rams are slated to play at Tucker County this Saturday, and then host Bishop Walsh next Tuesday. Tip-off for both games will be at 7:30 p.m., with the junior varsity contests getting under way at 6 p.m.

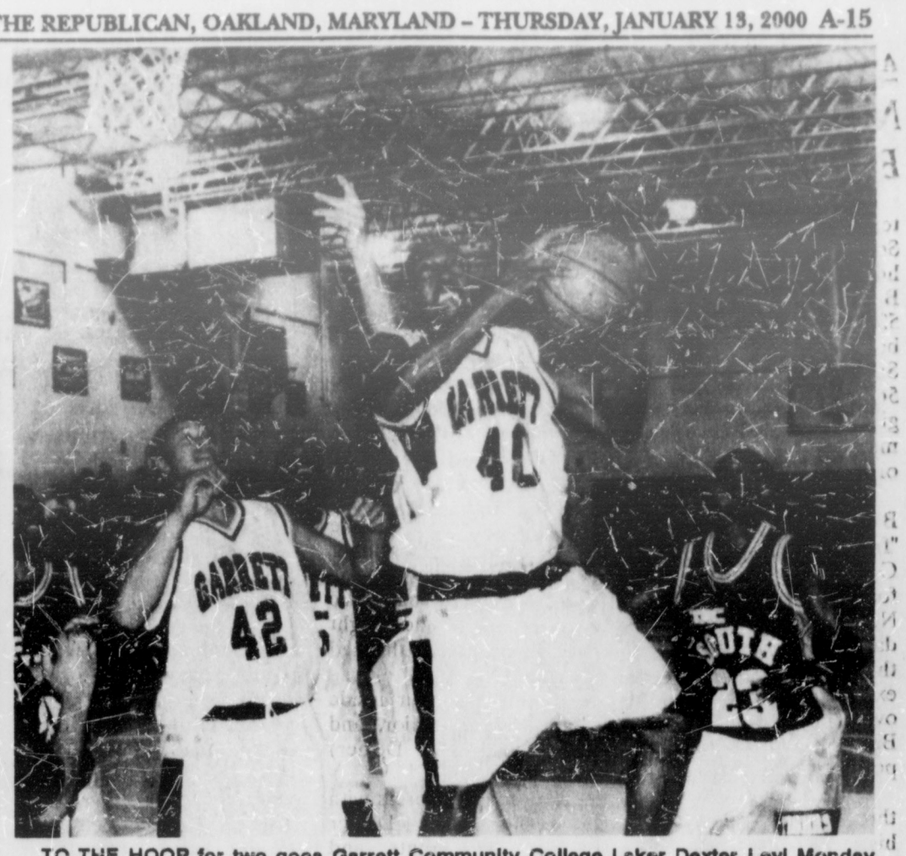
GCC CATCHES CARDINALS - Garrett Community College's women's basketball team came from behind to catch Catonsville, 89-77, Tuesday night. The Lakers were paced by an outstanding performance by freshman guard Shawntice McLaughlin (#12), shown at the left going up for two of her 18 points. The Washington, D.C., native also handed out five assists and nabbed eight steals of Garrett's 18-steal total. Garrett's Amanda Larnerd (#11) is shown above looking for an inside passing lane around her Cardinal defender while Tiffany Morris (#22) follows the play from the background. The Lakers play at Montgomery College-Rockville Saturday afternoon.



TO THE HOOP for two goes Garrett Community College Laker Dexter Levi Monday night against an out-matched CCAC-South, Community College of Allegheny County (Pa.) team, which the Lakers crushed by 50 points, 104-54. It was the 12th win in 14 starts for the Lakers and their coach, Dennis Gibson, and followed a tough, six-point loss to nationally ranked Allegany College of Maryland two nights prior. Levi finished with 23 points for Garrett. Also in the photo are Michael Ward (#42) and, partially hidden, Warren Coates. Ward finished with 15 points and Coates netted 6. See story for details. Lakers Drop Three Road Contests Before Claiming Victory At Home

Garrett Community College women's basketball team lost its first three contests of the week in Hagerstown but rebounded at home Tuesday against Catonsville to break a five-game losing streak. The Lakers now hold a 4-8 overall record and a JUCO mark of 2-3.

Following an 83-55 loss to the Hawks last Wednesday, the Lakers returned to the same floor for the Hagerstown Tournament over the weekend. GCC fell twice in tourney play, to Mitchell (Conn.) on Friday by a 90-55 margin, and the following day to Lackawanna (Pa.) Junior College by a 75-38 score. On Tuesday Garrett came from behind to down Catonsville in McHenry 89-77.

GCC held close to Hagerstown throughout the first half of last Wednesday's match-up and was down by only eight points, 39-31, at the halftime buzzer. The second stanza was all Hawks, however, as the hosts outscored Garrett 44-21 en route to their 28-point victory.

The Hawks used a balanced offensive attack to down the Lakers, as three players, Naomi Mason, Ros Fisher, and Stacey Zeger each tallied 14 points, and Brooke Russ added 12 of her own to an 83-point flurry. GCC sophomore forward Tasha Blackmon led her squad with 15 points, while Tameka Graves, a freshman center, added 13 points and frosh forward Erica Henderson recorded eight points.

Blackmon and Graves each pulled down eight rebounds to lead the Lakers in boards, while Shawntice McLaughlin, a first-year guard, led in assists with seven of GCC's 10-assist total. "I was real pleased with Shawntice's play," Garrett head coach Ann Wellham commented. "She was able to penetrate well and did an excellent job."

The Lakers returned to Hagerstown Friday for the opening-round tourney contest with Mitchell, but were dominated by the Connecticut-based squad. Sarah Craft put on a 32-point clinic for Mitchell, and her efforts were aided by 16 points by Jess Ryndyez and 14 points and four steals by Jill Gibbs.

GCC had to come from a long way back to pull within the 25-point concluding margin, as the Lakers were down by a 60-19 deficit at the half. Displaying a fierce combativeness, Garrett outscored their opponents 46-30 over the second half.

Freshman guard Donielle Gaines scored 15 of her team-high 17 points during the second stanza while Graves tallied 15 points and a game-high nine rebounds over the course of the contest. Gretchen Baker, a freshman guard, scored all of her 11 points during the second half, and McLaughlin dished out eight assists on the night.

"I was very pleased with the effort we showed in the second half," Wellham observed. "The girls played strong, especially on offense."

The following day Lackawanna held the Lakers scoreless for the first four minutes of the second round contest en route to a 34-14 halftime advantage. The Pennsylvania visitors mounted a 41-24 attack in the second half as they cruised to the 27-point victory. Garrett proved its own worst enemy as the Lakers connected on just 14 field goals in 63 attempts for a miserable 22 percent average. In marked contrast to previous outings, GCC managed just three assists, two by McLaughlin.

Amy Pearson led both squads with 15 points and nine rebounds for Lackawanna, while Kristyn Grzenda, Shawna Ruddy, and Laura Nicoletto added 10 points apiece. Gaines paced the Lakers' output with nine points, Henderson scored eight points and took down seven rebounds, and Blackmon recorded seven steals.

"The score doesn't show how good the team can be," remarked Wellham, whose squad turned the ball over 24 times to Hagerstown and 29 times to Mitchell. "The women have a lot of potential to become good as we gel together and stop making mental errors."

The Lakers regrouped behind a stellar performance by Blackmon to down Catonsville Tuesday, as the squad cut its turnover tally to 17 as compared to the visitors' 24. Blackmon led both teams in three major categories, scoring 23 points, pulling down 13 rebounds, and handing out five assists.

It took every bit of effort Blackmon and her teammates had to claim the 12-point victory, as GCC fell behind by as many as 24 points during the first half. The Lakers pulled together to cut Catonsville's halftime lead to 12 points, 48-36. Garrett stepped up its press in the second half and the pressure paid off as the Lakers knotted the score at 61 at the 10:18 mark and claimed the lead for good, 65-63, with 8:32 remaining.

McLaughlin put in an excellent performance to complement Blackmon's work, tallying 18 points, five assists, and eight steals, and an aggressive Henderson contributed 10 points before fouling out.

Each of the Lakers' three contests this week will be on the road. They open at Montgomery College-Rockville Saturday, travel to Chesapeake Community College the following day, and return to western Maryland to play in Cumberland against Allegany on Wednesday.

Lakers Nearly Upset Trojans, Then Annihilate CCAC-South

An upset of nationally ranked Allegany College of Maryland was within the grasp of the Garrett Community College men's basketball team before a packed house Saturday night in McHenry, but the Lakers watched their 12-point lead evaporate and the Trojans successfully rally for a 68-63 Maryland JUCO victory. It was only the second loss of the season in 14 games for Coach Dennis Gibson and the Lakers, while the Trojans, who came into the contest ranked 14th in the country (NJCAA Division I), upped their overall mark to 14-1 and their JUCO record to 6-0.

The Lakers then took out their frustrations Monday on the South Campus of the Community College of Allegheny County (Pa.) by crushing the visitors, 104-54. The split left the Lakers with a 13-2 record overall and a 6-1 mark in JUCO competition.

It was tenacious defense and effective shooting by the Lakers in the first half of the contest against Allegany College on Saturday that put them ahead by 12 points on two occasions before intermission. The high-powered Trojans took 34 shots in the half, but connected only 10 of them, and they grabbed only 18 rebounds, as the Lakers were winning the game on the boards against taller competition. However, AC played considerably better in the second half and finished with a 58-36 advantage in rebounds.

After leading by as many as 12 in the first half, the Lakers held a 35-27 advantage at halftime. They expanded their lead to as many as 10, 43-33, with 14:26 left in the game, but the Trojans then went on an 8-1 run to cut Garrett's lead to three points. A jumper and a fast-break score after a Laker turnover gave Allegany a 53-52 lead with 7:15 remaining.

After Allegany took a 63-56 advantage with 3:07 left, the Lakers rallied for five straight points — two free throws by Charles Somerville and a three-pointer by Carlos Jones — to pull Garrett back to within two points, 63-61. Terell Ross then hit a key three-pointer for AC to make it 66-61 with 1:35 remaining.

Garrett's Michael Ward and Somerville responded with one free throw apiece to make it 66-63 with just 14 seconds remaining, but Ross hit a pair of crucial free throws in the final seconds to seal the win for the Trojans.

Jones led all scorers, as he pumped in 20 points, while Somerville recorded 13 points and grabbed a team-high nine rebounds, despite playing the second half with a possible cracked rib. Also reaching double figures for the Lakers was Warren Coates, who netted 11 points. Scott Kochenderfer was credited with eight assists.

The Trojans were paced by freshman guard Daryl Towe, who hit three three-pointers and finished with 17 points, and also pulled down a game-high 15 rebounds. Terry Taylor and Ryan Randle each added 11 points, and Hugh Brown recorded 10 rebounds and eight points.

"We out-played Allegany in every area except offensive rebounding," stated Coach Gibson. "Our defense held them to 44 percent in field goal shooting and 18 percent from three-point range. That's because they didn't get many open looks from our defense.

"I was disappointed in the fact that we did not complete our box-offs and we did not finish our plays toward the end of the game," he continued. "We let too many open opportunities slip by."

The Lakers did not, however, exhibit any ill effects from the loss Monday night when they hosted CCAC-South, and for a second time this season crushed the Pennsylvania team. The Lakers topped South by a 92-68 margin back on Nov. 17.

The first half ended with the Lakers up by just 14 points, but they added 58 more points in the second half while holding South to just 22.

Dexter Levi led the Laker charge by recording 23 points, nine rebounds, and four of Garrett's 11 blocked shots. Charles Somerville finished with 19 points and a game-high 14 rebounds, Carlos Jones and Michael Ward each netted 15 points, with Jones also being credited for six assists and three steals, and Kochenderfer dished out a dozen assists to go with his nine points. Thomas Somerville also grabbed nine rebounds.

Pacing CCAC-South were Mike Brown with 20 points, Bryan Mikulan with 15 points, and Jim Burcey with 10 points and seven rebounds.

"It was great to bounce back from Saturday's loss," Coach Gibson said. "CCAC-South doesn't have much of an inside game this year.

"I thought Charles Somerville, Mike Ward, and Dexter Levi each played an outstanding game for us," he said.

The Lakers are slated to play again at home this Saturday against Charles CC, with tip-off set for 7 p.m. They will travel to Cecil CC next Wednesday.

Garrett is currently fourth in the JUCO standings, with Dundalk, Allegany, and Cecil holding the first through third spots. Current individual statistics show Laker Dustin Long, a former Northern High standout, leading the entire JUCO in field goal percentage (35 of 51, 69 percent), and Warren Coates number one in free throw percentage (10 of 11, 91 percent).

"Jimmy was simply incredible at times," Ables said. "He was a one-man defense in the Williamsport match, and really was the single player who kept us in that match. He's also a good midfielder, but he's most valuable to us in goal."

Junior striker Ron Lipscomb led the Huskies in scoring with 10 goals and also had three assists, making him a key to the Huskies' scoring 43 goals this past season, 28 more than in 1998.

"From a skill perspective, Ronnie is fundamentally sound in all areas," Ables said. "He is very aggressive, and practiced and played hard all the time. He has a great desire to succeed and is always willing to sacrifice for the good of the team."

Southern's Michael Schwalm, a senior defender and team co-captain who was awarded the Mr. Reliable award, helped the Rams achieve an 8-4-1 season and a second-place 5-1-1 WMIL record. He was instrumental in the Rams' allowing one goal or less four times.

"We could always count on Michael to be there," Coach Tom Powers said, "through injury, illness, or after having burned the midnight oil doing tons of homework. He provided leadership at practice and rock-solid, consistent play in competition. He will be missed next season."

Midfielder Dustin Slider, who will be back for another season in a Ram uniform, is one of Southern's more versatile players. "he's played just about every position on the field," Powers said. "His willingness and ability to play anywhere, on either side of the field, as needed, without complaining and with much enthusiasm, has earned him my admiration and gratitude."

Second-team All-Area and All-WMIL pick Mike Fletcher is a junior midfielder for the Huskies who will no doubt be at or near the top in scoring next season, as he scored eight goals and had six assists this past year. "Mike never missed a practice or match, and played every minute of 17 games," Ables said. "He is a dependable, effective leader, in large part because he never stops moving on the field."

The only senior on the Huskies' team is Josh Gilpin, also a second-team pick. "Josh was one of the quickest players on the team," Ables said. "He had no previous soccer experience when he came on the team as a freshman, but he worked very hard and improved every year. His hard work paid off his senior year when he was chosen team captain."

Southern's Don Parsons, a sophomore, who was also named to both second teams, and Chris Remley, a junior, each received Coaches' Awards for their efforts this past season at striker positions. "Neither of these players has a lot to say," Powers said. "On the other hand, neither ever gave up on the field. They both have outstanding work ethics and unrivaled intensity during competition."

Sophomore defender Bryan Schwalm, younger brother of Michael, jumped from junior varsity to a starting position on varsity this past year. "Bryan's overall development, especially his ball-handling skills and calmness under pressure, earned him our Most Improved award for the season," Powers said.

FB's Kleckner Challenges Government To Act For Farmers

At a time when farms and ranches, regardless of size, are "in real trouble," and more family members are working off the farm, American agriculture needs government action to "cure the illness, rather than soothe the symptoms," American Farm Bureau Federation president Dean Kleckner said early this week at the organization's annual convention in Houston, Texas.

During his annual address to Farm Bureau members from across the nation, Kleckner said the federal government must: reform regulations that impact the ability to farm; enhance foreign market opportunities for U.S. farm products; and keep an "ever-vigilant" eye on all proposed agricultural mergers.

While grateful for emergency government assistance approved in 1999 "to help us keep our farms for another year," Kleckner said American farmers simply shouldn't expect that same response each time they present their plight to Congress. Farm Bureau, he said, would stay focused on the farm economy and pursue policy initiatives to ensure farmers are able to produce, compete, and survive.

Atop that list will be work to obtain fair implementation of the Food Quality Protection Act (FQPA). Kleckner said farmers must be ensured the ability to "use safe, affordable pesticides and fertilizers."

"The Environmental Protection Agency appears to be shifting away from science-based risk assessments to one based on detectable residues," Kleckner said. "They are now saying, 'If you can detect it, it's bad.' [Detection] is meaningless without reality-based risk assessments. Farm Bureau will not permit EPA to jeopardize our...food production system in their zeal to eliminate farm chemicals. We want to feed people, not pests."

Kleckner told Farm Bureau members, with their help, the organization will win passage of legislation to implement FQPA as Congress intended.

Farm Bureau also will continue to push for the expansion of foreign markets for U.S. farm products. The recent signing of an agreement to allow China entrance into the World Trade Organization (WTO), according to Kleckner "will be very beneficial to world trade" and help U.S. farmers.

China also has agreed not to use export subsidies — a point that caused Kleckner to ask, "European Union, are you listening?" To seal the deal, he said, Congress must approve permanent normal trade relations for China.

Kleckner also said, "Despite seeing the benefits of expanding trade, our own government stubbornly maintains unilateral sanctions prohibiting trade with various nations." He saw the adverse effects of trade sanctions during a fact-finding mission to Cuba.

"We plainly saw the results of our sanctions," Kleckner said. "We easily identified the victim — it's us. Cuba...still imports $600 million worth of agricultural products...from other countries. Food is not a weapon. The time is now to put an end to sanctions."

Trade expansion also was the objective late last year, when Kleckner led a Farm Bureau delegation to the WTO Ministerial Conference in Seattle. The Seattle protests, according to Kleckner, simply showed that "those who should know better, don't."

"Trade creates jobs, yet labor marched in Seattle," Kleckner said. "Trade improves the environment, yet environmentalists marched. Trade improves living standards, but the poor of the world couldn't fly in to support expanding trade. Despite the disturbance, agricultural trade talks progressed, and they will continue to move forward."

Kleckner said Farm Bureau would continue to promote more open, freer trade "against all schemes offered. If not through the WTO, through bilateral, multilateral, regional trade agreements or even a 'Let's Ignore Europe' plan."

"The European Union is going out of its way to be in the way," he said. "Negotiators there are doing whatever they can to hinder fairness and openness in continuing trade talks. They clearly are far more involved with expanding the European Union than they are in bonding with the global community."

Nations in the EU and elsewhere continue to use the issue of crops grown through advances in biotechnology as a way to derail trade and bar U.S. goods, Kleckner said. There have been outright bans and calls for labeling of food produced with biotech crops.

"If [labeling] happens [in the United States], Farm Bureau will work to assure that the label is informational, not inflammatory," Kleckner said. "It must educate and inform. It must not foster a negative image. As activists protest...legitimate representatives of the people must step forward. We look to our government to continue to speak out for science so America's farmers and ranchers can continue to produce the most wholesome, affordable, and environmentally responsible commodities possible."

Kleckner said Farm Bureau also would continue to urge the Justice Department to "keep an ever-vigilant eye on all proposed [agricultural] mergers that have the potential to limit market access." He said he expects agricultural consolidation to be the "first item on the Senate's agenda when they resume," and said AFBF is "willing, able, and eager to help them hit the ground running."

Farming In Maryland.....

Dairy Reforms Expected To Offer Positive Changes

With the start of the new year, the Agriculture Department implemented federal dairy policy reforms established in the 2000 omnibus spending bill. The Farm Bureau-supported reforms include Option 1A, which establishes minimum pricing for Class I (drinking) milk, and the consolidation of the previous 31 milk marketing orders into 11.

USDA's own reform plan, otherwise known as Option 1B, was supposed to be put into place by Oct. 1, 1999, but was delayed because of a restraining order issued by the U.S. District Court for the District of Vermont. The case was then superseded by the federal legislation instituting Option 1A.

"These reforms will benefit dairy producers by helping to stabilize income during periods of low prices," said Caroline Anderson, an American Farm Bureau Federation director of governmental relations. "They will also streamline the system, making it more producer-friendly."

Milk marketing orders classify milk by use, establish minimum prices that handlers must pay for each class, and provide for paying average prices to all dairy producers who supply a marketing order.

Reform of the federal milk marketing order system was mandated by the 1996 farm bill to revise the nation's intricate milk pricing system.

Last month, USDA announced that November milk production in a number of states was up 4.4 percent from over a year ago.

While production increased at the end of 1999, so did consumption. This is a usual trend for the end of the year, with holiday festivities and recipes calling for a variety of dairy products. Unfortunately, consumption has not matched production in the past few weeks, which has led to a drop in prices.

Ken Olson, an AFBF dairy and animal health specialist, said Farm Bureau remains optimistic about the new pricing system.

"If these changes had not been made, our evaluation indicated that producers would have lost a significant amount of income in many regions of the country," said Olson. "We would still like to make some changes in the price mover for Class III (milk used to make cheese) and IV (includes butter and any milk in dried form), as we think that it will have a negative impact on producer income."

The new reforms require USDA to conduct a hearing to reassess the Class III and Class IV milk prices, with the pricing determination to be implemented by Jan. 1, 2001.

In addition, while no specific details are available, the House Agriculture Committee has indicated it will hold hearings during the upcoming session to look into various issues affecting the dairy industry.

"Farm Bureau is encouraged by the interest in holding hearings to assess current and future dairy policy and how we can best help American producers," said Anderson.

There's No Easy Fix For Farm Woes, Said Farm Bureau's Kleckner

Promising his organization will be engaged in the pending congressional reexamination of the farm bill, American Farm Bureau Federation resident Dean Kleckner told reporters there will be no easy fix for current farm economy woes, no matter the policy direction. Kleckner made these comments at the organization's 81st national convention this week in Houston, Texas.

"I wish that I could stand before you today to comment on a wonderful 1999 for American agriculture and look ahead with excitement to another profitable 2000," Kleckner said during his annual news conference to open the AFBF annual meeting. "But unfortunately I cannot."

The farm leader said delegates to this year's meeting will likely engage in vigorous debate over the organization's federal farm policy language. But talk of major changes to the farm bill over the next year, in all probability, will not come to fruition, Kleckner said. The farm leader noted that farm economy troubles experienced by American farmers are not unlike those being felt worldwide due to record low commodity prices.

"I always hate to speculate on what the delegates will do," Kleckner said. "But I can tell you, there's unhappiness now here in the United States and around the world...that's been caused by super world weather, super production and low demand.

"Prices are lousy in the whole world."

Kleckner said adequate and affordable crop insurance — policies that cover all crops, including livestock — would help farmers in times of weather and price troubles. The farm leader identified the southern part of the country as an area where producers have trouble finding adequate crop insurance coverage. But, he said, enacting a good crop insurance program "is an evolving process" that will need the input of farmers across the country.

He said Congress and government policymakers made many promises to farmers and ranchers during the 1996 farm bill debate. He cautioned that lawmakers should "not lose sight of the promises" that include measures to boost agricultural exports, reform the regulatory system and protect private property rights.

To help improve lagging export numbers, Kleckner said U.S. trade negotiators need the continued support of farmers and ranchers as world trade talks continue. He said elimination of export subsidies, which force American farmers and ranchers to unfairly compete against artificially low commodity prices, is a high U.S. priority and a Farm Bureau goal.

"[With the exception of] the European Union, with some support from Japan and Korea, almost all the rest of the world wants to eliminate [export subsidies]," Kleckner said. "The argument should not be over whether we eliminate agricultural export subsidies, the argument should be over how long it takes to do it — whether that will be three years, five years, eight years."

Despite recent high-profile agribusiness mergers, Kleckner said the Justice Department has continued to perform its role in ensuring market competitiveness. He said a rush to judgment, such as a recently proposed moratorium on mergers, would have been counterproductive and implemented without any input from affected parties, including farmers and ranchers.

"I don't personally like mega-mergers or great acquisitions, but that doesn't mean they aren't going to go on," Kleckner said. "The thing we have to depend on the Justice Department to determine is, is there still competition or is it moving toward a monopoly? Only government can prevent monopoly."

On the much covered subject of genetically modified crops, the Iowa corn, soybean, and hog farmer said he will not personally change his planting choices next year — all GM soybeans. And from discussions with farmers across the country, Kleckner said he doesn't see a significant trend by producers to move away from GM crops in the 2000 planting season.

"American farmers...and farmers around much of the world like the idea of genetic enhancement," Kleckner said. "They like the idea of using less farm chemicals. That's what many of us are doing because of some of the GM [crops] we are planting. I believe acceptance of genetic enhancement is going to come faster than most of us today think it will."

Poultry Slaughter Figures For Nov. Reported By NASS

The National Agricultural Statistics Service (NASS), Agricultural Statistics Board, U.S. Department of Agriculture, reports that poultry certified as wholesome during November (ready-to-cook weight) totaled 2.93 billion pounds, up 8% from the amount certified in November 1998. Updated totals for October 1999 show that 3 billion pounds were certified.

The preliminary total live weight of poultry inspected during November 1999 was 3.92 billion pounds, up 7% from a year ago. Inspections included 3.22 billion pounds of young chickens, up 7%; 66.7 million pounds of mature chickens, up 11%; 624 million pounds of turkeys, up 6%; and 12.7 million pounds of ducks, unchanged from November 1998.

Young chickens slaughtered during November 1999 averaged 5.01 pounds per bird, up slightly from 4.99 pounds per bird in November 1998. The average live weight of mature chickens was 5.23 pounds per bird, 3% from a year ago. Turkeys slaughtered during November 1999 averaged 25.1 pounds per bird, up 4% from November 1998.

Ante-mortem condemnations during November 1999 totaled 12.6 million pounds. Condemnations were 0.32% of the live weight inspected, compared with 0.36% a year earlier. Post-mortem condemnations, at 59.2 million pounds (N.Y. dressed weight), were 1.68% of quantities inspected, compared with 1.91% a year earlier.

November 1999 contained 22 weekdays (including two holidays) and four Saturdays. November 1998 contained 21 weekdays (including two holidays) and four Saturdays.

Small Farmers,

Cultivating For The Future

by Bernice Kepple, farm editor

January is the month the seed catalogs arrive, bringing spring right to the mailbox. For the serious gardener this is an exciting time of year. As we sit indoors by the fire watching the snow fall and listening to the blustering wind, the pages of those catalogs, with all their beautifully colored pictures of fruit, vegetables and flowers, really come alive. As it is for all farmers, seed starting is an act of faith and renewal for gardeners. It signals the start of another growing season and offers the opportunity to finally grow the "perfect" garden. I always found gardening to be rewarding and maybe economical, although I never wanted to know for sure, because I enjoyed gardening too much to compare what I spent getting the quality I wanted to off-brand cans of vegetables in the supermarket.

After I spent the month of January looking at those catalogs and dreaming about the garden I was going to plant, February was time to start planning my garden and ordering the seed. When my children were young and I was healthy, I was a very serious gardener. I had planning down to a science. Beginning with a large sheet of graph paper, I would draw the perimeter of my garden to scale. Then using my drawing of last year's garden, I would rotate the rows so I would not be planting the same vegetables in the same spots each year. Then I would check my planting and harvesting records, which told me how many seeds of each vegetable I had planted and what they had yielded.

I felt that a garden journal was an important tool because that was where all those figures were recorded, along with my observations about the weather, what worked and what didn't, what varieties performed, and new things I wanted to try. My goal was to grow and preserve as much food for my family to use over the coming year as I could, and after the first couple of years that I gardened, I knew how many rows of each vegetable I needed and how much seed it took to plant that many rows. I also knew which catalogs offered the varieties I wanted at the best prices.

Today, in addition to mail order catalogs, there are many resources available to gardeners on the Internet. I'm going to suggest some catalogs I've used in the past and some new sites I've found on the Internet, and never forget our Garrett County Extension Service staff at 301-334-6960. They can answer questions, provide printed information, and test soil samples (another important gardening tool). My personal catalog favorites were Gurney's and Burpee's. Other good catalogs are Johnny's Selected Seeds and Park Seed Company.

Books offering information that I liked included anything from Rodale Press, publishers of Organic Gardening magazine. Two of their books which have been out of print for 25 years are being reissued: Encyclopedia of Organic Gardening and How to Grow Vegetables and Fruits by the Organic Method. These books are available through their web site at www.organicgardening.com. Other books that have been recommended to me include: Gardening for Dummies by Michael MacCaskey (IDG Books) available at www.dummies.com; How to Grow More Vegetables by John Jeavons; Organic Vegetable Gardening from Better Homes & Gardens; Fruits and Berries for the Home Garden by Lewis Hill; The Orchard Almanac by Stephen Page and Joe Smillie; and Real Gardeners' True Confessions by Pat Stone.

Just a couple of web sites, in addition to the Organic Gardening site, are: www.burpee.com; and www.garden.com. All of these sites have links that will take you anywhere you want to go: gardens of the world, home garden web pages, buyers' guides, and instructional sites. Those without Internet access may want to try the free service at the Ruth Enlow Library, where the librarian will walk you through connection to the World Wide Web. So, start your planning now, and good luck gardening.

USDA Report Predicts Farm Income Drop In 2000

Brace yourself for 2000. Although most sectors of the nation's economy made it smoothly and profitably through the Y2K transition, farmers and ranchers are likely to be in for another bumpy ride on the farm income roller coaster this year, according to the latest numbers out of Washington, D.C.

According to an Agriculture Department Economic Research Service report released recently, 2000 farm income could hit a five-year low after bouncing up in 1999 with the addition of a late-year influx of government aid payments. The report projects a net farm income drop of $7.6 billion to $40.4 billion from $48.1 billion in 1999. And if those numbers aren't enough cause for concern in farm country, net cash income in 2000 also is forecasted down $9.4 billion to $49.7 billion.

ERS said the forecasted drop "is due to diminished expectations for near-term increases in many commodity prices and a retreat in government payments from the historic high expected to be paid in 1999." The research arm of USDA said the cumulative effects of four consecutive years of large harvests in the world's major agricultural nations and a general lack of adverse weather have caused record low prices, and little is seen in the future to buoy such prices. Top it off with weak international demand for U.S. exports, and the formula for a 1999 repeat would be almost complete.

Factoring in the three major government farm payments — production flexibility payments, loan deficiency payments, (LDP) and emergency supplemental funds enacted in October 1998 and 1999 — ERS said net farm income levels last year were nearly equal to or above the 10-year average beginn[illegible] in 1990.

Total production expenses for 2000, according to ERS, will likely fall in the $192 billion range, up slightly from 1999. If the numbers hold true, total production expenses in 2000 would equal 84 percent of gross agricultural receipts and around 91 percent of gross receipts less government payments. Those would be the highest production expense levels since the 1980-1984 period.

The agency forecasted modestly declining production flexibility payments and increased LDP payments for 2000, but did not take into account emergency appropriations in its calculations. However, some in Washington expect that given election year politics, and the result of last year's farm assistance debate, a package similar to that emergency assistance measure likely will materialize late in the year.

Farm Bureau last year called on Congress and the administration to approve market loss assistance payments for farmers and ranchers to compensate producers for the lack of expedited trade negotiating authority and lackluster global export markets. Current organization policy calls for similar measures to be implemented in the event that the nation's farm economy continues to lag due to poor exports and insufficient trade deals.

Young Farmers To Gather In Florida For Int'l. Conference

More than 1,000 young farm and ranch leaders from around the world will gather in Orlando, Fla., Feb. 20-24, for the World Congress of Young Farmers. The international conference will help increase understanding and cooperation among the world's young farmers and ranchers as they prepare for global agricultural opportunities in the 21st century.

Hosted by the American Farm Bureau Federation's Young Farmer & Rancher Committee, the meeting will provide 21st century global farm leaders with opportunities to learn from noted international experts and each other. The congress will focus on cultural and business similarities and the shared goals of achieving economic success while producing food, fiber, and shelter for inhabitants of a growing world.

The congress's keynote address will be delivered by Fawzi H. Al-Sultan, president of the International Fund for Agricultural Development (IFAD). A specialized financial agency of the United Nations, IFAD was established in 1977 to help mobilize resources for programs that alleviate rural poverty and improve nutrition in developing countries.

Dean Kleckner, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, will join Al-Sultan as a featured speaker. Kleckner, an Iowa farmer currently serving his seventh two-year term as president of the largest farm organization in the United States, is a strong advocate for decreasing the impact of taxes and regulations on farmers and a champion for increasing market opportunities through global trade liberalization.

Other featured speakers will include international political analyst Dr. John Stoessinger and best-selling author Chin-Ning Chu, a native of China who serves as president of Asian Marketing Consultants Inc. U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Dan Glickman also has been invited to deliver an address to the international gathering of young farmers.

The congress also will include: a selection of tours to Florida agricultural operations and research facilities; a slate of mini-conferences on topics ranging from the Internet to global food security; 10 interactive, commodity-specific round-table discussions; and an American-style agricultural trade show.

FSA Committee Election Process Is Explained

Farm Service Agency (FSA) county director Michael Kozier stated that the FSA committee election will be taking place March 6, and explained the process leading up to the election.

According to Kozier, the county FSA committee administers FSA farm programs at the county and area levels. County FSA committees are elected by eligible producers. Farm owners, operators, tenants, and sharecroppers of legal voting age can vote if they are eligible to take part in any FSA program, Kozier said. People uncertain about their eligibility to vote in the county committee election should contact Kozier at 301-334-6954. During the election period, individuals not receiving a ballot in the mail may obtain a ballot directly from the county office.

Kozier said the election of responsible agricultural producers is important to all farmers and ranchers. Farm programs administered by county FSA committees include:

- commodity price support loans and payments;
- establishment of allotments, yields, and marketing quotas;
- farmer loans;
- conservation programs;
- incentive, indemnity, and disaster payments for some commodities; and
- other farm disaster assistance.

A nomination form signed by the nominee is needed to nominate a farmer-candidate. The form, which can be requested from the county office, includes a statement that the candidate agrees to serve if elected. Nomination forms must be received in the county office by Jan. 21.

Almost anyone eligible to take part in a county FSA program may be a candidate for the committee, according to Kozier.

The 2000 election will end March 6. Ballots will be mailed to voters by Feb. 24 and must be returned to the FSA county office at 1916 Maryland Highway, Suite B, Mtn. Lake Park, MD 21550, postmarked by March 6. Elected committee members and alternates will take office on April 1.

Maryland & Virginia Goes Online In The New Millennium

Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Cooperative launched a web site on Jan. 1, starting the year 2000 with a click! Cooperative members, dairy farmers, and the general public can learn more about the cooperative and its plants, products, and services. Milk market reports, press releases, staff contacts, and links to other great dairy web sites — it's all online at www.mdvamilk.com.

"Since more and more dairy farmers are using the Internet, it is not just useful, but essential to have an informational, interactive, easy-to-navigate web site," says Stephanie Meyers, Maryland and Virginia's director of communication and education. "We are excited to provide this service not only to more effectively communicate with our members, but to benefit the dairy industry and the general public."

From the homepage of www.mdvamilk.com, visitors can choose:

- About Us — an overview of Maryland and Virginia, its producers, plants, products, and services;
- Markets — archived issues of weekly and monthly market newsletters about milk prices and market conditions, and links to other dairy pricing web sites;
- News — cooperative press releases, a trading post, and media information;
- Why Join? — benefits and services offered to members, including legislative representation, education, communication, and field staff;
- Contact Us — e-mail links to key Maryland and Virginia staff members; and
- Links — other dairy web sites about markets, milk quality, publications, legislation, and promotion.

A "Members Only" section is also being developed for fall 2000, featuring milk quality test results, blend prices, member meeting dates, and other specialized information for Maryland and Virginia members.

Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers is a milk marketing and processing cooperative which markets milk for over 1,600 dairy farmers in 10 states from Pennsylvania to Alabama. Headquartered in Reston, Va., with a regional office in Charlotte, N.C., the cooperative includes a fluid milk processing plant in Newport News, Va.; two manufacturing plants in Laurel, Md., and Strasburg, Va.; and an equipment warehouse in Frederick, Md.

Massage Therapy Program Earns State Approval

Garrett Community College's Massage Therapy curriculum was formally approved this month as meeting all state regulatory equivalency standards and requirements. The Massage Therapy curriculum dates back to 1994, when GCC became the first public institution in Maryland to offer such a course of study. Only recently has the state of Maryland required that programs be approved by the Board of Chiropractic Examiners, Department of Health and Mental Hygiene.

"We at GCC are very proud of the Massage Therapy curriculum, our faculty, and students," commented Tom Kierstead, associate program director. "This past December our fourth group of students completed the 661-hour curriculum and a fifth group will graduate December 2000."

GCC is also approved by the National Certification Board for Therapeutic Massage and Bodywork (NCBTMB) as a Category A Continuing Education Provider. The approval was granted in early 1989, and is valid for two years. Category A Continuing Education Provider status allows GCC to offer high-quality continuing professional education to those persons who are already certified or licensed in the region.

"The quality of GCC's Massage Therapy curriculum speaks for itself," Kierstead continued. "In the first five years, there have only been two students who have dropped out of the training, and over 90 percent of those who have challenged the NCBTMB national certification examination have passed."

As Massage Therapy is a clock-hour program not for credit, the curriculum is not eligible for financial aid, but there is some flexibility in payment options. Persons who desire additional information about the Massage Therapy curriculum should call Carol Newman at 301-387-3088, or visit the Continuing Education and Training Division Office, McHenry campus, Room 300.

THE MILLERS' BEEF WITH HOSPICE PAYS OFF - A half beef purchased at the Garrett County Fair by Dr. and Mrs. P. Daniel Miller has made for a whole lot of donations to Hospice of Garrett County over the past six months. Cheryl Miller won the fair bidding for the 1,025-pound Champion Light Weight market steer raised by Michael Wolf, son of Michael and Linda Wolf of Friendsville. She and her husband donated half to Hospice and the other half to the Southern High School Band Boosters. The Hospice half was then raffled off and was won by McHenry resident Ruth Blom, who donated it back to Hospice for a third fund-raiser. The Hospice board of directors and staff entered sealed bids on the beef, and board member Helen Bittinger won with a high bid of $546.47. Shown above are Cheryl Miller, Brenda J. Butscher, executive director of Hospice, and Helen Bittinger, Hospice board member.

Junior Woman's Club Convenes, Makes Donations

The Junior Woman's Civic Club met last Thursday at Mountain Fitness for a tour of the new facility and instructions on using the fitness machines.

Later in the evening, dinner and the business meeting were held at the home of Donna Sites. During the business meeting, reports were given on the success of the recent spaghetti dinner and the bingo games. Donation checks were written to the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department, Our Town Theatre, and to the club's scholarship recipient, Nikolas P. James, for his spring semester at Frostburg State University.

The next meeting is scheduled for Thursday, Feb. 3. The Junior Woman's Civic Club is open to women, 18 or older. Anyone interested in attending the next meeting or joining the club may contact Beverly Haines at 301-387-9629, Beverly Barb at 301-334-2113, or any club member for further information.

Massage Therapy Courses Slated At Garrett CC

The Continuing Education and Training Division of Garrett Community College will offer "Overview of Bodywork and Massage Therapy," a massage clinic, and several courses which provide Category A Continuing Education for licensed massage therapists.

The overview course is the first course in the Massage Therapy curriculum at GCC and is a prerequisite for entry into the core, 661-hour program designed to prepare individuals to become certified and licensed massage therapists. The overview course will meet on four consecutive Saturdays beginning March 4.

GCC's students in the core Massage Therapy curriculum will be offering a massage clinic for the public the week of March 20-25. In this supervised clinical setting members of the public are invited to receive client-focused massage therapy sessions from students. Reservations are required and there is a fee to participate.

GCC is also offering seven courses which may be taken for Category A Continuing Education by certified/licensed massage therapists or by students enrolled in the GCC Massage Therapy curriculum. Those enrolling for Category A Continuing Education must show proof of national certification or state license at the time of registration.

The following courses are available for Category A Continuing Education: Connective Tissue Release, Feb. 19; Body Mechanics II, Feb. 20; The Synovial Joint, March 11; Special Populations: The Elderly, March 12; Integrating Massage and Touch for Health: Top 10 Pain Releasers, April 2; Introduction to Foot Reflexology, April 8; and Emotional Processing: Assisting Clients, April 29-30.

For additional information, persons may call Carol Newman at 301-387-3088, or visit the Continuing Education and Training Division Office, McHenry campus, Room 300.

Valentine's Day Poetry Contest Features Prizes

The second Valentine's Day Poetry Contest, an annual contest designed to encourage poetry writing among average citizens, is accepting submissions through Saturday, Feb. 5. The author of the entry selected as contest winner will receive a $5 gift certificate from Uno Restaurant and a pair of free movie passes at Garrett 8 Cinemas.

"Valentine's Day is ordinarily thought of in terms of romantic love, but submissions for this contest can be about anything relating to love and appreciation," said organizer Debra Wolf, poet in residence with the Garrett County Arts Council and Garrett Community College poetry instructor. "Appreciating a good cup of coffee, for instance, or the thoughts that arise when one sees a flock of white geese standing in a field of mud on a sunny day."

Contest entries may be mailed to: Valentine's Day Poetry Contest, 4443 Pleasant Valley Road, Oakland, MD 21550.

Proof of the Past... Hope for the Future

A picture such as this one is like pure gold, for time passes and memories dim. Babies become children and children become adolescents and often these memories are lost as battles ensue in the generation gap.

Adolescents grow up, go to college, marry and have families of their own. They may move across the country or to another country. It's a small world nowadays...but not that small. Bring out the family album...it shows proof of the past and hope for the future.

The Bible is a history of many families...their good times and bad times. As generations come and go we will always have those occasions when we need reassurance... to be reminded of the unique relationship we have with our Heavenly Father. Don't wait for the bad times. Be prepared. Worship each week at your church or synagogue. We belong to the family of God. Read His Book. It is proof of the past...and hope for the future.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

THEY LAUGHED AT HIM
January 16, 2000

Background Scripture:
Matthew 9:18-38.
Devotional Reading:
Matthew 11:2-6.

When I began to study for the ministry, the healing miracles were a source of controversy, not so much within the churches as between the churches and the secular world. Many of us believed that, while Jesus' miracles in the Gospels were authentic, that was a special situation that did not extend much beyond the limits of his earthly life. I remember when Oral Roberts brought his crusade to Reading, PA and pitched his tent just a couple of blocks from the seminary. Knowing everything, as we thought we did, some of us visited his crusade one evening, primarily to sit in mocking judgment of his ministry. We decided that he was either a charlatan or a sincere man deluding himself. Smug in our theological certitude, we went to laugh at him.

Today, some of the controversy continues, but many of us are no longer laughing. In my ministry, I myself have witnessed God's power to heal. In addition, I have talked with hundreds of nurses and many physicians who believe in the healing power of faith because they have witnessed it. In his book, Healing Words: The Power of Prayer and the Practice of Medicine, Larry Dossey, M.D, cites more than 250 respectable scientific experiments that support the assertion that prayer for healing works.

Of course there are still those who laugh whenever prayer for healing is suggested. It was that way in Jesus' time, too. Lots of people witnessed the healing's of Jesus and followed him, but there were others who were unconvinced. The four healing's recorded in Matthew 9:18-38 are illustrative of the different ways people responded to the signs and wonders Jesus performed.

He Already Believes

First, a ruler or leader in the local synagogue sought out Jesus, kneeling before him and imploring: "My daughter has just died; but come and lay your hand on her, and she will live" (9:18). Note that Jesus didn't go out looking for people to heal, nor did he make any claims about what he could do. The people who wanted healing came to him. Then "Jesus rose and followed him, with his disciples." Jesus doesn't have to assure the man that he will save his daughter; the man already believes he will."

While they are on their way to the ruler's house, "a woman who had suffered from a hemorrhage for twelve years came up behind him and touched the fringe of his garment." She, not Jesus, takes the initiative. Turning and seeing her, he says, "Take heart, daughter, your faith has made you well. And instantly the woman was made well.

Then, Jesus arrives at the house of the ruler and, finding a hubbub of friends and neighbors, Jesus says, "Depart; for the girl is not dead but sleeping." How did the crowd react? "And they laughed at him" (9:24). Jesus was undeterred, however, and when the crowd had been put outside, he went into the ruler's house. Taking the girl's hand, he raised her up alive!

Have Mercy!

The third healing takes place while Jesus is on the road. Two blind men come after him, crying, "Have mercy on us, Son of David." Note once more that Jesus makes no claims or promises. He simply asks the key question: "Do you believe that I am able to do this?" He did not ask them who they thought he was or what others were saying about him. It is their personal response to him that opens them to his healing power.

The fourth healing in this passage is of still a different kind. He has healed a woman of a chronic hemorrhage, raised a daughter from a coma (or death), and restored the sight of two blind men. Now, he is asked to heal a man possessed by a demon. Matthew doesn't tell us much except that the demon was "cast out" and the dumb man spoke. The crowds are exultant, "Never was anything like this seen in Israel." This time, no one is laughing. Instead, his critics complain: "He casts out demons by the prince of demons."

But neither laughter nor malicious lies will stop the miracles: "And Jesus went about all the cities and villages, teaching in the synagogues and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing every disease and every infirmity."

Meet Garrett County's NEW TEACHERS

NORTHERN HIGH

April Tichnell also joined the Northern High English team this year. Tichnell graduated recently from Frostburg State University and is engaged to be married.

Michael Newcomer had a variety of work experience prior to joining the Northern High staff as an English teacher. Newcomer has been a warehouse manager, worked on bridge construction, was a correctional officer, and served five years in the Unites States Marine Corps. He has a 6-year-old son and a 7-month-old daughter to greet him at home.

Newcomer said he likes to work on cars, read, and paint. He said that the following is his favorite quote: "When society tells you that you can't, education tells you that you can."

Ed Bach has been working for the Garrett County Board of Education for 16 years and was employed in the transportation department for 14 of those years.

This year Bach has assumed responsibilities as a classroom teacher, splitting his time between Northern and Southern high schools. In his new capacity, Bach shares his knowledge with his students in masonry.

Marionettes To Perform At FSU

Frostburg State University's Cultural Events Series will present the Cashore Marionettes on Saturday, Feb. 5, at 8 p.m. and Sunday, Feb. 6, at 3 p.m. in the FSU Performing Arts Center Drama Theatre.

Joseph Cashore brings his marionettes to life in a performance of "Simple Gifts." Through Cashore's manipulations, the character of each marionette is revealed in vignettes that carry the audience through a wide range of experiences and emotions.

"The marionettes themselves are engineering marvels," an FSU spokesperson said. "Some of the figures employ as many as 36 strings. Each control mechanism is a new invention designed to enable its marionette to move with subtlety and precision."

Unlike many puppet shows, Cashore's performances are not for the very young (minimum age — 8 years), the spokesperson said.

Tickets for these performances are available at the CES Office, FSU Lane Center, Room 235, Mondays through Fridays, 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., or by phone at 301-687-4411. Based on availability, tickets may also be purchased at the venue box office prior to the performance.

This event is supported by a grant from Pittsburgh Arts on Tour, a program funded by the Vira I. Heinz Endowment and administered by the Mid-Atlantic Foundation.

COVER STORY

Elise goes the distance as Loretta Claiborne

By John Crook
©TVData Features Syndicate

Kimberly Elise (Beloved) scores a personal best in the title role of The Loretta Claiborne Story, an uplifting movie premiering Sunday, Jan. 16, on ABC's The Wonderful World of Disney.

The film, directed by Lee Grant, also stars Emmy winner Camryn Manheim (The Practice) and Tina Lifford (The Temptations). Timothy Shriver, the son of Special Olympics booster Eunice Kennedy Shriver, is among the executive producers.

Part of a large, poor family headed by a single mother (Lifford), Loretta Claiborne was born partially blind. Unable to walk or talk until age 4, she endures the predictable taunts and humiliation for her mild mental retardation while growing up, finding her bliss at last in running.

Her discovery of that talent happily coincides with the establishment of the Special Olympics program, which genuinely changes her life. She receives the 1996 Arthur Ashe Award for Courage at the ESPY Awards.

It's a story that easily could tip over into mawkishness or sentimentality, yet it never does, thanks to striking performances by its stars and bracing direction by Grant.

Manheim is terrific as feisty social worker Janet McFarland, but the role is almost a copy of her award-winning work on The Practice. More surprising is Lifford, who turns Loretta's mother, Rita, into a figure of iron will and righteous anger.

"If God only gives us what we can handle, he must think the world of me!" Rita snorts at one point, and you sense that she is right.

If Lifford and Manheim are excellent, however, Elise is nothing short of extraordinary. The 28-year-old actress came out of the theater less than four years ago and has been giving one breakout performance after another ever since. This one is no exception, making Loretta a prickly, stubborn individual, not a martyr to her disability.

"Our goal was to capture Loretta's spirit more than to just do an imitation," Elise says, recalling the creative decision she reached with director Grant. "The things that I saw and felt coming from her when I met her were what I wanted to put into the character.

"I saw a very sensitive person, but someone who, at the same time, was very strong and confident. She was very funny, very smart and full of intelligent information. But what struck me most was her sensitivity. That kind of character is just so rare."

Elise acknowledges that playing mentally and physically challenged characters is full of traps, but she found freedom in the diversity of the disabled community.

"The biggest thing I had going for me is that there is just not one 'type' of developmentally disabled person," she explains. "They're each such a diverse and particular individual, and that made me feel safer, once I knew there wasn't just one 'right' way to play the character. Each child that I met was as different and unique as pebbles on a beach."

The role proved physically challenging as well. While Elise has kept in shape by running for most of her life, she had given birth to a daughter just a few months before filming.

"The running was really rough, because my body had just been through this (other) trial, and having to do those scenes without having a chance to train properly and get back into shape was tough," she says ruefully.

And that same toughness keeps this TV movie running smoothly.

Friday on A&E Network's Biography, the life of an often-misunderstood author is traced in Truman Capote: The Tiny Terror.

Eight-time Grammy winner Al Green returned to mainstream music in 1999 after 18 years spent focusing on his work as a church pastor.

Singer Isaac Hayes, most recently known as the voice of Chef on South Park, is the morning DJ on radio station WRKS in New York.

TV PIPELINE

Q: My wife doesn't agree that the actor who played the pilot on The A-Team also played Max Headroom. –T. R., Lake Orion, Mich.

A: Way to go, Mrs. R.! Dwight Schultz played Capt. H.M. "Howling Mad" Murdock on NBC's The A-Team. Matt Frewer, who looks uncannily like Schultz, played the title role in ABC's Max Headroom.

Q: Why was 7th Heaven taken off the air? And the Gregory Harrison show was only on for a short time! –Vera Emerson, Creston, Iowa.

A: Rest assured, Vera, that both Heaven and Safe Harbor (Harrison's series) are alive and well on The WB Network. I assume you used to watch them on WGN, which carried WB programming for a few years. Since most parts of the country now have WB affiliates, WGN decided to drop those programs.

Badger your local cable company to pick up a WB affiliate, pronto. I am hearing from dozens of readers in your situation, but that's your only recourse.

Q: Linda Darnell did an extraordinarily kind thing for my wife and me during World War II. I know she died a very tragic death, but does she have a family I could write to and tell them what a wonderful lady Linda was? – Col. Joseph A.L. Greco, Colorado Springs, Colo.

A: Sadly, I have no information for you, Col. Greco, but I will keep your address on file in case I can put you in touch with a relative. Darnell, who was only 41 when she died in a 1965 fire, was widely-known in the industry as a beauty with a big heart.

Q: My wife insists that Irene Ryan was the mother of Don Knotts. Is she right? –T. R., Smyrna, Ga.

A: No, but thanks for the laugh.

Q: What was the TV movie starring Joanne Woodward as a teacher suffering from Alzheimer's disease? –Brooks Page, Daytona Beach.

Matt Frewer as Max Headroom

A: Woodward won an Emmy for 1985's Do You Remember Love.

Q: I am haunted by the theme to the former ABC show Twin Peaks. Could you find the title and tell me where I could find it? –L. Hanf, Columbus, Ohio.

A: Angelo Badalamenti's theme – also known as "Falling" in its vocal version by Julee Cruise – is available on the Twin Peaks soundtrack. It can be found through major music stores or online through Amazon.com.

Q: What has the actor who played Mickey Muldoon in NBC's The Magical Legend of the Leprechauns done? –Irish at Heart in Dixie, Ky.

A: Daniel Betts, a native of Great Britain, previously appeared in an episode of A&E Network's Midsomer Murders called "Blood Will Out," PBS' The Prince of Hearts on Masterpiece Theatre and Carrington, among other credits.

Antiques by Ralph and Terry Kovel

Q: I grew up with two poodles in the 1950s. Every Christmas I received a little poodle figurine. I now have 10 of these figurines. Most of them are pink or white, and all are decorated with bunches of poodle "hair." How was the hair made? What are the figurines worth?

A: Poodles were "in" in the 1950s. They found their way onto skirts, towels, drapes, eyeglass cases and even kitchen canisters. California and Japanese potteries churned out ceramic poodle figurines with "spaghetti" hair. The term "spaghetti" refers to an old technique potters used to make strands of clay by using a sieve or press. Potters would press wet clay (slip) through the sieve. They would then wind the strands of clay around and pile them on the wet molded base. If the designer cut the strands short, the hair was called "slaw" or "coconut." Collectors of ceramic poodles pay $50 and up for rare, large, well-made poodles.

Q: Among my deceased father's cache of old electronic gizmos is a small but heavy portable Philco TV set. The 2-inch screen is behind a sun visor that lifts up. It fits in a brown leather case with a carrying handle. Do you have any idea when this television was made and if people collect old TV sets?

A: Your father's Philco "Safari" TV set, Model No. H2010, was Amer-ica's very first solid-state transistor TV set. It was sold with either a black or cowhide-colored case. The solid-state technology that was used to produce the set was a breakthrough, but the set weighed 15 pounds and cost a hefty $250. It came with a 20-usage rechargeable battery that gave about four hours of viewing per charge. Your father's set is probably the most collectible of all early transistor TV sets. It would sell for more than $200.

Home Tips

A WARMER RADIATOR

I make my radiator warmer over the winter months by taping heavy-gauge aluminum foil, reflective side out, on the wall behind the radiator. If you don't want to put tape on the wall, you can cut out a sheet of same-size cardboard and tape it to that. - Lester M., Tulsa, Okla.

Paint your radiator black; dark colors radiate heat better than light colors. Use a flat finish rather than a glossy one. — Joe P. Butte, Idaho.

COMBAT DRY HEAT

To combat the negative effects of dry heat on my skin, sinuses, and lungs during the winter, I place a portable humidifier in the rooms I use most. After taking a bath, I leave the water in the tub until it has cooled all the way. This also adds humidity to the air. - Phyllis A., Normal, Ill.

AVOIDING HEAT LOSS

If you live in a frame house, you can avoid costly heat loss by checking for drafts underneath the baseboards that run along outside walls. Caulk any underlying cracks you find there. — Ralph N., Camden, N.J.

Pet Care
by Peter Edwards

I hope you never placed your tongue on an ice-cold metal pipe when you were a kid. If you did, you probably remember how quickly your tongue stuck to the metal.

The same thing can happen to your dog if he spends much of his time outdoors in your yard and drinks water from a metal dish. Use a heavy crockery dish instead.

Should dogs wear boots in the winter? The answer is, why not? The Inuits in Alaska and Canada always put leather boots on their sled dogs. This was not so much for warmth, but to protect those delicate paws from being cut by ice or other materials that could lurk unseen under the snow.

If you like to run in the park with your dog in the winter, for example, this might be something you'd consider. Many large pet supply outfits have catalogs that feature these products. You can also talk to your vet about it.

What to do with Broken Locks

You should consider any problem you have with a lock an emergency for two reasons: First, it can easily become a security problem; second, you may end up locked out of your own home!

Here are a few tips:

- If you're locked out and the key got all the way in before it snapped, try turning it with a pair of pliers. If that doesn't work, you can try to remove it with a thin, rigid piece of wire, a hat pin or key extractor (available from hardware stores). If those methods also fail and you can get on the other side of the door, unscrew and pull out the lock cylinder and push the broken key part or object back out with a thin rigid wire, hat pin or key extractor. If these fail too, call a locksmith.
- If the key won't move, or it is hard to move after you've inserted the key, the interior lock probably needs cleaning and lubricating. Remove it from the door, wash it in a petroleum solvent and apply a small amount of penetrating oil to all visible moving parts before reinserting it. Never apply oil to the keyhole itself; use graphite instead.
- If the lock freezes, melt the frozen moisture inside the lock by heating up the key over a flame and then insert it carefully into the lock. You can also spray the keyhole with a lock de-icer or by blowing the lock with a hair dryer.
- If the key won't insert smoothly, rub lubricating graphite back and forth across the key teeth and reinsert the key in the lock.
- If the key turns but won't activate the lock, the lock is broken and you should call a locksmith to repair or replace it.

Christmas Bird Count Numbers Up Significantly

Good weather favored local bird counters on the recent Christmas Bird Count. A new high count of 75 species was established, bettering the previous year's total by two. Total number of birds counted was 13,665, considerably more than last year's 8,523. Relatively "balmy" weather (high 48 degrees), lack of precipitation, and plenty of open water on lakes and streams contributed to the abundance of birds, according to Fran Pope, count compiler.

Fourteen field observers logged a total of 60.75 hours, traveling 423.75 miles on foot and by car. An additional 2.75 hours and 23 miles were spent owling. Eight feeder watchers spent 13.5 hours counting birds at their feeders. "Their efforts paid off in an exceptional count," Pope said.

Two species were counted that have not been recorded on a Garrett County Christmas Count since 1955: a northern shrike and an American woodcock. All-time high counts were achieved for several species: pied-billed grebe (46), Canada goose (1,354), ruddy duck (944), wild turkey (70), and Carolina wren (17). Twenty-two species of waterfowl were seen, as well as eight different kinds of birds of prey, including an adult bald eagle and a rough-legged hawk.

The "top 10" birds (by numbers counted) were: American crow, 6,125; Canada goose, 1,354; ruddy duck, 944; mallard, 922; American coot, 817; European starling, 633; black-capped chickadee, 453; hooded merganser, 241; dark-eyed junco, 180; and blue jay, 172.

Field observers for the count were: Gary Aronholt, Ken Bauer, Kevin Dodge, Mary Edgerly, Courtney Englar, Barbara and George Gaffney, Marshall Iliff, Greg Miller, Jeff Opel, Fran and Bill Pope, Judy Sconyers, and Connie Skipper. Feeder watchers were Dessie Bowman, Frances and Harold Hoecker, Edith Jack, Barbara and Jesse Skipper, Kathryn Speicher, and Glenn Welch.

The next scheduled bird count in Garrett County will be a spring count on Saturday, May 13, and will include the entire county. Pope will coordinate the May Count.

A NORTHERN SHRIKE was seen for the first "official" time in Garrett County since 1955 during the recent annual Christmas Count, conducted by local birders. This photo was taken by Fran Pope, Mtn. Lake Park, one of the coordinators of the count. The shrike is knows as the "butcher" bird because of its unusual practice of impaling prey on thorns or barbed wire, and then returning later to feed upon it. Fran and her husband Bill observed this particular one "storing" a deceased mouse by wedging it in a forked branch of a tree, and later taking a piece of the prey and impaling it on a thorn for future dining. The total number of birds counted this year by 14 field observers and feeder watchers was 13,655, well above last year's figure. There was also a record high 75 species recorded. See story for details.

Commencement At AC Includes Local Students

Allegany College of Maryland recognized 147 students, including 11 students from Garrett County, at its recent fall 1999 commencement exercises on the college's Cumberland campus. The 147 graduates earned a total of 154 associate degrees and certificates.

Local residents who received nursing degrees include: Brandi Opel and Brandi S. Palmer, Grantsville; Ann Marie Dunaway, Mtn. Lake Park; and Kelly E. Fitzwater and Jill Ravenscroft, both of Oakland.

William Paul Vaughn, McHenry, and Cheryl L. Remley, Oakland, each received a degree for occupational therapy assistant.

A criminal justice degree was earned by Brandon Layman, Grantsville.

Kathleen Ann Orner, Grantsville, received a degree in business technology.

Mary M. Teter, Oakland, and Crystal A. House, Grantsville, each received a health care technician certificate.

Garrett CC Sets Employment Skills Training Program

Employment Skills Training, a program designed to prepare individuals to re-enter the workforce, has been slated by the Continuing Education and Training Division of Garrett Community College. The 630-hour employment-based training program will begin on March 20 and will continue for 19 weeks. "We have had tremendous placement success with this program," a GCC spokesperson said. "Typically, our students have been offered employment prior to the end of the program."

Employment Skills Training utilizes classroom instruction, specialty training, and an internship. Students may choose from one of three specialties — office skills, certified nursing assistant, or small business management. Specialty training consists of 120 classroom hours devoted to the chosen specialty, providing students with the necessary skills to succeed in the workforce.

All students take courses in math, language, computer skills, customer service, interpersonal skills, problem solving, and fitness consisting of a total of 260 hours in basic skills and work ethics. Internship sites are selected at the outset of the training, and students begin observation visits during the fourth week of the program. By the twelfth week, students are completing their specialty training and spending the majority of their time at worksites. Students also receive job placement assistance through the program.

Those interested in the Employment Skills Training (EST) program may contact Julie Yoder at 301-387-3101. Financial aid is available to those who qualify. Employers who are interested in having an EST student complete an internship at their business are also encouraged to call Yoder.

In Memory Of
who passed away Jan. 29, 1999

A veteran who served his country with pride, honor, courage, and dignity.

Never complaining, never regretting, not knowing what the outcome would be sure makes the heart swell with pride, to know he served his country well; a faithful soldier to the end.

Returning home to family and friends, a mountain railroad man, indeed a friend to all. His journey would take him places near and far. Seeing and talking and living the railroad life. Never a dull moment for this man. He always had a lot of railroad stories to tell. Those who met him became his friend for all times. His family, children, grandchildren were his pride and joy.

He had friends everywhere. His home was a place for everyone to share. The welcome mat was always out. Time had gone by fast. We sure do miss him a lot.

These treasures we have are the precious memories we can keep.

Thank you, Homer Friend, for the legacies you left behind.

Homer, we will meet you again one day on the train bound for glory when it makes its final run. Life is like a mountain railroad with Jesus as our engineer.

Sadly missed by everyone.

TAX TIP #2

Although the specifics of their audit-screening program are a closely guarded secret, the IRS doesn't hide its interest in returns that take certain deductions (a home office, business entertainment, charitable contributions of property, hobby-type businesses, etc.). Proper return preparation and documentation will reduce unwarranted IRS scrutiny. For tax help, call us.

Honor And Memory of Our Parents' Birthdays
Henry C. Lewis - Jan. 22
Hester M. Lewis - Jan. 27

Tears still flow because you are not here, but know your memories are forever near.

The warm and tender care you gave your children: encouraging and teaching us to walk the way Christ would be pleased.

Jesus is not pleased by the way some of us live.

Our parents taught us well, and left a legacy with us.

If our parents could pray right now, maybe this would be their prayer:

"Dear Lord Jesus, please keep your hand on our children. Give them all wisdom and knowledge and understanding; to see, to know, and most of all, let them love. Let them know to help each other and always know God is first. Stay close as a family. All material things are not important.
God bless each of our children.
Mom & Dad"

So let us realize how fortunate we are to have had parents who cared.

So think about it. Our lives can be rich and full. All we need to do in any situation is ask W.W.J.D. (What Would Jesus Do?)

Rejoice and be glad, and let's not break the circle.

We miss you, Mom & Dad.

Love from your Children, Family, & Friends

SCHOOL NEWS

The Friendsville Elementary School has recently established a Memorial Wall to display the pictures of the young men from Friendsville who lost their lives in the Vietnam War. The pictures will be displayed on the wall in the front foyer for all to see. This two-year goal was brought about by principal Doug Gaither in hopes that the students can now associate the names on the memorial in the front of the school with the faces of the men, and get a better understanding of what was lost to the community. The pictures should be on display by the end of the week.

December's attendance was one of the highest.

A volunteer meeting will be held Thursday, Jan. 20, beginning at 1:30 in the cafeteria.

The PTO is once again sponsoring bingo on March 5 at the Friendsville fire hall. The charge will be $15 in advance or $20 at the door. The time will be made available at a later date. For more information, persons may contact Georgia Yoder at 301-746-4042.

STEP AEROBICS

A step aerobics class is held every Tuesday and Thursday at the Friendsville Elementary cafeteria. Because of the large response, two classes are being held on both nights, with the first class scheduled for 5:15 until 6:15 p.m. and the second class from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m.

ON A PERSONAL NOTE
by Lucretia Sines

A new year is upon us (for nearly two weeks now), and I have already fallen behind in my duties. 1999 went by so fast that I was barely prepared for Y2K, but lucky for me, nothing major went wrong in the good ol' USA.

Did you find yourself so busy getting ready for the year 2000 that 1999 is a blur? Well, I have once again put together a little recap of happenings in Friendsville through the past year. So for those of you who like to look back even as we move forward, here goes....

January 1999 gave us extremely cold weather (boy, did we luck out so far this month).

New town council members Shirley A. Metheny, Wayne Friend, and Jess Whittemore were sworn into office in February.

In April, there was a ground-breaking for the new Senior Center.

A grand reopening and dedication ceremony was held in the town park for the new playground equipment in May. On May 25, the Friendsville Elementary Chorus traveled to Washington, D.C., to perform "Gabby's Gift" for Senator Paul Sarbanes.

A graduation ceremony for the last graduating class of the 1900s was held on June 6 at Northern High School, with 22 graduates from Friendsville and the surrounding area.

The month of July brought us the 35th annual Fiddle and Banjo Contest. On the 27th of July, Friendsville's First United Bank and Trust was robbed by a man who claimed to have a bomb. He was later caught in Pennsylvania on Sept. 9.

The worst drought that Maryland had seen since the 1930s caused the governor to mandate statewide water restrictions in August. Also in August, local residents Jess Whittemore, Amy Conger, and John Mason of Mountain Surf Inc. survived a tornado in Salt Lake City.

October was a proud time for the family of Michael Hoover, who was the youngest person to ever receive the Firefighter/Rescue Person of the Year Award presented by the Garrett County Vol. Fire and Rescue Association.

The much-awaited opening of the Friendsville Community and Senior Center happened Oct. 11, and a dedication ceremony was held on Oct. 29.

Two new businesses were opened in 1999: Wildwasser Sport USA, and TNT Subs and Pizza. Unfortunately, the Old Mill Restaurant closed its doors, but hopefully will reopen in the new year.

A whole year is ahead for us to look forward to, but as we push forward into the year 2000, let us reflect on the lives of those from Friendsville who have passed away in the last year and will be greatly missed by many. Memories of these friends and loved ones will be carried on in our hearts forever, and the touch that they had on our lives will be eternal: Margaret Rush, Jim Teats, Ivan Bowser, Patty Lowdermilk, Evelyn Friend, Ireta Gittere, Fred Humberson, Nancy Milliren, Rev. Roy Riffle, Jerry Frazee, Julia Skidmore, Naomi Bowser, Myrtle Taylor, Cora Savage, Dan Slagle, Elma Arblaster, Mike Bietzel, Merle Wakefield, Jerry Umble, Lorene Bartholomew, James Frantz, Agnes Teats, Todd Silbaugh, Iretha Fike, Jessie Savage, Joe Connors, Helen Lohman, Maxine Casteel, Karol Rush, and Mrs. Ralph Bowser.

NANCY J. TROTTA

WESTERN MARYLAND REAL ESTATE
19505 Garrett Hwy.
Dry Dock Plaza
301-387-8222

EARL H. GEORGE

We're Celebrating!

In the fall of 1998, someone told us, "I can get anybody a loan."

In July of this year, we realized we were quickly running out of options. We needed to own our own home. We decided to take our friend up on her challenge.

Nancy Trotta worked with us to get us qualified for a FHA loan. After months of looking at houses, jumping hurdles, hopeless frustration, and submitting contracts, we finally did it!

Nancy didn't judge us based on our checking account. She didn't look at us as her next commission. She cared enough about us as humans with a dream and a family to raise to work tirelessly, and unselfishly to get us in our home! She pours her heart and soul into her work because she really cares about people and she believes that everyone should own their own home. Her motto is, "If there's a will, there's a way." Nancy has proven herself to be caring, understanding, honest, and trustworthy.

We could not have done it without her. She consoled us. She helped us pick up the broken pieces of our life when it looked like our dreams were being shattered to bits again. She believed in us, and helped us to believe in ourselves. Brokers such as Nancy are a rare find in today's world! There is no one in Garrett County who would have stuck with us after all the problems we ran into. There is no one in Garrett County who cared as much as Nancy did—and still does. When we were ready to give up, Nancy helped us to believe, and fought for us. Nancy just would not give up on us—giving up is not something that lady is accustomed to! Any other broker would have told us, "There's nothing else I can do for you." Those words never once came out of Nancy's mouth. Nancy knows how to put someone in his or her own home when everyone else says it can't be done.

We have a home we look forward to coming back to. We have peace of mind knowing we can't be told that we have to buy or leave. It can't be rented or sold out from under us. Our children have somewhere to put down roots; someplace they can call home; some place they can enjoy childhood with their pets as part of the family.

We want to thank Nancy, Frank, Earl, and Kim at Western Maryland Real Estate, Mortgage, and Insurance. They gave us back our dignity and self-worth and treated us with respect. Also, a big thanks to Craig Ingram for a thorough closing.

Ed, Yvette, Derek and Christia Nutter,
Jake the bunny, Candy the hamster, Chloe and Tina, the puppies

Let's Get Down To Business!

This is a feature of The Republican to better acquaint our readers with various area business establishments.

Deep Creek Brewing Company

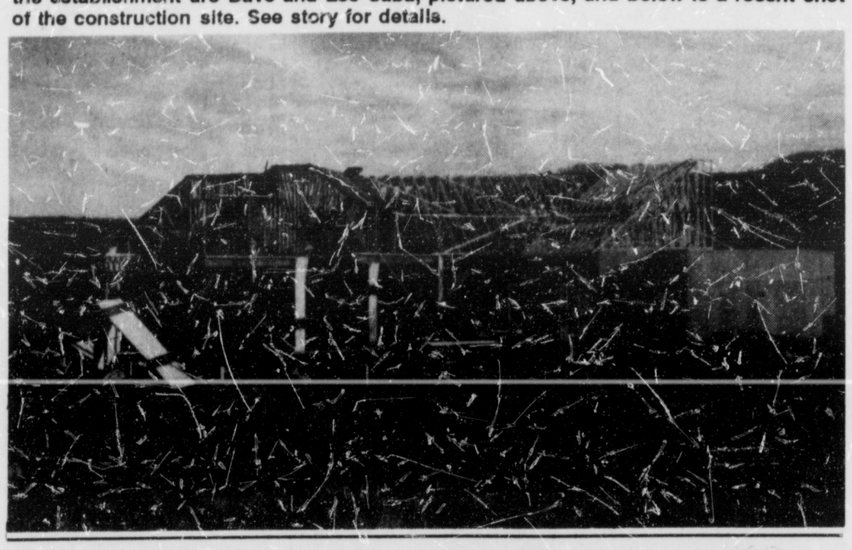
Maryland's Smallest Brewery Expanding

Deep Creek Brewing Company's 1,000-square-foot warehouse certainly qualified it as the smallest brewery in Maryland, if not the country. Even when the business expanded into its current 2,000-square-foot restaurant and brewery at Deep Creek Lake in April 1999, it still qualified as the smallest. The establishment will finally lose that distinction next May with the opening of a 6,000-square-foot restaurant and brewery in McHenry.

"Slow and steady seems to win the race," stated Dave Saba, co-founder of Deep Creek Brewing. "Over the last three years, we have watched a lot of breweries expand rapidly, then either die off or sell. We are in this for the long haul."

Dave and his wife Lee fondly remember the day in February 1996 when the idea was launched. Dave had been working for Bausch & Lomb in Mtn. Lake Park, but had recently changed jobs. Six months after that job change, Bausch & Lomb announced it was closing the local plant, and all 600 jobs would be lost. "That was a scary time for the entire area. If I had stayed with B&L, I would either be unemployed or forced to move from this great area. We were hiking the state parks that day and decided we needed to take matters into our own hands and develop our own company," Saba said.

NO LONGER THE SMALLEST brewery in Maryland, or the nation, will be the Deep Creek Brewing Company, which will soon move from its 2,000-square-foot brewery/restaurant space into a new 6,000-square-foot space in McHenry. The owners of the establishment are Dave and Lee Saba, pictured above, and below is a recent shot of the construction site. See story for details.



Saba believed Garrett County held many interesting options for a start-up business. With the Wisp Ski Resort, Deep Creek Lake, and many pristine state parks, the tourism industry seemed to be undergoing rapid growth. They looked for the best way to tap into that growth, with minimal start-up costs. They made bageis, looked at delis, and made some beer. The beer won.

Two weeks later, Dave Saba walked into the Frederick Brewing Company and asked if they would brew his beer. "The first contract was worked out on a yellow pad with a handshake," he said. Three months later, Deep Creek Golden Ale was launched, with Frederick Brewing Company brewing the beer.

Saba continued to work his day job and Lee worked the business. Distribution began only in Garrett County for the first four months, then gradually expanded into the rest of Maryland over the next year. They continue to look for market expansion in northern Virginia and western Pennsylvania during the next two years, but only if the demand is there and they can support the brands.

As Frederick Brewing began to have some financial difficulty, the Sabas decided it was time to take matters into their own hands. The original business plan was to build a brewery, but the market had changed dramatically. Now the best opportunity for success was to serve their own beers in their own restaurant. The business plan was changed to incorporate the construction of a restaurant and brewery complex at Deep Creek Lake.

However, the financing process dragged on and they desperately needed a place to operate. A friend showed them a restaurant for lease, and three months later they were up and running. "We had a great brewer, great chef, and great manager — we just didn't have a restaurant. This gave us a great opportunity to start the operation on a small scale and get all the systems in place to move to the larger facility," stated Lee Saba. The current restaurant seats 40 and is open seven days a week for lunch and dinner.

The brewing equipment arrived three months after the opening, allowing the Sabas to finally brew and bottle all their own products. They installed the 10-barrel Traditional Brewing system right in the center of the restaurant, and patrons can watch the entire process as Rolfe Saunders, the brewer, brews one of their eight different beers. Two of the most popular beers are the Deep Creek Golden Ale and the Big Bear Stout.

With the many families vacationing in the area and dealing with a ban on Sunday sales, the Sabas also make their own homemade root beer and cream soda. On Sundays, fresh-squeezed lemonade is available as well. It doesn't make up for the loss in beer sales, but it does soften the blow," Saba said.

The menu incorporates the rural setting of the restaurant, with grilled Delmonicos, pan-fried trout, elk and venison stew, and a variety of grilled items. Beer is used as an ingredient in the stew, and in the batter for the portobello mushrooms and fish and chips. They also make their own malt vinegar for the fish and chips. Fresh and homemade menu items complement the homemade beer and sodas. Merchandise sales of their T-shirts, hats, sweatshirts, and pint glasses have been brisk because of a desire by visitors to take a Deep Creek souvenir home.

Take-out beer completes the sales picture, with growlers, six packs, cases, and kegs available. The top-selling take-out beer has been draught beer in 2-liter German style growlers. Their growlers have the black bear logo on the ceramic top and sell for $6 a fill. Outside distribution only consists of draught beer and cases of their gold and red.

The new facility is fully under roof now, thanks to the financing efforts of First United Bank, USDA Rural Development, and Tri-County Council economic development programs, Saba said. Expected completion is late May 2000, with seating for 125. It will be three times the size of their current location, which will allow some much needed space for the brewery. The facility has a 25-seat private dining area, 25-seat bar, and 75-seat main dining area with a unique design.

"It's all a part of my 'get rich slow' scheme," Saba said. "We have provided a plan for steady growth that allows us to capitalize on a rapidly growing tourism base. We continue to grow outside beer distribution, and with the restaurant, we will be able to achieve our goal of a successful brewing operation at Deep Creek Lake."

Funds Earmarked For Western Md. Highway Study

A state record $8 million transportation budget package submitted by Governor Parris Glendening this week includes $600,000 set aside to conduct a study on a proposed north/south interstate highway project in western Maryland. The money will be used to investigate the feasibility of a route proposed by a bi-county group of elected officials and business persons for a highway that would run through Garrett County only for a short portion on its northern end, with the lion's share of the roadway utilizing Allegany County land.

The proposed highway would promote economic growth in both counties, House Speaker Casper Taylor Jr. said, and would provide for a more unified western Maryland, which would become a part of a major north/south interstate route that would connect Toronto and Miami. The large increase in commerce between Canada and the United States that has resulted in part from the signing of the North American Free Trade Agreement represents an untapped resource of economic potential, other highway backers have said. "If the state moves forward with this recommendation it will be a great boon to the mountain counties of western Maryland," said David Moe, president of the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce.

The route agreed upon by the two counties would carry a four-lane interstate south from the Pennsylvania line along the route of Route 219. At its junction with Interstate 68, the highway would turn east and overlap the existing interstate until reaching LaVale, where it would follow the Winchester Road corridor to eventually emerge on Route 220 below Cresaptown. From there it would follow the Potomac River Basin south to the West Virginia state line.

Maryland's highway proponents hope that the new interstate would be able to tie in with the proposed Corridor H highway in West Virginia, and tie in with Interstate 80 and several other interstates in Pennsylvania. A goal of local officials is to persuade the other states to conduct studies of their own that would use the Maryland proposal as a model.

MAKE WAY FOR GRANNY D - Her destination is Washington D.C., her cause is Campaign Finance Reform, her age is just shy of 90, and her name is Doris Haddock. A determined woman who has been on the road for over a year — having departed from Pasadena, Calif., January 1, 1999 — Granny is currently crossing Garrett County, undeterred by falling snow, frigid temperatures, emphysema, and arthritis. If the nation's citizens don't take action, "big money" will replace the government of the people, by the people, and for the people, she warns. In the photo above, following Granny along Route 40 west of Grantsville are Oberlin College students Laura Mellor Weller and Mary Reobuck. Today's snowfall of 6+ inches closed Garrett County schools and gave Granny, a crosscountry ski instructor, a chance to break out her skis as she makes her way to Allegany County for her 90th birthday celebration. Three Taken To Hospital After Car Overturns

A single-vehicle accident on Dung Hill Road Sunday evening resulted in three people being transported to Cumberland Memorial Hospital for treatment of injuries.

Tfc. R. Sharp of the Maryland State Police, Barrack W, McHenry, reported that Jesse Durst, 18, Grantsville, was operating a 1986 Oldsmobile westbound on Dung Hill Road at about 8:15 p.m. when his vehicle slid on the roadway and went off the left side. The car then struck a rocky embankment and overturned, police said.

Durst and two passengers, Christina Donnelly, 15, and Trisha Wilt, 15, were injured in the accident. Northern Rescue Squad and Bittinger VFD responded to the scene and transported the victims to the hospital, where they were treated and released.

Vehicles Collide

Two vehicles collided near the intersection of Boy Scout Road and Sand Flat Road on Friday, Jan. 14, around 4:45 p.m.

Tfc. G. Seaman reported that Michael L. Hoye, 39, Oakland, was backing a 1970 Ford F100 from a residence on Boy Scout Road when an eastbound 1989 Chevrolet operated by Robert J. Kirkham Jr., 45, McHenry, approached.

Allegedly, Hoye partially entered the eastbound lane as Kirkham's vehicle skidded on the icy road surface and collided with Hoye's truck injuring two passengers, Carri Sue Hoye, 18, and Robert G. Cook, 25,

Commissioners To Decide Code Home Rule Issue Through Referendum Vote

The decision to change Garrett County's governing system will be made by the citizenry next November, as the current county commissioners are pursuing the adoption of code home rule through a public referendum. The vote will coincide with the General Election on Nov. 7.

The current form of Garrett County's government, the three-person commission, has been practiced since 1872. This form allows for the three elected individuals to make fiscal decisions with the county budget, allotting funds to the various agencies and departments with direction from those department leaders. In order to conduct certain aspects of county business, the commissioners must often direct the county's delegate to the Maryland General Assembly to introduce policy or procedure-changing bills. Code home rule will apparently allow the commissioners to make some of those decisions on their own, without having to go through the bill process.

The commissioners hosted an informational meeting on the issue Tuesday afternoon. While they had first assumed that legislative action was needed to afford them the authority to seek the change, they have since been informed that this is not required.

The Maryland Department of Legislative Services was called upon to answer some questions about the process, and in a letter directed to Delegate George Edwards, legislative counsel William Varga explained that the county can seek the change through referendum.

"Under Article 25B of the [Annotated] Code [of Maryland], the process starts with a determination by the board of county commissioners that it will formally consider adopting code home rule," Varga wrote. The county commissioners are required to hold at least two public hearings on the proposal, he explained, and then they must decide by resolution whether to adopt code home rule. At least two of the three must agree to adopt the resolution. The resolution is then to be sent to the county board of elections by the third Monday of August of a congressional election year (which is this year) in order to be placed on the ballot.

If the majority of the voters choose to adopt the new form of government, the county will become a code county under the provisions of the Constitution of Maryland on the 30th day after the election.

"If we adopt code home rule, it will not really cause any major changes in the way we conduct business," said Chairman Wendell Beitzel. Commissioners Ernest Gregg concurred.

"Code home rule will give the commissioners more administrative flexibility, not more power," Gregg said.

Monty Pagenhardt, county administrator, gave examples of issues in the past for which the commissioners had to pursue legislation. These examples included the seeking of approval for a loan to the Garrett County Memorial Hospital, the alleviation of property taxes for Christian Crossing in Loch Lynn, and the commissioners authority to have a 2% purchasing power, to be utilized in the county budget process.

"The hospital needed a loan for improvements, and the administration wanted to go through the commissioners to get the loan. The commissioners were not permitted to do this without seeking legislation," Pagenhardt said. "That caused a long delay for the hospital. If we had been a code home rule county, we could have helped pursue the loan

Garrett County Fire Companies Assist In Pa.

Eastern Garrett and Grantsville volunteer firefighters were among those who responded to a structure fire in nearby Pocahontas, Pa., early Monday, a blaze that destroyed a wood shop at a private residence. Some 65 volunteers from eight departments battled both flames and the weather conditions, as four adjacent structures caught fire because of the high winds.

The alarm was sounded by Somerset County Control Emergency Center at 1:02 a.m., and Eastern Garrett units arrived on the scene first. Flames were already through the roof of a 40-by-60-foot wood shop, located at 3562 Greenville Road and owned by a Hertsler family. The high winds quickly ignited the Hertsler residence, a garage, a horse stable, and a neighbor's house located some 500 feet away.

"When we arrived on the scene, there were literally five structure fires under way," stated Doug Beitzel, a member of the Grantsville VFD. "The roads were icy and the wind chill was about 25 below zero, so conditions were pretty brutal."

Sportsman's Group Asks Wildlife Commission For Limited Bear Hunt

Representatives of the Maryland Sportsman's Association (MSA) traveled to Annapolis yesterday to ask the Wildlife Advisory Commission of the Department of Natural Resources Wildlife and Heritage Division for a limited black bear hunting season. The MSA, a lobbying group that represents a number of Maryland hunters and anglers, said it was acting in response to what it considers is a growing threat posed by increasing numbers of bears in western Maryland.

The group's proposal for a limited hunt in 2000-01 was tabled by the DNR commission until its members could study it and compare it to the findings of a DNR task force that recommended a limited hunt five years ago. That recommendation was tabled at the time by DNR, which opted instead to sell bear stamps in an effort to raise funds to compensate farmers who had suffered crop damage from bears.

The MSA reportedly proposed a lottery-type system in which hunters would pay a $10 application fee to participate in the drawing for a bear permit, with approximately 50 permits issued the first season.

"We believe that if we can get 5 percent of our hunters to apply, then we can generate up to $50,000 that can be used to pay for crop damage caused by bears," said MSA spokesperson Tim Lambert, a Cecil County resident.

Farmers are currently partially reimbursed for certified bear damage with funds raised by the sale of bear stamps. To date, farmers have been compensated with approximately 42 cents for every dollar they have lost. The certifiable damage figure for crops during the 1999 growing season was $14,181 in Garrett County, DNR has said. Bear stamp sales have trailed off considerably, down to $1,700 in Fiscal Year 1999 (which ended June 30), from $5,800 in FY 1998 and $4,900 in FY 1997.

Bonnie Kelley, a DNR Wildlife Advisory Commission member from Accident, said this morning that over a 24-hour period earlier this week she received 21 phone calls in favor of a hunting season, all from Garrett County residents. Only one caller, a Cumberland resident, opposed a hunt, citing the potential for cub kills.

"From what I'm hearing, as well as what we've seen on our own property, the bear population is increasing each year," Kelley said. "People are concerned not only about farmers' livelihood being affected by crop damage, but also the greater problem of the potential of harm to human life. Bear

Plans Viewed For Grantsville Outreach Bldg.

Grantsville's mayor and town council members had the opportunity to get a close look at draft plans for the Grantsville Outreach building, which, if constructed, would house Garrett County Health Department, Department of Social Services, and Garrett Community College.

Following a hearing, the council voted to apply for a Community Development Block Grant that would fund part of planning for this outreach facility.

Duane Yoder, president of Garrett County Community Action Inc., is spearheading the effort to access funds and develop this shared community resource for residents of northern Garrett County. The building would be owned and operated by Community Action, with county agencies occupying space as paying tenants.

Emphasizing that nothing is yet written in stone, Yoder said that he has held extensive discussions of facility use with the poten-

Our Town Theatre Nets Major Grant From Maryland 2000

The Our Town Theatre received a major grant this week from the Maryland Commission for Celebration 2000 (Maryland 2000) that will enable the theatre to undertake some major structural improvements, as well as support several upcoming productions. "This $39,960 grant is the largest in the state that the Maryland Commission for Celebration 2000 is giving to support a community theater," said Louise Hayman, the commission's executive director. "We're delighted to add our support to the Our Town Theatre because it is establishing itself as a vital part of the Garrett County community."

The Maryland 2000 grant will be used to pay for equipment expenses including electrical improvements and theatrical lighting and capital expenses for roofing, insulation, and ventilation, said Jane Avery, the theater's founder and artistic director. The grant will also be used to offset the cost of four productions by the theatre company during this year, which include Quilters, Our Town, Letters to the Editor, and Seascapes.

"We were absolutely floored when we learned of the grant," Avery said. "We can cut our heating bills considerably, which have been a great expense, with a better roof and insulation, and installing our own lighting system will mean we won't have to scramble to borrow equipment."

"The theatre has been operating through the generosity of local benefactors and the community at large since its inception," said OTT board member David Bertsch, who, along with his wife Judy, vice president of the OTT board, and Oakland resident Barbara Boone, authored the grant application.

"We truly appreciate all that our local residents have done and continue to do for us, but this grant is significant in that it comes from

HARD WORK REWARDED AT OUR TOWN THEATRE — In acknowledgment of Our Town Theatre "establishing itself as a vital part of the Garrett County community," the Maryland Commission for Celebration 2000 (Maryland 2000) has awarded the non-profit entity a grant for nearly $40,000. The announcement was made this week via a celebration at the theatre Monday evening. Thanks were given to the Maryland 2000 representative and congratulations were expressed to the Our Town Theatre board of directors and to grant writers David and Judy Bertsch, and Barbara Boone. The grant amount is the largest given by Maryland 2000 for projects such as Our Town, and will be used by the local volunteer board to improve the building's theatrical lighting, roofing, and ventilation, among other things. Jane Avery, who founded the theatre and has kept it in nearly constant operation since its doors opened nearly three years ago, said she and the board were thrilled about the announcement, and said that the grant money will provide for a tremendous boost to the non-profit organization. Pictured left to right are Judy Bertsch, Maryland 2000 representative Louise Hayman, David Bertsch, Avery, and Richard Hill, president of the Our Town Theatre board of directors.

Reservations For Our Town Now Available

Reservations for seats for Thornton Wilder's play Our Town at Our Town Theatre, Oakland, are now available and can be made by calling the theatre at 301-334-5640. The play, which features over 30 local actors, will be performed on February 9, 10, 11, 12, 16, 17, 18, and 19 at 8 p.m. and in Sunday matinees on February 13 and 20 at 2 p.m. The cost for all tickets is $5.00.

Reservations are strongly encouraged and may be made by calling the theatre and leaving a message stating the caller's name, phone number, the date for which the reservations are requested, and the number of reservations required. Someone from the theatre will call back to confirm the reservations.

"We tend to sell out a lot," noted Jane Avery, the director of the production, "and it's always upsetting to have to turn people down because they haven't made their reservations soon enough. So far, 30% of our tickets have been promised to O.T.T. members and to friends and relatives of the cast, so people need to call soon, especially if there is a specific date for which they want tickets."

Our Town is produced by special arrangement from Samuel French Inc., and is funded by a Maryland 2000 grant, the Stanley P. Smith Family Foundation, and the Garrett County Arts Council.

A WILD GOOSE CHASE came to a successful conclusion yesterday morning in downtown Oakland, as Oakland city police chief John Sines apprehended a lone goose who had apparently lost its way. The chief took the goose into custody because it was interfering with traffic along Third Street in front of the Garrett County District Court building, and he transported it to the Department of Natural Resources Wildlife Division district office at Mt. Nebo. With the aid of DNR naturalists, the goose has now gone south to meet up with its fellow travelers. Naturalists remind citizens that approaching or handling wildlife can be dangerous, and should only be undertaken as a last resort by a trained individual acting in the interest of public safety.

Grantsville Man To Serve Time For MV Charge

A Grantsville man was sentenced to jail time last week in proceedings of the Circuit Court of Garrett County. DeWayne Anthony Holliday, 20, was convicted of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle and was sentenced by Judge Fred A. Thayer to four years in the Maryland Department of Corrections. The judge suspended all but 12 months of the term and ordered that the remainder of the sentence be served in the Garrett County jail.

The judge also ordered Holliday to be on three years of supervised probation upon his release from jail.

Holliday was arrested last year after James E. Sherbin Jr. reported that someone had taken his 1997 Honda CBR 600 motorcycle from his property sometime near the end of March. The motorcycle was found wrecked a short distance from Sherbin's residence, according to the report.

The defendant reportedly turned himself in to the police in April, at which time he was charged with the crime. Holliday apparently had a suspended driver's license at the time of the incident.

In another case, a Deer Park man was sentenced for DUI (driving while under the influence of drugs and/or alcohol). Benjamin John Shaffer, 25, pleaded guilty to the DUI charge, as well as to the charge of driving with a suspended license. Thayer fined the defendant $500 (plus court costs) for the DUI conviction, and sentenced him to one year in the local jail for the suspended license charge. The judge suspended all but 30 days of the jail term, and ordered that Shaffer be on supervised probation for two years.

The defendant was charged on two occasions last spring by the Maryland State Police, according to the report.

Reports of further circuit court proceedings held last week will appear in next week's issue of The Republican.

State's Unemployment Rate Drops; Garrett's Still High, But Improving

State figures released last week show that Maryland's unemployment rate for November dropped to 3.1%, the lowest level on record, according to Governor Parris Glendening. October's unemployment level was 3.3%, which reportedly tied the all-time low. Maryland's unemployment rate was below the November national average of 3.8%.

While Garrett County continues to be among the three highest unemployment rate jurisdictions in Maryland, the numbers for last fall were significantly lower than those from 1998. In October 1999, the unemployment rate in Garrett County was 6.3, slightly lower than November's rate of 6.5. In November 1998, Garrett's rate was 9.2, according to the state figures.

"The phenomenal 3.1% unemployment rate is a historic achievement for Maryland, and is our strongest indication to date that Maryland's booming economy continues to expand and provide even greater opportunities for our families every day," Glendening said. "Marylanders are getting jobs, keeping jobs, and creating better lives and a brighter future for their children. It is absolutely critical that we make the necessary long-term investments now to ensure that this unparalleled economic prosperity continues in the new century."

In November throughout the state, the labor force dropped by about 5,500 people, according to the report. This decline, coupled with a modest increase in the number of employed people, helped to lower unemployment to 87,987. Last November (1998), 50,490 fewer Marylanders were employed and 4% of the labor force, or 111,093 people, were without jobs.

According to the report, hiring activity during November 1999 was centered primarily in retail trade, as employers began to bring in temporary workers for the holiday season. Among retailers, notable job gains were reported at general merchandise stores, in miscellaneous retail establishments such as card, book, and jewelry stores, and in home furnishing stores. On business payrolls, jobs were added in business services, wholesale trade, and at engineering and management firms.

The difference between Garrett County's unemployment rate and the state's average has lessened over the past year. While 1998's state unemployment rate for November was 4.0, Garrett's was 9.2, a difference of 5.2. Now the county is about 3.4 percentage points away from the Maryland average, with 6.5% in November '99 compared to the state's 3.1% that month.

Worcester County had the highest unemployment rate in November 1999, coming in at 12.2%. The next highest rate was that of Somerset County at 6.7%, followed by Garrett County. The lowest unemployment rate in Maryland that month was in Howard County, with a rate of 1.5%.

Nap At Wheel Nets McHenry Man Jail Stay

A McHenry man arrested by Maryland State Police troopers after he was located sleeping behind the wheel of a vehicle along Friendsville Road pleaded guilty in last week's Garrett County District Court proceedings to a drug offense and driving while intoxicated (DWI).

Edward James Rockwell Jr., 40, was handed a four-month sentence, all but six days of which were suspended, in connection with the October incident. Judge Ralph M. Burnett also levied a $300 fine and placed Rockwell on one year of supervised probation with the order that he complete 40 hours of community service.

Rockwell's arrest came after a citizen reported observing an occupied vehicle sitting in the middle of Friendsville Road. The trooper had to rouse an intoxicated Rockwell to speak to him, and an ensuing vehicle search uncovered cocaine in a small packet and traces of cocaine residue on a pocket mirror. Rockwell was charged with possession of cocaine, DWI, and an additional charge of possession of drug paraphernalia, which was not prosecuted.

In other district court news, a Morgantown, W.Va., woman stopped for speeding along Interstate 68 in August received a four-day jail term after pleading guilty to a drug charge and a traffic offense.

Kimberly Ann Montgomery, 29, was handed a probation before judgment (PBJ) ruling on both charges, possession of marijuana and driving on a suspended license. The drug conviction netted her a 30-day suspended sentence with all but four days suspended, a $200 fine, and six months of unsupervised probation, while the traffic conviction resulted in an additional $100 fine.

The marijuana was found in Montgomery's vehicle during a search that followed the traffic stop. Additional charges of possession of drug paraphernalia, speeding, driving without a

Md. Mtn. Trust Charts Course For Year 2000

Maryland Mountain Trust, the Garrett County-based land trust organization, charted its course for the coming year during a meeting of its board of directors last week. One priority for the group is getting information out into the community about financial, tax, estate planning, and conservation benefits available through state and federal land trust programs.

"The major role of Md. Mountain Trust is to let people know what options they have and what programs exist that not only preserve land, but permit the transfer of property to children without severe tax penalties," said MMT director Marcia Simmers.

The board of directors of the non-profit group talked about some outreach projects that will take the group into communities to answer questions and give out information on such programs as Rural Legacy.

"There are so many areas in Garrett County that are rich in culture, history, and scenic beauty. Through Rural Legacy, the state provides an opportunity to protect the heritage of those areas while providing financial compensation for those participating in an approved plan. Maybe no one in the county will be interested in this, but some one may. It is our job to get that information to the community and let the people themselves decide," said board chair Peggy Santamaria.

Any group or individual who would like to get more information on Md. Mtn. Trust may contact the office at 301-746-8989 or write to Md. Mtn. Trust, P.O. Box 604, Grantsville, MD 21536.

To become a member of MMT, persons may send a check for $10 per year to the address above. Members will receive the MMT quarterly newsletter and invitations to special events and the annual meeting.

Winter Galaxy Will Feature Garrett Stars

The Garrett County Arts Council (GCAC) will present a free program of popular family entertainment on Saturday evening, Jan. 29, at Garrett Community College, beginning at 8 p.m. The public is invited.

"Winter Galaxy" is the third in a series of annual arts council presentations to showcase the talent of Garrett County's performing artists. Jerry McGee will act as master of ceremonies for a "full evening of fiddle, Celtic, gospel, a capella vocal harmony, and folk music, with a light touch of pop and a bit of rock-and-roll," according to an arts council spokesman.

Featured performing groups and individuals for the evening's line-up include Ellinor Benedict on fiddle, the Celtic group Sang Run, Allegheny folk duet, and the Jeff Gilbert Garage Band. Additional performers are being booked at press time. Sound will be provided by Bill Janoske, whose sound system has also been used at Friday night "jam sessions" in Loch Lynn. Lighting and technical support will be directed by GCC theatre professor and Our Town Theatre technical director Ben Sincell.

THE ALLEGHENY FOLK DUET, which includes Richard Kusy and Susan Weisbrod, will be one of many musical groups that will perform at the Winter Galaxy, slated for Saturday, Jan. 29, at Garrett Community College. The program, which will showcase local talent, is being sponsored by the Garrett County Arts Council. Admission will be free. See story.

"This free night out will be a true celebration of the performing arts in Garrett County," noted GCAC board member and event coordinator Susan Weisbrod. "We invite the community to join us to watch the stars come out on the GCC stage. We're planning a few pleasant surprises to showcase the extraordinary range of musical talent in our community."

In the event of inclement weather, an alternate snow date for the performance has been set for Feb. 5. Up-to-date performance information is available by calling the Garrett County Arts Council office at 301-387-3121, 24 hours a day. Any postponement because of weather conditions will also be announced on local radio.

The purpose of the Garrett County Arts Council is "to aid, encourage, advance, and coordinate activities dedicated to the promotion of cultural arts in Garrett County." Programs and projects of the council are made possible by grants from the Maryland State Arts Council, an agency of the state of Maryland with funding support from the National Endowment for the Arts, and by membership dues and contributions, foundation grants, council fundraising activities, and the support of the community.

GGBA Slates First Meeting Of New Year

The first meeting of 2000 of the Greater Grantsville Business Association (GGBA) will be held on Wednesday, Jan. 26, beginning at 8:30 a.m. at Penn Alps Restaurant, Grantsville.

During the meeting the members will be given the opportunity to respond to a survey about the organization. GGBA president Lindy Moebs said that items such as meeting date and time, services provided, speakers, and activities will be addressed in the questionaire. "The members who cannot attend the meeting will also have a chance to respond through telephone interviews. These may be the people for whom the time or date of the meeting is inconvenient," Moebs noted.

Anyone interested in learning more about the GGBA is welcome to call Moebs at 301-895-5510 or visit the organization's web site at www.gcnet.net/ggba.

Board Members Selected During GCNet Meeting

The annual meeting of GCNet took place in Grantsville Friday, with an agenda that included a presentation by Howard Bell, president of the GRIC/GCNet board of directors, and the announcement of the results of the board of directors election held recently via the Internet.

Bell's presentation focused on new software and technology acquired by GCNet over the past year, and how the additional equipment has expanded high-tech services in the area. "GCNet is more than just a connection. We strive to bring to our rural area all the things that the urban areas provide. Western Maryland deserves to be on the cutting edge of technology."

Bell unveiled plans for GCNet's new "Global Community Network" that will be made available to members in February. The network will allow GCNet members to access their account at the cost of a local phone call from over 2,200 locations throughout the United States and Canada. The network will provide members of other participating Internet service providers access to their local dial-up while visiting western Maryland through GCNet. Bell also announced that a new toll-free customer service line for customers outside the local dialing area will be added to GCNet's services.

GCNet's support staff have been taking courses and conducting research about Internet service and its applications to gain further experience and better serve the membership, Bell said. He also addressed GCNet's community service, including a plan to recondition the organization's computers for donation to area senior centers, and its recent computer donation to the Dove Center.

Following Bell's presentation, votes of the GRIC board and membership resulted in unanimous passage of two amendments to GCNet's bylaws. One changes the number of elected board members in an effort to keep up with the organization's growing membership, and the other changes the election process.

The annual election of GCNet's new board of directors resulted in the addition of Jim Davis and Ruth Selb as new board members. Bell, Jerry Geisler, Dusty Huxford, and Jim Hinebaugh were all re-elected. Bell also expressed his appreciation to outgoing board members Scott Rush, Debbie Bishop, Kirk Lantz, and Elizabeth Morin.

Blood Donor Month Noted By President

January has been declared National Volunteer Blood Donor Month (NVBDM) by President Bill Clinton, who marked the 30th anniversary of the observance with the theme 2000 Reasons to Give Blood. To help ensure an adequate blood supply, the Western Potomac Chapter of the American Red Cross has joined with the NVBDM Coalition to mark the salute to volunteer blood donors and encourage others to bear arms.

Persons interested in giving blood may do so at one of the upcoming blood drives slated for Garrett County: Friday, Feb. 4, 11 a.m. — 5 p.m., at St. Peter's Catholic Church hall, Oakland; Friday, March 3, noon — 6 p.m., at American Legion Post #71, Oakland; or Monday, March 6, 12:30 — 5:30 p.m., at the Grantsville fire hall. Other blood drives may be added in coming weeks if demand persists.

Another avenue for potential donors is available by calling the Western Potomac ARC Chapter. Blood donations are taken by appointment on Wednesdays from noon to 6 p.m. at the chapter office, 400 Cumberland Street, Cumberland. Appointments may be made by calling 301-722-1760 or 1-800-54BLOOD, and are encouraged to help Red Cross staff make the donation process as quick and efficient as possible.

The focus of NVBDM is on youth, both as donors and recipients of blood. The theme, "2000 Reasons to Give Blood," emphasizes that America's youth are "living evidence that the altruistic act of donating blood is giving the gift of life," chapter spokesperson Kim Gülck said.

"Among donors being honored [with this special month] are those in the Greater Alleghenies Region of the ARC, which includes Garrett County," Gülck noted, adding that every three seconds someone in America needs blood.

"Each day patients across the country receive approximately 32,000 units of this vital resource. This year alone, as many as four million patients will require blood transfusions, as accident victims, people undergoing surgery, and patients receiving treatment for leukemia, cancer, and other diseases all utilize blood.

"If all who are eligible to donate would do so on a regular basis (three to four times a year), blood needs could be met and shortages could become a thing of the past," Gülck concluded.

For over 50 years, the American Red Cross has been the primary supplier of lifesaving blood and blood products in the United States. The Red Cross collects blood voluntarily donated by approximately 4.5 million donors, annually providing over 6 million units of blood for patients nationwide. The Red Cross also enhances and saves the lives of thousands of patients each year by conducting advanced, highly sophisticated biomedical research that focuses on improving blood safety and developing potential lifesaving products.

"The top priority of the American Red Cross is to meet patient needs by providing a safe and adequate supply of blood," said Dr. Bernadine Healy, Red Cross president and CEO. "We are committed to this as part of our mission, and we are asking for the support and help of all eligible blood donors."

Just Do Something...

The Public Service Commission is a governor-appointed regulatory body that was established in Maryland many years ago for the purpose of regulating utility companies that supply vital necessities in the home, such as electricity and natural gas. Allegheny Power, for example, which is the sole supplier of electricity to most of Garrett County, may not arbitrarily and on its own increase its rates for electric power to its customers. A rate increase of any size may not be implemented by the company without the approval of the PSC, and the quest for that approval includes a rigorous application process. The same applies to Columbia Gas of Maryland. Many such requests are turned down by the PSC, or at least scaled back in their magnitude.

Our office received word just yesterday from our insurance agent that Blue Cross Blue Shield, which has the contract for our employee health insurance plan, is increasing our premium 36% — 36% — for the coming year, with no improvements to our plan. We have had no major illnesses or injuries among those who are covered by our plan. We have expended nowhere near the total amount of money paid in premiums over the past 12 months. This, obviously, is not even considered by the carriers.

There are only a few other companies that still provide group health insurance in Maryland, and the rates are all astronomical. Plus, it is illegal for a small company such as ours to provide a group major-medical policy and help cover the deductible for our employees.

It is absolutely infuriating that the members of the U.S. Congress, who all talk ad nauseam about "health care reform," continue to sit back and allow the insurance companies to get away with this form of highway robbery of the citizens of this nation. We also see no action in this area by our own state elected officials. For heaven's sake, get some guts and do something!

Health insurance, like electricity and natural gas (for many), is today almost essential for survival. Yet where is the governmental regulating board when it comes to insurance companies? Small businesses simply cannot continue to line the pockets of Blue Cross Blue Shield. The hike is 36% this year; what about next year? And the year after that?

Fairness, compassion, and doing what's right really don't have anything to do with deciding such things, regardless of what the politicians claim. It's big money, plain and simple. It's flat out immoral, and it's enough to make a person sick.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

I was recently driving on Accident-Bittinger Road on my way to pick up my son at school when I lost control of my car just east of the Cherry Glade Mennonite Church. Those of you familiar with the road know there is a very steep hill here, and the day I was driving, a heavy layer of loose abrasive was on the road due to the morning snow.

Before I knew what had happened, my car had spun around, left the pavement, and came to rest impaled on a large rock. At the time, I was shivering from the fright, cold weather, and the flu. I wasn't sure where to seek help and what to do next. Then I looked up to see a car stopped with the driver rolling down his window.

Mr. and Mrs. Steve Brenneman (who live on Rock Lodge Road) stayed with me and made sure that I got to a phone and made all the arrangements needed before leaving. When using the phone at the nearby church, I felt very welcome by the women there, who were working on two beautiful quilts.

Walking back to my car, I was then approached by George Kelley of the County Roads Department asking what he could do. I told him help was on the way already and thanked him, but he felt he could do more. Seeing my shivering, he insisted that I wait with him in his heated truck. Just 15 minutes later, a tow vehicle came from Hilltop in Grantsville and got my car drivable. George hung around during this time and acted as flagman to keep us safe.

Many people say that Garrett County is a great place to live because of the spectacular scenery, but in my mind, what makes this area stand out is the people!

To the Editor:

I would like to share a pitiful sight which I became a witness to on Saturday. I was on North Hill Road around 1 p.m. when I rounded a curve and saw what I'm sure was an abandoned puppy.

I don't know who did this, but you know who you are and I hope you read this letter. If the pup had become a problem to you, why couldn't things have been taken care of properly instead of this way? This young animal had become dependent on you for its life, but you dumped it in the middle of the winter with nowhere to go. I know there's a law against this kind of act.

I'm not saying I'm perfect by any means, because about 15 years or so ago I did the same thing to a cat. But since Jesus Christ became the center of my life, I realize now how wrong I was. I'm not saying I won't fail tomorrow, but I thank God that he's there to pick me up and I'm able to learn from these mistakes.

And closing I would like to share a devotion I read the other day. A man and his little boy were going for a ride in the country when they came upon a watermelon patch. The man decided to take a watermelon, so he asked his son to make sure no one was looking. The little boy looked to the left and then to the right and said everything was clear. But after a pause, the little boy said, "But daddy, shouldn't we look up, too?"

I think this could apply to all areas of our lives before a child is about to be abused, a piece of paper thrown out the window of our vehicles, an animal about to pitched out along side the road, any other crime about to be committed, or anything we know in our hearts that's wrong when we look to make sure no one is watching us. Pause for a second and ask yourself the question: Shouldn't we look up, too?

Proclamation Photos Curtailed

The news staff of The Republican newspaper has announced a change in procedure in regard to "proclamation" photographs. For many years, the staff has agreed to take photographs of persons or organizations who are proclaiming certain observations, causes, or celebrations. These photos have traditionally been of the Garrett County commissioners and representatives of the proclaiming organization. The newspaper staff will no longer provide this service.

However, organizations which engage in activities relevant to the proclaimed week (such as blood pressure checks for a health-related week, presentations for fire-prevention week, etc.) are encouraged to contact the paper to request coverage. Persons who wish to take their own photos of proclamations with the commissioners may bring these photos to the newspaper office for publication consideration. The news deadline is Tuesday at 5 p.m.

Special recognition by the commissioners, such as the honoring of Northern High School's football team this week, will continue to be covered by the news staff.

seatbelt, possession of a suspended license, and driving an unregistered and uninsured vehicle were not prosecuted by the state's attorney's office.

Randolph Lee Harvey, 29, Oakland, pleaded guilty to possession of marijuana and was handed a PBJ, a 30-day sentence with all but two days suspended, a $100 fine, six months of supervised probation, and an order to complete 40 hours of community service.

Harvey was among a group of subjects in a car which was stopped along Garrett Highway just north of Oakland which reportedly had fled the scene of an assault that had occurred shortly beforehand in the area of Dennett Road. The Garrett County sheriff's deputy who stopped the vehicle discovered marijuana in the car during a search. An additional charge faced by Harvey of possession of drug paraphernalia was not prosecuted.

James Elliott Seaman Jr., 20, Front Royal, Va., pleaded guilty to possession of marijuana and was handed a 30-day sentence with all but two days suspended, a $155 fine, six months of supervised probation, and an order to complete 40 hours of community service.

Seaman was arrested in October by state troopers who were checking on a report of a large party with possible drug usage involved taking place in Kitzmiller. Seamon was one of a group of subjects apprehended inside a Homestead Street residence, and he reportedly admitted to being the owner of a pipe containing burnt marijuana residue that was located in the room. An additional charge of possession of marijuana was not prosecuted.

Victor Frank Gardea Jr., 20, Oakland, pleaded guilty to a felony charge of malicious destruction of property and was handed a six-month suspended sentence, a $100 fine, and one year of supervised probation. He had been arrested in November by sheriff's deputies investigating a burglary of a Preston Lane residence that had occurred the previous month. Gardea was also ordered to pay $400 in restitution to the home owner to compensate for destroying a glass door. An additional charge of fourth degree burglary was not prosecuted.

Mark Anthony Griffin, 26, Accident, pleaded guilty to second degree assault and was handed a PBJ, a 30-day suspended sentence, a $100 fine, and one year of supervised probation. State troopers had arrested Griffin in October following a domestic altercation outside a Pud Miller Road residence. Griffin struck his mother-in-law, who had intervened in the argument between Griffin and her daughter on behalf of the couple's children.

In another hearing stemming from an unrelated arrest, Griffin was not prosecuted on a stalking charge. He had been arrested for that offense in December by sheriff's deputies after James Bolyard reported that Griffin had been harassing him.

Numerous charges faced by Jeremy Bryan Lavin, 21, Midland, and Christopher L. Jones, 18, Frostburg, that had resulted from a reported burglary of an unoccupied Savage River Road cabin were placed onto the stet docket. Allegany County sheriff's deputies had arrested the pair in August on an arrest warrant obtained at the request of the Garrett County state's attorney's office.

The stetted charges faced by both Lavin and Jones were fourth degree burglary, two counts of misdemeanor destruction of property, and possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia. The pair had allegedly broken into the cabin in early July, destroying a door in the process.

Lavin faced additional charges, also stetted, of first degree burglary, felony theft, and misdemeanor malicious destruction of property, each filed by state troopers via a criminal summons. Their investigation concluded that Lavin had allegedly damaged the front porch and an inside stair railing, attempted to burn a lamp, two wooden tables, and a fire extinguisher, and stole a CD player during the same incident at the Savage River cabin.

John Wayne Stammer Jr., 19, Lonaconing, faced three-drug related charges that were each placed on the stet docket. He had been arrested by the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force in October after a complaint concerning his stay at the Casselman Hotel in Grantsville. Officers reportedly found a bag in the trunk of Stammer's car that contained smoking pipes bearing burnt marijuana residue and a small set of weighing scales. A pill of the prescription medication Oxycodone was also found in the vehicle.

Brenda Jean Bittinger, 35, Swanton, faced charges of second degree assault and child abuse, which were stetted. Sheriff's deputies had arrested her in November after an altercation involving family members at her New Germany Road residence.

Paul Thomas Turner, 31, Lonaconing, was deemed not guilty of an accusation of second degree assault.

DeWayne Anthony Holliday, 20, Grantsville, was deemed not guilty of charges of second degree assault and felony malicious destruction of property.

DWIs/DUIs

Several driving while intoxicated (DWI) and driving while under the influence of alcohol and/or drugs (DUI) cases were heard in District Court recently.

Matthew Todd Newcomb, 23, McHenry, pleaded guilty to DWI and was handed a PBJ and fined $300. He also received a 30-day suspended sentence, was placed on one year of supervised probation, and was ordered to complete 40 hours of community service.

Michael Edward Jones, 21, Terra Alta, W.Va., pleaded guilty to DWI and was handed a $300 fine and a 30-day suspended sentence.

Christopher Shawn DeWitt, 21, Oakland, pleaded guilty to DUI and was fined $200, handed a 30-day suspended sentence, placed on six months of unsupervised probation, and ordered to complete 40 hours of community service.

THE POLITICS OF FAMILY

Election year is here, though with the advent of continuous campaigning it is hard to tell when one election year leaves off and another begins. Family is something politicians talk about, but I wonder how much the politics of family have actually to do with the best interests of families themselves.

Few issues sum up the contradictions of such politics than the free-for-all now under way around the destiny of a small boy, named Elian. Recognition by a single name, especially a first name, betokens super star status. There is but one Ringo, one Groucho, one Jackie, and now one Elian.

Elian — the media phenomenon — is, of course, the small Cuban boy whose mother perished trying to escape from Cuba to the U.S.A. His father, back in Cuba, says he knew nothing of his former wife's plans, and is now demanding that his son be returned to him. As a matter of family law it is a straight-forward matter: a surviving parent — unless incompetent for some reason — has an absolute right to claim custody of an offspring.

The Republicans, usually the defenders of family rights, have sided with Elian's extended family in Florida, who have claimed custody of Elian by virtue of their living in a free country. The Democrats, who typically argue for compelling state interest in all kinds of family matters, have decided in this case the boy ought to be returned to his father.

I am unsure of what the right answer is with regard to little Elian, or whether there is a right answer. The options seem, at this point, either Elian remains here as a poster child for Cuban-American anti-Communism or goes home to be a poster child for Cuban Communism.

The easy solution was for Elian's father to fly to Florida and to take his son home with him. Castro is evidently not confident enough about the attractions of his worker paradise to allow Elian's father to make the trip. The father might decide life in America is not so bad after all.

The story of Elian is one of tragic exploitation by all sides. It is an example of the rule rather than an exception to it. The politics of family has much more to do with politics than with family.

Another example is the slicing up of the family with regard to income taxation. The Republicans want to eliminate the so-called marriage penalty, which is primarily a penalty on two-income families, which most families are today. At the same time the Republicans want to cut the income tax credit for families under the poverty line, the famous "working poor." Such working poor families are often headed by single mothers. How can pro-family Republicans be against helping them?

The Democrats, on the other hand, oppose the elimination of the marriage penalty, and want to keep or to increase the income tax credit for poor families. At the same time, they want to lay the axe to the meaning of the word "family" by allowing homosexual cohabitation to be included in the definition.

If homosexual cohabitation becomes included in the definition of family, I cannot conceive on what grounds the United States could continue to outlaw polygamy. As a moral standard, fidelity in a polygamous relationship has much to recommend itself compared to infidelity in a putatively monogamous relationship.

Let me be clear, I do not favor polygamy. Indeed, I cannot imagine it as a practical possibility. There are people who do, however. If homosexual cohabitation can be deemed a family unit, I merely ask, what human configuration could not be deemed a family?

My point? Beware of politicians bearing gifts for the family. Politicians of one party point to the hypocrites in the other party. That they are right is proof of an old adage: "It takes one to know one."

While the wood shop was destroyed, firefighters were successful in saving the other structures, although the garage was also heavily damaged. Total loss was estimated at $40,000, but firefighters saved an estimated $130,000 of additional property.

The cause of the fire was ruled accidental and apparently caused by a furnace in the wood shop.

Other fire departments responding to the scene were Salisbury, Clarysville, Shaft, Meyersdale, Berlin, and Rockwood. Firemen remained on the scene for approximately 3.5 hours. There were no injuries reported.

Some units returned to the scene early Wednesday after a large pile of debris from the wood shed re-ignited.

Granny D's Mission: To Preserve What Is Best In Our Democracy

TAKING ON A HERCULEAN TASK at a time in life when most great-grandmothers are resting on their laurels, Granny D has earned herself a worldwide reputation. The small, dynamic woman is nearly finished her cross-county trek from the west coast to the legislators in Washington, D.C. When she reaches her destination she will deliver in person her message on the overwhelming need for campaign finance reform. At left, Doris Haddock — a.k.a. Granny D — stops to smile and catch her breath while walking along Route 40. Her vest is covered with pins and memorabilia from well-wishers along the way. In the photo above are Oberlin College freshmen Mary Roebuck, left, and Laura Mellor Weller, who are spending their winter term on the road with Granny. Below, the three walking women, Weller, Granny, and Roebuck, sit down in the evening to relax at the kitchen table of their Garrett County hostess, Marilyn Moors. Standing are Marilyn and Nick Palombo, Granny's "road manager."

by Peggy Santamaria

"I'm just an old woman trying to plant a seed." — Granny D.

It would be a monumental understatement to say that Doris Haddock doesn't just talk the talk, but walks the walk. The almost-90-year-old great-grandmother of 12 — known as Granny D — has been walking across the United States while talking about the need for the American people to regain control of the election process. This greatest of freedoms, she warns, is slipping through the fingers of the people and being usurped by "big money."

Granny D's courageous trek, which began in Pasadena, Calif., on January 1, 1999, brought her across the Maryland state line and into Garrett County last Friday morning. She made her way carefully along the icy shoulder of the National Road, covering her regular 10-mile-per-day stint, traveling from Addison, Pa., across Keysers Ridge, in temperatures that never reached double digits.

That evening, in the warmth of Marilyn Moors's farmhouse in Buffalo Run, Granny settled onto the soft tan leather sofa. With a steady gaze and without rancor or rhetoric, she told her story. She explained in gentle but firm tones why she was doing this.

It is for the future of her great-grandchildren that she is dedicating her strength of spirit to accomplish her mission: Returning the power of the election process to the people of the nation through campaign finance reform, Granny D explained.

"I am doing this because I feel very strongly that our elections are in trouble. Big corporations and businesses are taking over our elections," she stated.

Enormous campaign contributions by corporations with vested interests are eroding the underpinnings of our democracy, Granny noted. The process she described includes soft money, i.e., that which is contributed to the campaign of a candidate, and hard money, which goes directly to the candidate. "Big money buys candidates. The government will then give the big contributor what he wants in the form of subsidies. Some just help the rich get richer and richer," she said.

Granny emphasized that large sums of money changing hands this way has lead to corruption of the system. "Our democracy is going down the drain! We will no longer have a government of the people, by the people, and for the people," she said.

For several years before beginning her long walk, Granny D worked among the people in her home state of New Hampshire, taking part in letter-writing projects to raise awareness of the need for campaign finance reform. But she wanted to reach a broader audience; she wanted to talk to more people and learn about their concerns.

Granny told her son that she would love to go on the road; that she was captivated by the freedom, the open spaces, and the challenges it would offer. She wanted to take her message out to the people across the nation and to the legislators.

Upon hearing this idea, her son responded, "Oh, but you're too old." That was the wrong thing to say to a woman like Granny. "I am going to cross the country," she told him — end of discussion!

Doris's grandson set up a web page: www.GrannyD.Com to chronicle her adventures when she set off for Washington D.C. Through the magic of the Internet, a young man in Chicago found Granny and applauded her cause. He contacted her and said, "Count me in." And so Nick Palombo became Granny's point-man, traveling companion, manager, and all-round guardian angel.

Nick arranges overnight accommodations for Granny along the way by contacting churches and organizations. Staying with families gives Granny the opportunity to share concerns of people across the nation. "Only 49% percent of the people are voting. It's not that they don't care. From what they are telling me, it is that they don't think it will make difference." she said.

The people that Granny has spoken with see a lot of corruption in politics. "'They are crooks,' is what they tell me," Granny reported. "But they don't see themselves as crooks. They don't go into politics saying 'I'm going to be corrupt.' This is the system they were all elected into," Granny explained.

This despair among the American people troubles Doris greatly. "I say to man in the street that he must care. Let the senators and representatives know how you feel. Tell them we need campaign finance reform," was her soft-spoken command.

Accompanying Granny on this leg of the trip are two college freshmen, Laura Mellor Weller from Kentucky and Mary Roebuck of Ohio. They are spending their winter term traveling with Granny as their term project. "She is amazing," said Weller. "This morning when we were walking I was colder than I've ever been. I would have just quit and come back. But I looked up and saw Granny's little feet just moving along. If she can do it, well then, I'd better try!"

Last Saturday Granny stopped just outside of Grantsville. She took a sabbatical to fly up to New Hampshire for a state celebration. She was due back on the National Road this morning to pick up where she left off. She will push on into Cumberland in time to celebrate her 90th birthday.

In the immortal words of the Beach Boys: "It's the little old lady from Pasadena — Go Granny, go Granny, go Granny, go!"

United Seniors Change Date For Legislative Rally

The annual legislative rally to be hosted in Annapolis by the United Seniors of Maryland has been rescheduled for Tuesday, Feb. 1. The date on which the event was originally slated would have conflicted with the State of the State address.

The rally, focusing on the topic of "Aging in Place: Your Place or Mine," will be held in the Francis Scott Key Auditorium of St. John's College, Annapolis, from 8:15 a.m. to 2 p.m., as originally scheduled.

The fee of $10 includes breakfast, lunch, and a rally packet. Anyone who has already purchased a ticket and is unable to attend because of the change of date may receive a refund.

For further information on the rally, persons may call 1-800-60 SENIOR or 1-800-AGE-DIAL.

outside the community," Bertsch continued. "Someone looked at what we're doing and thought it was a good idea; hopefully this portends the beginning of an inflow of support from outside the community, support that can help us expand our offerings. I feel just great for Jane Avery, because this theatre has been her dream for a long time," he added.

"The Millennium Grants provide a way for local communities to take part in the statewide millennium observance in a way that is relevant to them," explained Maryland 2000's Hayman. "We are confident that these grants will strengthen tourism promotion in far western Maryland well into the new millennium."

Maryland 2000 is giving grants ranging from $37,000 to $40,000 to each of the state's 11 heritage areas and to Montgomery County, which is not affiliated with a heritage area. In total, Maryland 2000 will fund 55 programs though Millennium Grants.

Millennium Grant projects must be consistent with the mission of Maryland 2000, further the goals of heritage tourism, implemented during the year 2000, and involve as broad a spectrum of the community as possible. Projects must also leave a legacy. Maryland 2000 is also planning statewide events and activities in the arts, education, the environment, environmental stewardship, historic preservation and human services. For more information about Millennium Grants or Maryland 2000, interested persons may visit the Maryland 2000 web site at www.maryland2000.org or call toll-free 1-877-MD2-0001.

Spruce Forest Begins Plans For Summer Festival

Spruce Forest Artisan Village, Grantsville, has kicked off its search for artisans for the 23rd Annual Summer Festival and Quilt Show. The event, which welcomes approximately 4,000 visitors each year, will be held July 13-15, 2000, rain or shine, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

Artisans who wish to participate must submit official applications, along with samples or photos of their work and a $30 reservation fee, so that the jurying committee may determine entry into the show. The first jurying session will be held February 3, with additional sessions held the first Monday of each month.

"All Summer Festival artisans are encouraged to wear traditional or pioneer clothing to add to the ambiance of the festival," said village administrator Trish Morgan. Additionally, each artisan pays a 15% commission of gross sales to Spruce Forest at the end of the show. Booth spaces, which are limited in number, cover a 12'x12' area, and artisans must provide their own set-up, tables, chairs, etc.

To request an Artisan Application Packet, persons may call Morgan at 301-895-3332 or e-mail tmorgan@spruceforest.org.

Over 100 juried artisans, storytellers, and musicians are expected to be featured, along with a Silent Auction, continual entertainment, traditional foods and non-alcoholic beverages, the IDEA Art Show in the air-conditioned Village Church, Children's Corner, door prizes, old-time craftsmanship demonstrations, and other activities throughout the three days.

Wanda Blamble Named Hospice Clinical Director

Wanda L. Blamble has been named as the director of clinical services for Hospice of Garrett County Inc., according to Brenda J. Butscher, executive director. She assumes the position previously held by Molly Lilly, who recently retired.

A registered nurse, Mrs. Blamble holds a bachelor of science degree in nursing from the University of Maryland at Baltimore. She also holds an associate in arts degree in nursing from Allegany College, and previously completed the Practical Nursing Program at Allegany College in 1987. She is certified in both medical-surgical nursing and cardiopulmonary resuscitation instruction.

A native of Garrett County, Mrs. Blamble has extensive nursing experience, having been employed by Garrett County Memorial Hospital for 11 years. While there, she performed a variety of medical and surgical duties, including progressive care, geriatric care, outpatient surgery, pediatrics, orthopedics, subacute care, supervision, and acute patient care. More recently, she was employed by the Garrett County Health Department in areas of adult evaluation review services and personal care case management, and her career has also included working part time as a nurse assigned to terminally ill patients for Hospice of Garrett County and as a member of the staff of Dennett Road Manor Nursing Home.

In accepting the position, Mrs. Blamble said, "My career experiences in working with a variety of patients makes me realize the importance of symptom management and pain control for the terminally ill patient. It has made me realize how important the hospice concept and the interdisciplinary team approach are in providing care and meeting the patient's needs. I know the importance of helping the patient's family members meet the challenges and changes they face at those times as well. Hospice of Garrett County is dedicated to its patients and families, and I am pleased to be a part of it."

"We are very pleased to welcome Mrs. Blamble to our professional staff at Hospice of Garrett County," commented Butscher. "Her training and experience complement and strengthen our growing and expanding clinical program and the care we provide to our patients and their families. Her previous service with Hospice, as well as various other aspects of her career development and education, give her an excellent understanding of the hospice philosophy and the goals and objectives of palliative care. Her deep commitment to her profession and the patients she serves will help us build on our continuing tradition of quality and excellence in our services."

Mrs. Blamble and her husband Forrest live near Oakland. They have two daughters, Susan and Deborah. Those wishing to contact Mrs. Blamble may call the Hospice office at 301-334-5151 or in the Grantsville area toll free at 1-800-521-5252.

The meetings will be free of charge and confidential. The sessions will offer victims of abuse the opportunity for support and information on coping with their situations.

All those who are interested in attending the group meetings are asked to 301-334-9000 or 301-895-4300 by January 27. An individual initial intake will be scheduled prior to the date of the first session.

Take Action It Could Save Your Life

Marylanders' Biggest Concern Is Health Care

The Association of Maryland Hospitals and Health Systems puts health care at the top of Marylanders' list of concerns confronting the state today, according to a recent survey, conducted by the University of Baltimore's Schaefer Public Policy Center. The survey further revealed strong public support for additional state spending for health care. MHA president Cal Pierson provided the preliminary survey results during his annual "State of the State's Hospitals" message, delivered to lawmakers and hospital leaders in Annapolis last week.

The survey showed Marylanders identified health care as their most frequent concern, followed by education and crime. Furthermore, 90 percent of survey respondents said spending on health care is as important or more important than spending on education. Over 60 percent of survey respondents said the Maryland General Assembly does not spend enough money on health care.

Lack of insurance coverage, problems with managed care, and the increasing cost of health care were most frequently cited by respondents as their greatest concerns relating to health care. Health insurers (35 percent) and pharmaceutical companies (18 percent) were identified as the main drivers of the cost of health care, while only 5 percent named hospitals. Further, 92 percent said Maryland hospitals should provide access to patients regardless of their ability to pay. In fact, 66 percent of respondents said they would be willing to spend more on health care if higher spending would ensure access and maintain the quality of health care.

"It's clear that Marylanders have put a high priority on high-quality, accessible health care," Pierson said. "That's why, as we debate reinventing the rate-setting system, we have to balance cost controls against the need for quality and access to care for our patients. We have got to assure that changes to the payment system control hospital costs, yet don't compromise care."

GIRL, INTERRUPTED

Rated R - Running Time: 2:07 - Released 12/21/99

In 1975, Milos Forman gave us the memorable film One Flew Over The Cuckoo's Nest, telling the story of life in a mental hospital from the point of view of one of the patients. James Mangold's Girl, Interrupted, based on the autobiographical story of author Susanna Kaysen (screen adaptation by Mangold and Lisa Loomer and Anna Hamilton Phelan), strikes a similar tone; this time the main character is female. It allows Wynona Ryder a starring role as the young author, and also marks Ryder's first foray into producing. Her fine performance is complemented by an excellent turn from Angelina Jolie, playing a fellow inmate, and also by Whoopi Goldberg as the head nurse on the ward.

The story of Girl, Interrupted is not anything particularly astounding; since it is apparently a straightforward account of actual events, it lacks the flash of a Hollywood screenplay. But that's a good thing. Susanna, a young would-be writer, enters Claymoore Hospital in the late 1960s after attempting suicide and being diagnosed with borderline personality disorder. Although she denies being "crazy," she does admit to seeing and feeling things she doesn't understand, and her journal is full of cryptic passages that cause alarm among her family. Consequently, she is forced to take stupefying medication, live under constant supervision, and deal with the prison-like social situation among the patients. However, after some time, she establishes friendships with some of her fellows. Lisa (Jolie) is a brash troublemaker (not unlike Jack Nicholson's Randall P. McMurphy from Cuckoo), who has established herself as the dominant member of the group by psychologically abusing the other women if and when possible. She has escaped on more than one occasion — only to be arrested, sedated, and returned to the hospital.

Among the other patients Susanna gets to know are Georgina (Clea DuVall), who lives in a fantasy world where she pictures herself as Dorothy from The Wizard Of Oz; Daisy (King Of The Hill's Brittany Murphy), who stays in her room and never admits anyone else except her overly loving father and his famous roasted chicken; and Polly (Elizabeth Moss), nicknamed "Torch" because she once set herself afire, disfiguring her face almost beyond recognition. During her 1½-year stay at Claymoore, Susanna is influenced by all these people and goes through many conflicting feelings about her need for psychotherapy and her lack of faith in the hospital's professional staff. Finally, she has an experience which sets her on the road to recovery.

Girl, Interrputed is not without weak points. Among its flaws are some hard-to-swallow plot elements, like the fact that the patients occasionally seem to have the run of the place, breaking into the facility's main office, perusing their own psych records, and even bowling without being discovered. Escape and elusion of the guards seem remarkably commonplace, as does trading medications with little or no consequence. And the final reel, involving a character's 180-degree attitude change, seems oversimplified. Mangold's dialogue is mostly convincing, however, and the acting by Ryder, Jolie, and Goldberg is excellent enough to forgive the problems inherent in the script. ★★★★½

THE TALENTED MR. RIPLEY

Rated R - Running Time: 2:19 - Released 12/25/99

Matt Damon has certainly skyrocketed to the top with a minumum of fuss. After his Oscar-winning work in Good Will Hunting, such projects as Saving Private Ryan and Dogma showed he was no fluke, and at the tender age of 30 he already has several projects under way for 2000. Similar words could be said of 27-year-old Gwyneth Paltrow: after delightful turns in Emma and Sliding Doors, Paltrow has gone up against screen greats Jessica Lange (Hush) and Michael Douglas (A Perfect Murder), and even secured her own statuette for her fantastic performance in last year's Shakespeare In Love. It's only natural that these two would be paired together sooner or later to warm up the nation's box office cash registers. And so they are in Paramount/Miramax's The Talented Mr. Ripley. Writer/director Anthony Minghella (The English Patient) has crafted a dark thriller based on the novel by the late Patricia Highsmith about spoiled, wealthy socialites, identity-stealing, and homosexuality. Cha-ching.

The Talented Mr. Ripley is creepy and suspenseful, and well-acted, but too long. A little judicious cutting on the part of Minghella would have done wonders for the final product. As it is, the film meanders through a circuitous route to arrive at a finish that defies logic.

Tom Ripley (Damon) is a restroom attendant at a fancy New York hotel who is mistaken for a Princeton graduate by wealthy shipyard owner Herbert Greenleaf (James Rebhorn). Thinking Tom must know his son Dickie (Jude Law), who also went to Princeton, he pays him $1,000 to travel to Italy and persuade the young playboy to return to the U.S. Upon arriving, Tom pretends to be Dickie's former classmate, and soon becomes friends with the young man and his fiancée, Marge Sherwood (Paltrow). However, Tom's propensity for forging signatures and impersonating people soon leads to a confusing situation in which Dickie turns up missing and Tom begins controlling his affairs. Then a friend of Dickie's is murdered, and Marge begins to suspect the worst: that Tom killed both men and is now masquerading as Dickie, living off his considerable wealth.

Damon, Paltrow, and Law are all excellent; the three-way relationship they establish is both easy and tense, at different times for different reasons. Paltrow, especially, puts forth a performance powerful enough to generate another possible nomination for her this year. Law, seen before in Gattaca and Midnight In The Garden Of Good And Evil, clearly shows he's comfortable with much larger share of screen time than previously accorded him. Damon's work, always reliable, is as solid as ever. Also on hand is Cate Blanchett, another excellent young actress with an Oscar nomination already under her belt for last year's Elizabeth. Blanchett plays Meredith Logue, an acquaintance whose appearance threatens to unravel Tom's intricate web of deception. Another good supporting performance is put in by Philip Seymour Hoffman (Scent Of A Woman, Twister), re-creating his stock role as the conceited jerk.

Minghella's direction of this film is well thought out, with many subtle symbols involving mirrors and multiple images embedded in the rich background of beautiful Italian scenery. John Seale's cinematography must also be credited for this, making the most of the beautiful setting and allowing Minghella to contrast it with the film's dark tone. Although the last scene leaves us with some credibility problems, The Talented Mr. Ripley is mostly an enjoyably taut thriller. ★★★★

SUPERNOVA

Rated PG-13 - Running Time: 1:30 - Released 1/14/00

Although it's surely been in the can for months, it would have been fiscally irresponsible for MGM/UA to release the eminently average Supernova during the fall, when the "serious" Oscar films were hitting the screens. Instead, it joins the undistinguished ranks of the January filler movies, intended merely to create a diversion and pick up some quick cash during the pre-Oscar lull. Supernova is a second-rate sci-fi thriller along the lines of Wing Commander and Starship Troopers. Its direction by Walter Hill shows an affinity for eye-pleasing technofoolery and a serious lack of insight into human behavior; its screenplay by David C. Wilson, based on the story by William Malone and Daniel Chuba, is amateurishly patterned after more respectable films like 2001.

Supernova starts out with a tedious look at the crew of the emergency medical rescue ship Nightengale (a sort of ambulance in space). There's Commander A.J. Marley (Robert Forster); chief medical officer Dr. Kaela Evers (Angela Bassett); medics Yerzy Penalosa (Lou Diamond Phillips) and Danika Lund (Robin Tunney), who are lovers despite the fact that neither of them seem able to produce any kind of human emotion; and computer technician Benj Sotomejor (Wilson Cruz), apparently in love with the ship's computer, "Sweetie." Also along for the ride is Captain Nick Vanzant (James Spader), who, because he is a recovering drug addict, enjoys the animosity of the entire crew, especially Dr. Evers. So much for the Hippocratic oath.

When a distress call is received from a mining station in the far reaches of space, our crew snaps into action. The first special effects treat we experience is the inevitable "jump through space," which not only transports them across the universe, but bends their faces in many amusing ways. Things go wrong, however, and soon the Nightengale is stranded in stellar backwaters with a crewman dead and no fuel. Even more distressing is the lone stranger found at the station, Troy Larson (Peter Facinelli), and the curious object he brings aboard. It's a big, glowing, purple phallus.

This film makes the tragically common mistake, like those mentioned above, of attempting to blend the subject matter of science fiction with the plot structure and characters of action films. In good space films like Alien (not its sequels), Contact, and the 2001-2010 franchise, the crew members are portrayed as they should be, like scientists. People with intelligence, technical knowledge, and college degrees not obtained through mail order. But Supernova is presented from the standpoint of "let's pretend a bunch of well-built teenagers go into space." With the exception of Bassett, who lends a modicum of maturity to her role, these characters are simply not believable in this setting.

The one potentially interesting thing about the film, the mysterious object, is inexcusably squandered by Wilson's script. It's function is supposed to be equivalent to the monolith in 2001 (no one knows what it is, what it does, or where it came from, but everyone agrees that it's one heck of a thing). But instead of engaging us in the obvious political and metaphysical impact of finding such an object in deep space, as 2001 did, this story simply uses it as something to fight over, allowing the muscle-headed crew to engage in fisticuffs and machismo banter. On ships like the Nightengale, and in films like Supernova, the Prime Directive is "When in doubt, blow something up." ★★

MUSIC OF THE HEART

Rated PG - Running Time: 2:04 - Released 10/29/99

It is truly a shame when great stories fall into the evil clutches of Hollywood writers. For some reason, James Cameron didn't think the real story of the Titanic was exciting enough to be told without a drippy, overemotional love story, and the same can be said here. Music Of The Heart, directed by Wes Craven and starring Meryl Streep, is based on the true story of Roberta Guaspari, a violin teacher who raised the standards of her Harlem school and impressed the nation. But novice writer Pamela Gray has pumped this already-amazing story full of melodramatic embellishment and, in so doing, all but ruined its impact.

Meryl Streep is wonderful, of course; she's the reason the film isn't a total waste of time. Streep's subtle timing and natural delivery lend incredible spontanaeity to her work, an effect all actors strive for but few achieve. Craven, taking time off from directing horror movies, does an adequate job with Streep and a cast of children, many of whom are actual members of Guaspari's famous Harlem violin class. But since almost every scene in the first two-thirds of the film requires that some cast member cry, there's only so much Craven can do. It's hard to make an impact while wading through syrup.

Roberta (Streep) is a recently divorced Navy wife who needs a job. At the suggestion of a friend (Aidan Quinn), she applies for a substitute teaching position at an East Harlem elementary school. Though the principal (Angela Bassett) at first turns her down for lack of experience, she auditions for the job by bringing in her two sons, Nick and Lexi (Michael Angarano and Henry Dinhofer) and having them play. Based on the accomplishment of having taught her own two kids to play so well, Roberta his hired. Before long she has established a children's violin program that is so rigorous and successful, the class appears at Carnegie Hall alongside violin greats like Isaac Stern, Itzhak Perlman, and many others (who, by the way, all appear in the film as themselves).

Like I said, a great story. Besides Streep's excellent work, there are other standout performances like those of Charlie Hofheimer and Kieran Culkin, who play Nick and Lexi as teenagers, and Bassett as the ever-supportive principal Williams. Also turning in a good performance is singer Gloria Estefan as the mother of one of the students. And for the most part, the kids are adequate, especially since many of them are not actors but budding musicians. But Gray's script is almost impossible to stomach for the first hour and a half, until the triumphant final sequence, which is the first time Roberta is not portrayed as a pathetic heroine struggling through tears against all odds. Besides the obvious obstacles that surely confronted the real teacher (dangerous neighborhoods, the cynicism and lack of support from parents, etc.), Roberta must deal with boyfriends who can't commit, children who ask tearfully about why their father left, substandard home-improvement contractors ripping her off, and a caricature-style school music director who seems to want nothing more than to see her fail. I'm not saying these things couldn't or didn't happen in real life, but putting them in the script, and portraying them with such transparently manipulative dialogue, is counterproductive to the film's important message. True stories have to be dealt with differently than straight fiction: they have to appear like real life. Too bad Gray hasn't learned that yet. ★★★

Rams Edged By Lions, But Rebound With Win Over BW

After a close loss to host Tucker County on Saturday, the 200th career win for Tom Bosley as coach of the Southern High School boys' varsity was recorded in come-from-behind fashion Tuesday night at home against Bishop Walsh. The Rams were edged by the TC Mountain Lions in Parsons, 58-55, when they allowed the home team to rally from a 17-point, second-half deficit.

The Rams were on top by a 9-6 margin in a defensive first quarter, and surged to a 35-22 lead by halftime, but allowed the Lions to rally in the third stanza and cut Southern's lead to just two points, 42-40, by the end of that period. Tucker's Dave Lambert scored eight points in the fourth quarter, including six consecutive free throws.

Lambert scored 16 to lead the Lions, while Adam Lambert and Justin Hamrick also reached double figures with 14 and 13 points.

Leading the Rams' offense was Nathaniel Panther, who scored a game-high and personal season-high of 20 points. Justin Liller finished with 12 points.

The Southern junior varsity was victorious in the preliminary game.

In Tuesday's game against Bishop Walsh, the Rams trailed the Spartans by nine points at halftime, but knotted the score by the end of the third quarter and went on to finish with a 56-43 victory. It was the eighth win in 12 games for the Rams, while the Spartans dropped to 9-6.

Southern trailed by two, 15-13, at the end of the first quarter, and was down 31-22 at intermission; however, with their top scorer on the bench because of foul trouble, the Spartans could not maintain their advantage.

Nebosja Bogdanovic, an exchange student who has paced BW all season with outstanding long-range shooting, did not play all of the second half because he had four fouls. His absence, coupled with excellent free throw shooting by the Rams in the fourth quarter, sealed the victory for Coach Bosley and the Southern fans.

Panther again led the Rams in scoring with a game-high 18 points, with seven of his total coming on seven attempts from the foul line in the fourth quarter. Mike Browning also reached double figures with 10 points, as did Justin Liller with 10 points plus six assists. All of Browning's points were scored in the second half.

Bogdanovic still led the Spartans' offensive effort, as he finished with 14 points. Craig Zollner netted 10.

Each team finished with 18 field goals, but the Rams connected on 19 of 23 free throws (83%), 11 of 13 in the fourth period, while BW had only four free tosses and connected on two.

The Southern junior varsity rolled to a 62-34 win in the preliminary game behind a 12-point effort by D.R. Parsons. Leading the Spartan jayvees was Jayme Bradley with a game-high 14 points.

The Rams will play two more homes games this coming week. They will host Allegany this Friday and entertain Keyser next Tuesday. The junior varsity games get under way at 6 p.m. and the varsity contests tip off at 7:30.

Lakers Get By Charles Before Being Nipped By Cecil, 71-70

The Garrett Community College men's basketball team had a .500 week in Maryland JUCO competition, as the Lakers defeated visiting Charles Community College, 60-53 on Saturday, but then dropped a 71-70 heartbreaker to host Cecil CC last night. The split left the Lakers and Coach Dennis Gibson with a 14-3 overall record and a 7-2 mark in the JUCO standings.

Charles Somerville recorded a double-double for the Lakers against Charles CC on Saturday, as he recorded 18 points and grabbed a game-high 10 rebounds. Teammate Dexter Levi was right behind with 17 points, nine rebounds, and two blocks.

The Lakers held a 25-20 lead at the end of a sluggish first half, and maintained an arm's length lead the rest of the way; however, it was the second lowest number of points scored by the Lakers this season. They had a 56-51 win over Prince George's earlier for their lowest production.

Warren Coates and Scott Kochenderfer each provided six assists for the Lakers, who committed 21 turnovers.

Marcel Countiss led Charles (9-6, 4-5 JUCO) in scoring with a game-high 22 points. Marcus Smith, the Hawks' biggest offensive threat, was held by Somerville and Levi to just nine points. He came into the game averaging 22.4 per outing, sixth best in the conference.

"We won despite our poor execution," Coach Gibson said. "We made a lot of mental mistakes, we shot poorly, and we didn't rebound particularly well. I have to credit their defense for some of that, though."

Last night's battle with Cecil CC was close from the opening tip-off, with the Lakers holding a slim 33-31 halftime edge, falling behind by a few points in the second half, and sending the home team players to the foul line in the final moments, where they made good on their opportunities to take the victory.

Carlos Jones led the Lakers' scoring effort with a game-high 24 points, while Charles Somerville recorded a double-double with 14 points, 15 rebounds, and four blocks. Also reaching double figures were Dexter Levi with 11 points and Scott Kochenderfer with 10 assists.

Leading Cecil offensively was Jerome Coleman, who netted 21 points. Erick Schmider and Sonny Pu-

Huskies Corral Elks Before Falling Hard to Sentinels

The Northern High boys' varsity recorded a comfortable 66-48 win over host Salisbury last Thursday evening, but the Huskies were no match for the Fort Hill Sentinels Tuesday night in Cumberland, as they went down to a convincing 80-51 defeat in the Western Maryland Interscholastic League contest. The loss dropped the Huskies to 8-4 overall and 3-3 in the WMIL, while the Sentinels improved to 9-2 overall and 3-0 in the league.

Led by Tim Umbel, Rob Speicher, and Rob Dozier, the Huskies jumped out to a 20-7 lead over the Salisbury Elks by the end of the first quarter last Thursday. They were on top 35-15 at halftime, and took a commanding 54-28 advantage into the fourth period.

Umbel netted 14 points to pace Northern's scoring, Speicher hit three three-pointers to finish with 13 points, and Dozier added 11 points.

Leading the Elks with a game-high 15 points was Otto with 15.

The Huskies fell behind in the first minute of Tuesday's game at Fort Hill and never got back on track, as the home team gradually pulled farther and farther away. The Huskies trailed 25-10 at the end of the first quarter, were down 42-20 at halftime, and were behind by 27 points after three periods, 63-36.

Jeremy Snyder and Joel Fradiska shared scoring honors for the Sentinels, with Snyder connecting for a game-high 28 points and 10 rebounds, and Fradiska finishing with 26 points, nine rebounds, five steals, and five assists. Each of them made good on four long-range field goals. Eric Dudley had eight assists and five steals.

Dozier led the Huskies' attack with 16 points and 14 rebounds, while Josh Resh added 9 points.

The Northern junior varsity did not fair any better in the preliminary game, as the 8-1 Sentinel jayvees coasted to a 61-20 win. Zach Alkire led the winners in scoring with 11 points, and teammates Ryan Shope and Nick Mazzone each recorded 10.

The Huskies will attempt to get back on the winning track this evening when they host Turkeyfoot. They will also play at home Friday night against Hancock. Tip-off for the junior varsity games is 6 p.m., with the varsity contests getting under way at 7:30.

SHS Frosh Edge Tucker County

The freshman boys' basketball team upped its record to 5-3 Monday evening by edging host Tucker County, 49-47. A jumper by Matt Stephens with just under seven seconds remaining in the game gave the Rams a one-point lead, 48-47, and a final free throw by teammate A.J. Bender with 1.5 seconds left concluded the scoring.

Dennis Tressler led a balanced offensive effort for the Rams, as he finished with 15 points. Stephens recorded 12 points and Nathan Fitzwater added 10. Jake Bava and Justin Thompson scored 12 and 8 points, respectively, to lead the Mountain Lions.

"Our patience and defense came up big for us in the fourth quarter," stated SHS freshman coach Jon Hegeman. "We held Tucker to five fourth-quarter points. Dennis Tressler, Nathan Fitzwater, Matt Stephens, and Jay Tressler all played well for us, but the key was our patience to get the shots we wanted in the fourth quarter."

The freshmen Rams played at Fort Hill last night and will host Westmar in a 2 p.m. game this Saturday.

Southern Girls Win Two, Drop Close One To Alco

The Southern High School girls' varsity took to the home court three times this past week and came away with two wins and a loss, topping visiting Keyser last Thursday, 45-31, crushing Beall in a Western Maryland Interscholastic League game on Monday, 63-33, and finally falling to Allegany last night in a WMIL nail-biter, 58-54. Coach Don Stemple and his squad are now 9-4 overall and 4-2 in the WMIL.

The Rams used a big third-quarter defensive effort to pull off a mild upset of Keyser last Thursday, as they limited the Golden Tornados to just three points in that stanza. Southern trailed 11-8 at the end of the first quarter and was down by one, 17-16, at intermission. But then the Rams went on a 13-3 run in the third period to take a 29-20 advantage into the final eight minutes.

Leading Southern's scoring were Charlena Reeves and Ashley Liller, who each finished with 12 points. Reeves also grabbed seven rebounds and Liller provided six assists and six steals.

Carrie Barrick scored 11 points to lead the Golden Tornado.

"Our defense obviously played very well, particularly in the third quarter," stated Coach Stemple, "and offensively we got on track in the second half."

The Southern junior varsity girls won the preliminary game, but details of that contest were not reported.

The Rams had no trouble disposing of Beall on Monday, as they surged to a 22-4 lead by the end of the first quarter, led by a commanding 41-10 margin at halftime, and took an overwhelming 54-16 advantage into the fourth period.

Every member of the Ram roster played and scored in the game, with Liller leading the way with 15 points and four assists. Gina Reeves finished with eight points and Becca Gangler had four steals.

Leading the Mountaineers (3-7, 1-6) was Jessica Conway with 13 points and eight rebounds.

The Southern jayvees also dominated in the preliminary game, as Kim Teter scored 10 points to lead the Rams to an easy 36-9 win.

Teandra Smith posed the greatest problem for the fourth-ranked Rams last night when they met second-ranked Allegany, as she finished with 20 points and 16 rebounds to give the Campers their 10th win in 12 games and up their WMIL mark to 6-0.

The Rams trailed 14-8 at the end of the first quarter, won the second quarter and held a 26-24 advantage at intermission, and were tied with the Campers after three periods, 41-41. Alco took a four-point lead with three minutes left in the game and was able to maintain that margin for the victory.

Also providing a strong performance for the Campers was Cassie Murray, who recorded 15 points, eight steals, and six assists. Tracey Little put all 14 of her points on the board in the second half.

Ashley Liller likewise had one of her best individual efforts of the season, as she finished with 18 points, 10 assists, and three steals. Becca Gangler netted 11 points and pulled down a team-high seven rebounds, and Charlena Reeves contributed eight points.

"It was a great game," stated Stemple. "We couldn't control Smith and Murray well enough, but Ashley (Liller) had a super game for us."

The Southern junior varsity was defeated in the preliminary game, but details were not reported.

The Rams will not play again until next Wednesday when they host county rival Northern.

HER OWN PATH TO THE BASKET BLOCKED, Southern High School's Charlena Reeves (#45, with ball) looks to pass the ball back out to one of her teammates, Jennifer Bosley (#13) or Becca Gangler (#25), during last night's 58-54 girls' varsity loss to Allegany. The match-up between the number two ranked Campers and number four Rams turned out to be the tight battle everyone expected, as SHS held a two-point halftime advantage and the two squads were knotted at 41 at the opening of the final stanza. The trio shown here were Southern's leading scorers behind sophomore guard Ashley Liller, who tallied 18 points. Bosley hit for 15 points, Gangler scored 11 points, and Reeves contributed eight points. The Rams are preparing for their next outing, when they host cross-county rival Northern Wednesday at 7:30 p.m.

Northern Girls Edge Sentinels, Before Rolling Over Flintstone

It was a good week on the basketball court for the Northern High School girls' varsity and their coach, Julie Hoffman, as the Huskies recorded a 50-46 Western Maryland Interscholastic League victory over host Fort Hill on Monday and then rolled over Flintstone last night, 45-29, on the Aggies' floor. The pair of wins improved the Huskies' overall record to 8-6, while they stand at 4-3 in the WMIL.

It was a strong effort from the foul line by Heather Nugent that pushed the Huskies over Fort Hill on Monday, as she connected on five of six free throw opportunities in the fourth quarter. The Huskies held a slim lead of 8-7 at the end of the first quarter, trailed by four at halftime, 20-16, and went into the final stanza with the score knotted at 31-31.

Each team finished with 16 field goals, but the Huskies made good on 18 of 30 free throws, while the Sentinels hit nine of 12.

Heidi Frazee led the Huskies in scoring with 15 points, with Nugent finishing with 10 points, four steals, and three assists. Amanda Frantz scored nine points and Bridget Frazee led the team in rebounding with seven.

Becky Vance hit a game-high 18 points for Fort Hill (3-8, 3-4 WMIL), and also recorded four rebounds, three blocks, and two steals. Stephanie Skidmore had nine points, and Jessica George finished with nine rebounds and eight points.

The Northern junior varsity girls were victorious in the preliminary game, but a score for that contest was not reported.

The Huskies controlled last night's game at Flintstone from the first few minutes of the game. They held a 13-7 advantage at the end of the first quarter, led 27-13 at halftime, and were up by a comfortable 37-19 margin after three periods.

Amanda Frantz and Heidi Frazee led Northern's offense with 15 and 14 points, respectively. A game-high 16 points were recorded by Flintstone's Lacey McCusker.

The Northern jayvees also coasted to victory in the preliminary game, 40-16. Jolene Brenneman and Kelly Stein paced the Huskies in scoring with 13 and 11 points, respectively. Stacey Kifer netted six points for the Aggie junior varsity.

The Huskies will host Mt. Savage on Monday and play at Southern next Wednesday.

GCC Defeats Montgomery-Rockville, But Falls To Arch-Rival AC Trojans

The Garrett Community College women's basketball team split in its outings of this week, defeating Montgomery-Rockville Community College 64-56 on Friday before a 48-37 loss to Allegany College of Maryland last night. A contest slated for Saturday at Chesapeake was canceled because of player illness at Chesapeake. The action leaves GCC with a 5-9 overall record and a 3-5 JUCO mark heading into a Saturday match-up with Cecil in McHenry at 5 p.m., and Tuesday and Thursday road trips to Prince George's CC and Potomac State College, respectively.

Donielle Gaines led the Lakers to victory over Montgomery-Rockville Friday, scoring 18 points and ripping the nets from long distance with four three-point goals. Tasha Blackmon's double-double of 14 points and 14 rebounds, along with a double-double of 12 points and 12 rebounds provided by Erica Henderson, helped GCC to the victory. Shawntice McLaughlin dished out a game-high 10 assists along with her six points and four steals.

GCC moved into the lead for the first time with 8:30 left in the first half when it went up 16-15. The two teams battled from then on, tying the score many times, but the Lakers never fell behind. At the half Garrett was up by a 32-27 margin.

"I was disappointed in our rebounding," GCC head coach Ann Wellham said afterwards. "We outsized them by several inches, yet they outrebounded us 54-51."

The victory helped Garrett ride a two-game winning streak into Trojan Square Garden in Cumberland last night to take on the slumping Allegany squad, which had lost six in a row. The Trojans came to play, however, and mounted a balanced scoring attack to down the Lakers by 11 at the buzzer after going up 20-11 at the half.

Allegany's Danny Keays scored 13 points and took down eight rebounds, while teammate Heather Akers scored 12 points and dished

Mountain Top Game Features Triple Overtime

In Sunday's opening game in the Mountain Top Basketball League, Condoerr needed triple overtime to edge the Welding Rod, 94-91. Smiley's coasted to an 84-45 victory over 84 Lumber in the second contest, and Midas Muffler held off Beckman's Variety, 69-66, in the third match-up.

The Welding Rod led throughout most of regulation time against Condoerr, but a three-pointer by Poke Winters in the final seconds sent the game into the first overtime period. Neither team could pull away in that stanza, however, and the score was still deadlocked, 86-86. Condoerr seemed to have the game in hand in the second overtime, but Tracy Rinard's first three-point bucket of the year tied the score once again at the buzzer. Condoerr was leading by one with eight seconds remaining in the third period after a pair of free throws by Dennis Gibson. But Welding Rod's Doug Copeland was fouled on the ensuing inbounds play. Copeland missed the front end of a one-and-one, and Tom Stem of Condoerr was immediately fouled. However, Stem buried both free throws to complete the scoring and secure the win for Condoerr.

Jason Shreve of the Welding Rod hit a game-high 25 points, including six three-pointers, while Copeland and Shank netted 19 and 18 points, respectively. Leading Condoerr were Gibson with 22, Mike Saturday with 21, and Winters and Stem with 20 apiece.

Mike Harvey was the big gun for Smiley's Pizzeria, as he pumped in 29 points in the easy win over 84 Lumber. Kevin Artice scored 17 to pace 84 Lumber.

Midas won the third game over Beckman's Variety, despite a 26-point performance by Jared Beckman and 22 points by Nathan Long. However, the game's top scorer was Jason Brenneman of Midas, who recorded 34 points and leads the league in scoring.

Games for this Sunday, Jan. 23, pit Condoerr against Smiley's in the first contest, 219 Motors vs. Welding Rod in game two, and 84 Lumber against Beckman's in the third match-up. Respective scorekeepers are: 219 Motors, Smiley's, and Welding Rod.

Husky Grapplers Mash Rams On Strength Of Eight Pins

On the strength of eight pinfalls, the Northern High School wrestling team coasted to another win last Thursday night, with their victims this time being county rival Southern. The Huskies whipped all but one Ram in a 65-4 romp to up their regular-season record to 8-1.

Earning pins for Coach Scott Stough's squad were: Pete Stein in the 103-pound class; Blake Huber, 112; Buzzy Duckworth, 119; Paul Beitzel, 130; Brandon Stein, 135; Keith Artice, 145; David Wampler, 171; and Ryan Savage, 275. Matt McNees (125) and Adam Brenneman (152) each won by technical fall, while Brandon Kamp (140) and Mark Wolf each won via decisions. Wolf had lost to Southern's Jeremy Hayhurst in the Garrett County Invitational held five days earlier.

The only Southern wrestler who was victorious was John Hayhurst, who recorded an 11-0 decision to win the 189-pound division.

The Rams, who finished 12th in the Winners Choice Tournament in Fairmont, W.Va., over the weekend (see separate story), will face the Huskies again this evening in Oakland.

After tonight's clash, the Huskies will travel to Beth Center on Friday, travel to Westmar next Wednesday, and host Meyersdale next Thursday. The Rams will be on the road next Tuesday for a tri-meet with North Hagerstown and Martinsburg, and will host Keyser next Thursday night.

Rams 12th In Winners Choice; Hayhurst Wins

The wrestling team of Southern High School finished in 12th place in the Winners Choice Tournament held Friday and Saturday at the Fairmont, W.Va., armory. The Rams were paced by reigning Maryland state runner-up John Hayhurst, who won the 189-pound division individual title.

Hayhurst earned a 3-0 decision over Matt Sternthall of East Fairmont in the title bout. His cousin, Jeremy Hayhurst, finished as the runner-up in the 160-pound division, falling by a 10-2 decision to Casey Daggett of Parkersburg South in the championship round.

The next best individual finish for a Southern Ram was seventh place by Shawn Shiflett in the 130-pound class.

Southern finished with a total of 94.5 team points. Parkersburg South won the team title with 252.5, followed by Fairmont Senior with 196.5 and Hedgesville with 195. Keyser placed 20th with 55.5.

The Rams will be back on their home mats this evening when they host cross-county rivals, the Northern Huskies, who defeated them last Thursday night (see separate story). They will travel to North Hagerstown next Tuesday for a tri-meet with North Hagerstown and Martinsburg, and wrestle again at home next Thursday evening.

SMC Wrestlers Win Trophies At Many Locations

Members of the Southern Mat Club youth wrestling team traveled in several different directions last weekend to compete in a variety of tournaments. On Saturday, seven team members competed at Clarksburg, W.Va., one wrestled in Conemaugh Township in Pennsylvania, and two traveled all the way to Tulsa, Okla., to compete in the Tulsa Nationals, which has been dubbed as the toughest tournament in the world. On Sunday, 14 wrestlers competed in Keyser, W.Va., and three attended a tournament in Fairmont, W.Va.

SMC wrestlers Lex Ozias and Scott Wildesen made the cross-country trip to Tulsa to compete in the Tulsa Nationals. Over 30 of the nation's top wrestlers were in each of their respective divisions. Ozias won six of seven bouts to capture second place. He defeated wrestlers from Colorado, Nevada, Kansas, and Oklahoma, and his only loss was to the defending Eastern National champion from New Jersey by a score of 3-1. Among his victories were wins against at least two place winners at last year's Tulsa Nationals.

Wildesen lost two close matches and was eliminated. "These kids don't have any weaknesses," said Wildesen. "One little mistake and they beat you with it. I wrestled well, but I would have had to wrestle perfect matches. It was a great experience just to watch the best and a great honor to be able to compete with them. I will never forget it," he added.

By Robert Yonke

Happy New Year. On New Year's eve, Tim Scuillo convinced me to join him for a bit of fishing on a piece of open water on Deep Creek Lake. Tim had received a lure called "the Bionic Minnow" as a Christmas present and he was itching to try it out. Although the sun was shining and away from the water, the weather was relatively balmy. I must admit that I was more prepared to watch bowl games than fish on what I thought was a waste-of-time day.

Anyhow, Tim prevailed. (He's a big guy you know.) And off we went to some open water near the 219 bridge. Tim enthusiastically tied on two "Bionics"...one for him and one for me, and we went at it. Nobody was more surprised than I was when the snag I thought I had turned out to be a northern pike of significant size. (That's BIG.) We graciously "released" this monster about four feet from the net. And, within a few casts, had another big one follow the lure right to the shore without taking. The point is that there is action to be had, assuming that there is open water. However, the very next day we went back to the same spot and found the lake skimmed with ice...not fishable. We did find some open water up Cherry Creek but didn't see any signs of fish.

By the way, the New Year means that, if you want to fish, you need a 2000 license.

LATE DEER HARVEST REPORT

Some late reports of successful deer hunters included Jeremiah King who got a four-point buck in rifle season. Special congratulations here, as Jeremiah is a junior hunter. Bill Evans got a four- point buck in muzzleloader season near Wallman. Gary Whitacre got a doe in muzzleloader season near North Hill. Ralph Livengood, sometimes known as Gilbert, got a four-pointer in rifle season. Rick Stewart got a nice 10-pointer in the Kitzmiller area. Kenny Michaels got a four-pointer near Deer Park, and Derrick Dove got a seven-pointer in the Bethlehem area.

INDOOR ARCHERY SEASON TO OPEN

D & B Sport Shop in Deer Park has limited openings for their winter indoor electronic archery league that begins on the 17th of this month. The format is a league of three-person teams. Interested archers should call D & B for information. Their number is 301-334-9725.

FALL TURKEY HUNTERS BAGGED 334 IN 1999

Fall turkey hunters harvested 334 wild turkeys in the three western Maryland counties during 1999's one-week season. This is an 11 percent increase over 1998's harvest, but similar to the average of the previous two years.

"Department of Natural Resources field staff reported an excellent reproductive year for wild turkeys in western Maryland during the summer of 1999," said Mike Slattery, director of DNR's Wildlife and Heritage Division. "Fall populations and the corresponding hunting harvest is directly related to turkey poult production during the summer months. Weather conditions were good in western Maryland, enabling more poults to survive to the fall months. Thus, turkey populations increased in the area and hunters experienced a better chance to harvest a fall wild turkey."

Garrett County reported the highest harvest, with 162 turkeys harvested, followed by Allegany County with 137 turkeys and Washington County with 35 turkeys. Hunting pressure for wild turkeys was light during the week-long season, and those who ventured afield had ample opportunities to harvest one of America's greatest game birds.

The previous 10 years' fall turkey harvests are: 1998 - 301, 1997 - 359, 1996 - 349, 1995 - 570, 1994 - 559, 1993 - 427, 1992 - 370, 1991 - 360, 1990 - 340, 1989 - 302.

Little League Tryouts Set At Southern Middle

The Oakland Little League board of directors has announced the Little League baseball tryout schedule for players age 9-12. All players in this age group that have not previously played on a Little League team must try out for Little League. If a player is not selected for a little league team, that player will be assigned to a minor league team.

The sessions will take place at Southern Middle School over the weekend of Feb. 18-20, according to the following schedule:

- 9- and 12-year-olds only — Friday, Feb. 18 — registration at 5 p.m., tryouts at 6 p.m.;
- 10- and 11-year-olds only — Saturday, Feb. 19 — registration at 8:30 a.m., tryouts at 9 a.m.;
- Make-up day for those who missed their scheduled time — Sunday, Feb. 20 — registration at 1 p.m., tryouts at 1:30 p.m.

Candidates must be accompanied by an adult and must present a copy of their birth certificate. Parents must also have proof of residence to ensure their child is registering for the proper playing area. Candidates will be asked to demonstrate the basic fundamentals of throwing, catching, hitting, and running during the tryouts. Each player is asked to bring his or her own glove.

For further information interested persons may contact Jane Roberson, president, at 301-387-6991; Mark Proulx, player agent, at 301-334-9589; or Chuck Fitzwater, Little League vice president, at 301-334-4375.

Second Tee-Ball, Minor League Sign-Up Slated

A second weekend of registration has been added for tee-ball and minor league candidates, the Oakland Little League announced this week. The sign-up sessions, each to take place at Southern Middle School, are set for Friday, Feb. 18, 5 p.m.; Saturday, Feb. 19, 8:30 a.m.; and Sunday, Feb. 20, 1 p.m.

The tee-ball league is open to 5- and 6-year-olds (players must turn 5 by August 1), while minor league play is open to 7- and 8-year-old participants. Each child must be accompanied by an adult, and must present a copy of his/her birth certificate. There will be no tryouts at these sessions, so no gloves or bats need be brought to the school.

both of Grantsville. Northern Rescue Squad and Deer Park VFD responded to the scene and transported the two injured passengers to Garrett Memorial Hospital, where they were treated and released.

Both drivers were charged in the accident.

Charged With Assault

Richard A. Mutter, 20, Oakland, was arrested Friday, Jan. 14, at his residence after he fired a shortened-barrel 30-30 rifle. Tfc. J. LeMay reported that Mutter fired the weapon outside his home at about 11 p.m. when two women arrived to pick up items belonging to one of them.

The rifle was confiscated from Mutter and he was charged with two counts of first-degree assault, two counts of reckless endangerment, and possession of an illegal weapon. He was held on $5,000 bail following a bond hearing.

DWI

Jeffrey W. Paugh, 36, Oakland, was charged by the state police with driving while intoxicated, passing in a "No Passing" zone, traveling at a speed greater than reasonable, and negligent driving.

According to a report filed by Tfc. G. Seaman, on January 12 at 8:48 p.m., Paugh was observed driving a 1991 Chevrolet Blazer eastbound on Route 135 near old Route 38. Paugh allegedly passed another vehicle in a "No Passing" zone and accelerated rapidly, exceeding the posted 50 mph speed limit.

When stopped by the officer, Paugh reportedly failed the field sobriety tests and was placed under arrest.

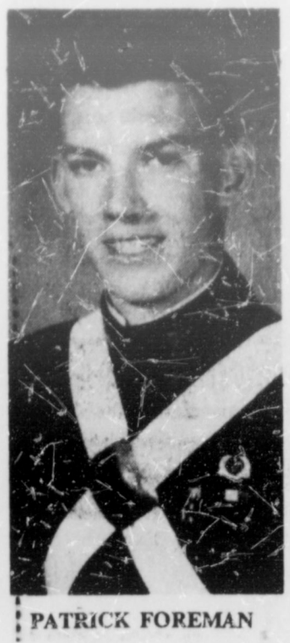
Named To Dean's List At Va. Tech



PATRICK FOREMAN

Midshipman 2/C Patrick Forman, Oakland, has been named to the dean's list for the College of Engineering at Virginia Polytechnic and State University, Blacksburg, Va. The junior, who is pursuing a bachelor's of science degree in mechanical engineering, achieved the dean's list status by earning a 3.48 GPA for the fall semester.

Forman is enrolled in the Naval Reserve Officer Training Corps and the Virginia Tech Corps of Cadets. He served as a company chief petty officer in the naval battalion for the fall semester.

Over the past summer he was assigned to FFG-48: USS Vandegrift from May 31 through July 6, where he participated in a summer training program specific to the surface warfare community. During that training he and his shipmates traveled to the ports of Darwin and Cairns, Australia; Honora, Guam; and Saipan, Japan.

Forman is the son of John and Joyce Forman of Oakland, and is a 1997 graduate of Southern High School.

A TRIO OF MIXED-BREED DOGS, part cute and part adorable, are among the animals available for adoption at the Garrett County Animal Shelter this week. The 10-month-old Labrador-hound mix at the left has a white bib marking, and the Lab/shepherd mixes to the right are 8-week-old siblings. Another pair of 8-week-old mixed pups are not pictured, but our correspondent, Betsy Gergoff, said they look "exactly like the carpet sweeper advertisement pups on television." The animal shelter, which is open weekdays, may be reached by calling 301-334-3553.

Plans Viewed

tial tenants. "We are hoping to get a bank loan for this building. We should know about this by the end of the month," he explained.

The drawings submitted to the Grantsville officials depicted a 9,000-plus sq. ft., two-story building. Social Services would occupy 3,900 sq. ft., the health department would take 1.705 sq. ft., while GCC would inhabit 2,900 sq. ft. There would be a common area on each floor, accounting for an additional 1,630 sq. ft.

Garrett Community College tentative plans for the space include classrooms and a computer lab. "This could be used for job training purposes," Yoder said.

Grantsville mayor Gerry Beachy said he thinks such a project would have a very positive effect on the town. "I think it would be a great asset to our community. It would certainly make it easier for people in this area to use some of the county services," he said.

Yoder said he does not like to speak in absolutes about a project that is still awaiting an approval of funding. "Assuming all goes well with this, we could break ground in the spring and be ready by the fall," he said.

Code Home Rule

immediately."

He also cited the change that had to be legislated concerning his job. In order to alter the title of his job from county clerk to county administrator, and in order to change wording that had existed in the county code since 1906, the commissioners had to seek legislation.

Both Beitzel and Gregg noted that code home rule is not the same as charter home rule, which the county voted down in the early 1990s. The two commissioners said they were not supportive of charter home rule, which allows for a board of several individuals with one either elected or appointed leader. The form of government is then determined by the charter, which is written by representatives of the citizenry.

Dorothy Leighton, vice president of the League of Women Voters of Garrett County, was present for the meeting and voiced her concerns about code home rule. Because the commissioners will have more flexibility, Leighton contended that the "checks and balances" provided by the input of the delegation will be in jeopardy.

"I feel strongly that if we had been a code county at the time when Garrett Community College was being proposed, we would not have that college today," Leighton said. "The state wanted to give us the college. All the commissioners had to do was provide the land for it. They didn't want to do that. Because the delegate at the time superseded, we did finally get the college. GCC is now an extremely valuable asset to our county."

Leighton contended that code home rule will give the commissioners too much power.

"I have seen some commissioners who have lacked wisdom and who have made some decisions that were certainly not what I would consider to be best for the county," she said. "Without that legislative interference, they will have even more power."

Gregg disagreed, stating that the commissioners currently have very little power, and that code home rule will not change that.

"I see it almost as a housekeeping measure, allowing us to do small things at a county level," he said.

"Why should we have to engage the state legislators and go through that entire process for every little change?" Beitzel asked. "It's true that sometimes 'bozos' get elected, but the system has worked amazingly well, despite that."

Commissioner Fred Holliday noted that any elected individual can operate in a way that is undesirable.

"You're concerned about the lack of the delegation's input, so what happens if you have three good commissioners but the delegate is not what you want? In that case, it would be good to have code home rule," Holliday said.

Leighton said she remembered a statement from a former county commissioner concerning code home rule.

"Wayne Hamilton was one of the best commissioners we have ever had," she said. "When he went into office, he said he wanted to seek code home rule because the commissioners didn't have enough power. After he had served for a while, he told me he realized that the county commissioners actually have too much power, and that we do not need code home rule. I have never forgotten that."

Beitzel said he and his colleagues appreciated the input and that the public hearings on the issue will be arranged soon. Only one other individual, George Brady, member of the planning commission, was present at Tuesday's meeting.

Openings Noted In After-School Group At Grantsville Ctr.

Middle and elementary school students are invited to participate in the after-school program at the Grantsville Senior Center. Openings are available, and staffing is being increased to meet the needs of the community.

The program, which offers tutoring, mentoring, and social activities, will begin a four-day-per-week schedule starting January 31.

Winter Weather Increases Threat Of Home Fires

As winter bears down on Maryland and people adjust to the first serious cold snap of the season, they are urged to protect themselves from home fires. State Fire Marshal Rocco J. Gabriele reminds residents that the current frigid temperatures, which cause heating units to work overtime, combined with low humidity and the lack of moisture, causes wood in structures to be drier than usual and much more susceptible to fire.

Below are a few tips that will help keep homes safe:

- Have furnaces, fireplaces, and chimneys inspected by a professional every year. This includes new and old units because new units must be properly installed and old units can deteriorate.
- Dispose of fireplace ashes in metal containers and place them outside away from any structure.
- Be very careful with space heaters of all kinds. Keep combustibles at least three feet away from any type of heater. Use only K-1 kerosene in kerosene heaters. Do not use gasoline.
- Do not use electric space heaters which have rust, damage, or a questionable maintenance history. They are dangerous and should be thrown away.
- Do not leave any type of space heater unattended. They can overheat or be knocked over by pets and start a fire.
- Do not refill space heaters indoors and only refill them when they are cool.
- Do not use extension cords or damaged or altered cords with electric space heaters.
- Have battery-powered lighting and radios on hand in case electric power is lost. Do not use candles.
- If cooking with portable stoves, do not cook inside. Accidents can happen and carbon dioxide can build up.
- Be sure that every level of the home is protected by smoke alarms and that at least one unit is powered by batteries in case of a power outage.
- Check the cold weather, fire safety status of the elderly neighbors, friends, and family.

"I believe that if Marylanders follow these common sense recommendations, then they can prevent fire deaths in their homes," Fire Marshal Gabriele said.

Annual Holiday Feast Hosted By NMS Students

Students at Northern Middle School hosted their 9th annual Thanksgiving Feast in November. The event was supervised by teacher Lisa Carr and teacher assistants Nancy Friend and Kathy Margroff.

The feast was used as a focal point for teaching a variety of lessons across the curriculum. The teachers presented writing assignments, history lessons, cooking skills, and exercises in social manners. "The students were challenged with lessons that increased their academic as well as social skills," Carr explained.

Preparing and planning the feast provided creative teaching opportunities that included menu planning, writing invitations, comparison of food prices, and estimation of food to be prepared and served.

Students performed these tasks and sharpened skills previously learned in the classroom or acquired new skills.

Becky Aiken, school nurse, addressed the class on health topics relevant to the feast. She spoke about the importance of physical and mental hygiene.

Final preparations entailed cleaning and decorating the room for the feast.

Each of the students was given an assignment for the day of the feast. Their responsibilities included escorting guests to their seats, making welcome speeches, and serving the meals, drinks, and desserts. "We started cooking the meal at 8:30 a.m. The cooking ran smoothly, with each student giving 110%," Carr said.

Guests for the event were school staff and administration and school board members. Special recognition was given to volunteer Sheila Lewis and to teacher Sherri DeWitt for use of the Home-Ec. room. Appreciation was expressed to the people who donated money toward the special event. "It's a lot of hard work but the students really enjoy it every year," said Friend.

Thanks were also given to Alma Cosner for providing the poem titled "Thanksgiving Day" that was read to the guests. Her son Jerry is in the class.

Spruce Forest Artisan Village, Grantsville, is looking for people who would like to become part of the non-profit organization's mission.

During the summer season, which runs from May through October, Spruce Forest welcomes scores of volunteers who give of their time to serve as hosts in two of log the cabins on campus — Miller House Peace Center and Compton School. "We're looking for some good people to add to our volunteer hosting program, and I'm happy to extend this invitation to local folks who might enjoy talking to village visitors from all over this country and abroad," said village administrator Trish Morgan.

Volunteers would have the opportunity to work at Spruce Forest, either for one day, several days, or the entire week of Monday-Saturday. Each person who hosts one of these buildings will receive an information packet in early April that gives background information on the building, as well as interesting tidbits of other information.

The host welcomes visitors as they enter, shares information and stories and answers questions. Volunteers work each day from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., taking breaks and lunchtime whenever his or her schedule suits. "Our good neighbor Penn Alps offers an incredible discount to our volunteers, as well, so the entire volunteer package makes a great way to spend some time sharing with others this summer," Morgan added.

Spruce Forest Artisan Village consists of authentic, restored log cabins, housing artisans who demonstrate their old-time craftsmanship throughout the week. Artisans include Lynn Lais, potter; Ann Jones, weaver; Jody Best, blacksmith; Connie Stark, teddy bear artist and herb specialist; Peggy Nixon, slate painter; Jim and Mary Ann Cummings, stained glass artists; John Daugherty, soap maker; Meriam Brode, basketweaver and spinner; and Gary Yoder, bird sculptor.

Volunteers must have their own transportation to Spruce Forest and are encouraged to dress in conservative or period dress during their volunteer service. Students are welcome to apply and may earn community service hours for their time spent at the village. For more information, or to obtain this summer's schedule and hosting packet, persons may contact Morgan at 301-895-3332, weekdays.

Buildings date to the pre-Revolutionary War era and are handicapped accessible.

encounters are increasing, and we're worried that some of the bears are losing their fear of humans, especially because of tourists who may either leave trash out or purposely feed a bear." Bears range over great distances, she added, and a bear that is approaching humans in a tourist setting may travel to another area and approach humans as well.

Kelley, who was appointed to the Wildlife Advisory Commission seven years ago, said that a special meeting will be called in Annapolis after the commission has reviewed the MSA proposal. That date will be announced in the future.

State delegate George Edwards and state senator John Hafer signed a joint letter mailed to the Wildlife Advisory Commission earlier this week that supported a limited lottery bear season in Garrett and Allegany counties.

"Most people have quit contacting DNR because they believe, right or wrong, that DNR will, or does, not, respond to their concerns. We believe because of the considerable increase in the number of bears and the increase in encounters, the concerns received will continue to increase," the letter stated, "which potentially could lead people to take the matters into their own hands. We believe a limited lottery hunt would help manage a viable bear population in the state of Maryland."

Gillham To Speak At Mountaintop 2000 Conference

Living for Christ Conferences has announced that Dr. Bill Gilliham, author, Bible teacher, and radio talk show host, will be the featured speaker at their 14th annual get-away conference, Mountaintop 2000, to be held at Lakeview Scanticon Resort in Morgantown, W.Va., March 3-5.

From Fort Worth, Texas, Gillham holds a doctor of education degree from Oklahoma State University. Having worked in education as a public school teacher and administrator and as a psychology professor at Southeastern Oklahoma State University, he left the education system in 1975 to become a Christian counselor. Since then, he and his wife have founded "Lifetime Guarantee," a ministry dedicated to "sharing the timeless treasures of God's grace with personal transparency, simplicity, and practicality." A phase of this ministry is the "Lifetime Guarantee" radio broadcast available on numerous stations throughout the country.

The books he's authored include What God Wishes Christians Knew About Christianity; Lifetime Guarantee; and He Said, She Said.

"A person's behavior is controlled by his perception of who he is," Gillham says. "In other words, you will 'life out' whatever you believe about yourself to avoid feeling like a phony. And for Christians, it follows that a failure to understand our identity results in being ill-equipped to act like who we truly are in Christ. Unless we know how to allow Christ to live His overcoming life through us, we will operate in sinful independence from Him and lack the daily consistency that only He can provide."

"Sharing these foundational truths of God's grace that will result in the believer's living the Christian life consistently and successfully, Gillham will prepare those in attendance for 'Staying on the Mountaintop after Leaving the Mountaintop,' the conference theme for this event," stated Anne Gibson Robinson, conference chairperson. The five teaching sessions are titled: "Put No Confidence in Your Flesh," "We're More Than Forgiven Through Christ," "Christ Through You — Your Victory over the Flesh," "Dealing With Those Pesky Emotions," and "When Things Appear to Have Gone Wrong."

In addition to Gillham's teaching, Richard Allen Farmer, celebrated pianist and vocalist from Upland, Ind., will lead in musical worship and appear in concert at "A Festival in Celebration of God's Greatness!"

Several seminars will expand the weekend: "The World According To..." (following Jesus is more than religious beliefs) presented by Mark Elfstrand, "Morning" host, WMBI-FM, Chicago; "Have You Read a Good Hymn Lately?" (fresh insights into the text of favorite hymns) with Richard Allen Farmer; "The Meekness and Humility of God" led by New Martinsville businessman Bill Forbes; and "Rising Above the Magnetic Pull of the Refrigerator" offered by Rhonda Elfstrand, Pittsburgh Weigh Down Workshop coordinator.

"This weekend is for those who want to leave behind today's fast-paced lifestyle of daily pressures and urgent distractions for a time of deep renewal and refreshment," said Robinson, who is also co-founder of Living for Christ Conferences, the nonprofit, nondenominational sponsor. "With Bill Gillham's engaging style and Christ-centered teaching in an atmosphere with folks from many denominations at a wonderful site, Mountaintop is the perfect place for that to happen!" she said.

Registration fees, including all programs, two nights lodging, and four meals, begin at $164 per person (four to a room). Registration brochures and information are available through Living for Christ Conferences, 169 East Thistle Place, New Martinsville, WV 26155; 304-455-5322; e-mail: mtntop@living4Christ.com; web site: www.living4Christ.com.

Hospital Gala Set; Smouse Is Honorary Chair

Officials at Garrett County Memorial Hospital have announced that H. Russell Smouse will be the honorary chairman of a major fund-raiser planned by the Hospital Foundation for next fall to celebrate the hospital's 50th anniversary of healthcare service to the community.

The "Golden Anniversary Gala" has been scheduled for Saturday, Nov. 4, and will be held at the McHenry Room at the Wisp. "The Gala will include a silent and live auction as well as dinner and dancing to a live band," explained Wayne Johnson, event chairman. "All funds raised will benefit the hospital."

Smouse, an attorney with the Law Offices of Peter G. Angelos in Baltimore and general counsel of the Baltimore Orioles, has agreed to serve as the honorary chairman and lend his support in making this a successful fund-raiser. A native of Garrett County, Smouse credits the hospital for its service to him in a personal life-threatening situation.

Members of the Gala's steering committee include: Don and Patti Battista, Sandy Brantner, Kayla Cathell, Louise Conjura, Gary Daum, Charlotte Garner, Kathy Greaser, Frances Gnegy, Wayne and Jackie Johnson, Elaine McDonald, Bunny Shank, H. Russell Smouse, Fred and Mary Stemple, and Charles and Barbara Thorne.

A GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY GALA to celebrate the 50th anniversary of the opening of Garrett County Memorial Hospital will be held in November, an event that will feature dining, dancing, and an auction, with all proceeds benefitting the hospital. Serving as honorary chairman of the gala will be H. Russell Smouse, pictured above right, with Wayne and Jackie Johnson. Wayne Johnson is head of the gala's steering committee. Smouse, a native of Oakland, is an attorney with the Law Offices of Peter G. Angelos, Baltimore, and is general counsel for the Baltimore Orioles. See story for details.

Drug/DWI Arrest Made in Oakland

Oakland Police reported the arrest last week of Teddy E. Dugan, 43, Oakland, for drug and alcohol violations. According to the report filed by Pfc. S. Fratz on January 12, he received a call at about 7:50 p.m. to be on the lookout for a possibly intoxicated driver operating a small black pickup truck that had a tail light out.

Shortly thereafter, Tfc. Fratz said he observed the vehicle, which was being driven in the middle of the road. When the vehicle was stopped, the driver was identified and allegedly asked to perform three field sobriety tests. The officer reported that Dugan did not perform them to his satisfaction and was placed under arrest.

After the arrest, Dfc. C. Helbig, who assisted with the traffic stop, found a marijuana cigarette in the Dugan vehicle. In addition to the charges of driving while intoxicated, possession of maraijuana, and failure to drive right of center, Dugan was charged with violating a license restriction.

A Powerful Test

There is nothing like a bitter cold morning to test your battery. You weren't looking for it. You hadn't prepared for it, but here it is. Your battery is stone cold dead! May as well charge it up... You know it won't get any better by itself.

Life usually follows the same pattern. We go along pretty smoothly until a crisis ensues. Will our spirit be powerful enough to handle it? Have we prepared for the inevitable bumps in the road and cold spells of life?

"Power belongeth unto God," says Psalm 62:11. As a car must draw power from the battery, we must draw upon God for our power. How can we do that so life will not find us weak and unprepared?

Each week, visit your local church or synagogue to strengthen your spirit. Keep the spark ignited with daily prayer and meditation. Then you will be ready for the test.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ARTHOUSE

DEMONIZING THE OPPOSITION
January 23, 2000

Background Scripture:
Matthew 12:22-45.
Devotional Reading:
Luke 12:1-14.

Halford E. Luccock, writing in The Interpreter's Bible, says joshingly that "With all reverence, a list of sayings of Jesus could be assembled under the startling headline, 'Things I Wish Jesus Had Never Said.'" He goes on to say, "That may sound blasphemous, but it is not. Such a list would include sayings that have been so continuously and badly distorted, so warped from their original meaning and context, that the misunderstanding of them has caused great distress and evil." His point of reference is Mark 3:29, in which Jesus says, "Whoever blasphemes against the Holy Spirit never has forgiveness, but is guilty of an eternal sin...."

Matthew 12:22-45 is similar. Having just healed a deaf and blind demoniac, Jesus is under attack by some of the Pharisees. People in the crowd are asking, "Can this be the Son of David?" and the Pharisees are quick to snap back: "It is only by Beelzebub, the prince of demons, that this man casts out demons" (12:24). When confronted by the awesome power of Jesus' miracles, his opponents turned to slandering him.

Beelzebul was an ancient Canaanite god, "Lord of the earth." But the biblical writers expressed their contempt for this Baal, calling him Baa*zelbub*, meaning "Lord of the flies." They regarded him, not as a god, but as the prince of demons. Later on in this passage (v. 26), Jesus identifies Beelzebub with Satan.

A Civil War?

Jesus responds to this charge with an argument that reveals the irrationality of their words. If Jesus is casting out Satan, then it is a defeat for Satan. And, if it is a defeat for Satan, how could Satan be giving him the power to do so? "If Satan casts out Satan, he is divided against himself; how then shall his kingdom stand?" (12:26). Jesus depicts a civil war and, indeed, it was this depiction, "a house divided against itself," that Abraham Lincoln used so effectively in his pre-civil war debates with Senator Stephen Douglas.

Then, Jesus goes on to make that statement that Halford Luccock says he wishes Jesus had not made: "Therefore I tell you, every sin and blasphemy will be forgiven men, but the blasphemy against the Spirit will not be forgiven" (12:31). It does take one's breath away to hear Jesus say that sin and blasphemy against the Spirit of God will not be forgiven. Are there one or more sins that God cannot forgive?

Willful Blindness

I am personally glad that Jesus said this, particularly that he said it so pointedly, because it stands before us as a dire warning against a practice which is all too common: demonizing our opponents. What this means is that we attribute all that they do to their alliance with Satan. I remember all too well the woman who told my mother that she was going to go to Hell because she didn't embrace a particular religious practice. She was sincere in her belief, but she was endangering her own soul in making this attack.

The problem with demonizing persons you don't like or don't agree with is that you are permitting your feelings to hide the spark of God that is in each of those persons.. This is arrogance on our part, imposing a limitation upon the grace of God, insisting that a work of mercy is a sign of Satan. As George Arthur Buttrick put it, "In obdurate pride men can call the light darkness, or Jesus' works of mercy the black magic of Baalzebub."

But why does Matthew have Jesus say that such blasphemy "will not be forgiven"? Perhaps it is not a matter of will not, but can not. It is not only blindness, it is also willful blindness. When, in our arrogant judgment we condemn others as being in league with Satan, we fail to see the God in them because we do not want to see Him. Buttrick says: "A man who deliberately tampers with the light God gives may rob himself of the power even to see pardon, let alone receive it."

When we demonize others, we give Satan his best shot at us.

NORTH GLADE
by Jessie Woods
reporter

Our regular December meeting was held. We had our Christmas party at Smiley's, at which everyone had a great time.

Now a year has gone by and it is time for members to get their 4-H book ready. The date to have it done is Feb. 1. They should be given to Debbie by then.

An upcoming event is 4-H Ski Day at the Wisp Resort (TBA).

The meeting for January will be held this evening, Jan. 20, at 7 p.m.

RED HOUSE
by Stephanie Brenneman
reporter

The first meeting of 2000 was called to order by our president, Steve Knepp. Barry Upole led the pledges. Aliza Green read the minutes and handed the secretary books over to Stacey Holler, who then took role. Stephanie Brenneman gave the treasurer's report and then handed the treasure's books over to Levi Green.

The first order of business was to find families to chair the organization of Green's family. The float committee has not yet been decided.

The club discussed ideas for the annual trip. The club then decided to have a hoagie sale and spaghetti dinner as fund-raisers. The club's community project this year will be caring for the Fairview Cemetery, and several families have volunteered to help with that project. Some of the monthly projects this year will be demonstration day, farm tour, project workshop, fair booth, and float workshops.

The Cloverbuds showed the club their sock snowmen that they had made.

The Red House club will hold its next meeting Wednesday, Feb. 2. Everyone is welcome. For more information about 4-H, persons may call 301-334-6460.

TAX TIP #3

The tax tail shouldn't wag the financial dog. In other words, don't focus on tax considerations and ignore the bigger financial picture. The best tax strategies are those that cut your taxes and still leave you in control of your money and your affairs. Farmers Advised On Labor Compliance Measures At Annual FB Meeting

A Social Security Administration (SSA) official encouraged farmers to address the growing problem of employee names and Social Security numbers submitted on wage and tax forms not matching SSA records. Norman Goldstein, SSA senior financial executive, presented information about ways to correct the problem during a conference on labor compliance at the American Farm Bureau Federation's annual meeting last week in Houston, Texas.

Goldstein told farmers the problem "is of some concern" because about 20 million to 25 million of the W-2 forms SSA receives annually from employers across all industries have some type of error. Of that number, about 6 million to 7 million are unresolved after the agency subjects them to electronic and manual verification.

"We have tried very hard to make employers more aware of the need for accurate information and also provide additional facilities for the employers to get correct information," he said.

Goldstein urged farmers to use SSA's Enumeration Verification Program, a free service to check employee verification prior to filing W-2 forms. He said the administration will accept their reports if more than half of the name and number combinations are correct, and reject the report and return it to the employer if incorrect matches exceed that amount.

"There are a number of reasons why these circumstances occur, not all of which are entirely the fault of the employee," said Goldstein.

Goldstein said a farmer's responsibility is simply to ask employees for their name and Social Security number in order to file their wage and tax report. "We don't expect you to be a private investigator," he said. "We would like you to go through your due diligence and make reasonable efforts to get accurate information."

George Daniels of the Farm Employers' Labor Service, an affiliate of the California Farm Bureau, and Scottie Butler of the Florida Farm Bureau also advised farmers to verify records to avoid a $50 penalty that can be assessed by the Internal Revenue Service for each inaccurate submission.

"We suggest that you document efforts that you have taken to verify that you are using diligent care in getting the right number and having that in your file, so that if the IRS does come after you for a fine, you can show them your efforts," said Daniels. "Write a letter back to the Social Security Administration telling them what efforts you have taken to re-verify or correct the numbers so that you have a paper trail that you can use."

Butler echoed that advice and added that farmers should make sure their own records are accurate and that they haven't transposed a number when they recorded that number. If the employee does not come back with a corrected number or an explanation, farmers should report to the SSA that the number is unknown.

Goldstein said the SSA, in September, plans to offer employers a computer-based option to instantaneously validate the name and Social Security number of employees.

Another topic addressed at the conference was the Labor Department's "Operation Saladbowl," an effort to enforce child labor laws in the nation's vegetable and fruit industries. The department has conducted targeted sweeps of farms in several parts of the country in the past two years to identify wage and hour violations involving children.

Bob Davis, partner in a Washington, D.C., law firm, and an expert in labor and employment law, said farmers need to be aware of the specific requirements on child labor. Unlike general industry, the child labor age in the United States is 14 years. If the job has "power attached to it, involves working up high or around big animals, with the exception of dairy cows, the minimum age is 16," he said.

"If you are using contract help and if you have seasonal work, the Labor Department, due to a change in regulations about two years ago, said that if farmers have the power to tell the contractor what fields to pick and when to pick, you are regarded as the joint employer of the people working for the contractor," said Davis. "I think that is dead wrong, but the federal government has persuaded most federal courts that's what the rule is."

"If you see the problem, you have to move aggressively to fix it," said Davis. "If you see the underage kid working in the fields, you can't turn around and go the other way. You have to be on record to say 'that can't happen, you have to knock it off.'"

Daniels urged farmers to make sure youths have the required work permits to be employed on farms, that farmers post all of the required state and federal wage, hour and safety regulations in the workplace and that employers keep accurate pay records in case they are targeted by DOL. These steps are necessary to avoid the "hot goods provision" under the Fair Labor Standards Act.

"That means they can go and get your product, wherever it is in the food chain, seize it and destroy, and you are out all the bucks that went into that product, even if the child picked one peach," said Daniels.

Farming In Maryland.....

Kozier Issues FSA Reminders

Mike Kozier, Garrett/Allegany Farm Service Agency director, reminds farmers that the Livestock Assistance Program (LAP) signup has been extended to Feb. 4. Owners of eligible livestock who suffered at least a 40% loss in grazing because of drought from May 1 to Oct. 1 may apply.

He also said that county committee election nominations must be in by Fri., Jan. 21. Applications are in the county office.

Producers who planted oilseeds and did not report that crop can report oilseeds planted until Feb. 18 at the county office, he said.

The Conservation Reserve Program signup started Jan. 18 and ends Feb. 11, he said.

He also reminded farmers that the Crop Disaster Program ends Feb. 25.

For these and other USDA programs, those interested in more information may contact Kozier at 301-334-6954 in Garrett County, or 301-777-1536 in Allegany County.

Milk Prices Drop Again; Farmers Hurt

Dairy farmers from several mid-Atlantic states joined representatives of the Maryland Chapter of the Sierra Club in Annapolis on Monday to call attention to dropping milk prices. The gathering, organized by the Sierra Club, was meant to show that the drop in milk prices has left many dairymen facing financial ruin.

The Sierra Club's Maryland Chapter said preserving the 830 dairy farms in Maryland is a key to curbing urban sprawl and preserving open spaces.

The number of Maryland dairy farms is down from 1,140 in 1991, according to the Maryland Farm Bureau, whose spokesperson said this week that they were not invited to take part in Monday's gathering in Annapolis or informed that it was going to take place.

Rising production in the western United States lowered the federal minimum price of milk to $9.63 per 100 pounds last month, a drop of more than $6 since September. The last time prices were this low was in 1978.

According to the Maryland Dairy Industry Association, Maryland farmers need milk prices of at least $14.40 per 100 pounds of milk (about 12 gallons) in order to survive. The Sierra Club, citing federal studies, said farmers need about $18.80.

The low milk prices could have been averted had Congress allowed Maryland to join the Northeast Interstate Dairy Compact, said Myron Wilhide, president of the Maryland Dairy Industry Association. The compact allows a federally authorized organization of six New England states to set milk prices above the federal minimum.

Md. Ag Statistics Service Reports On Commodities

Hogs

According to the Maryland Department of Agriculture's Ag Statistics Service, the inventory of all hogs and pigs in Maryland was estimated at 55,000 head for Dec. 1, 1999. This is 15% less than the 65,000 on hand a year earlier and 35% less than the number on hand two years earlier. The breeding inventory of 6,000 head was 1,000 fewer than a year earlier and 5,000 fewer than two years ago. The number of market hogs on Maryland farms was 49,000, a decrease of 19,000 from the year before. The number of operations with hogs in the state was 550 in 1999, down from 620 a year earlier.

U.S. inventory of all hogs and pigs on Dec. 1, 1999, was 59.4 million head. This was 4% below Dec. 1998, and 2% below Sept. 1, 1999. Breeding inventory, at 6.24 million head, was down 7% from Dec. 1, 1998, and down 1% from Sept. 1, 1999. Market hog inventory, at 53.2 million head, was 4% below last year, and 2% below last quarter.

The September-November 1999 U.S. pig crop, at 25.2 million head, was 3% less than 1998, and 1% less than 1997. Sows farrowing during this period totaled 2.87 million head, 4% below last year. The sows farrowed during this quarter represented 46% of the breeding herd. The average pigs per litter rose to 8.78 pigs saved per litter for the September-November period, compared to 8.66 pigs last year.

Pigs saved per litter by size of operation ranged from 7.40 for operations with 1-99 hogs to 8.90 for operations with more than 5,000 hogs and pigs. U.S. hog producers intend to have 2.81 million sows farrow during the December 1999-February 2000 quarter, 3% below the actual farrowings during the same period in 1999, and 4% below 1998. Intended farrowings for March-May 2000, at 2.83 million sows, are 5% below the same period last year and 8% below 1998.

The number of hog operations with hogs totaled 98,460 during 1999, down 14% from last year and 19% below 1997. Places with 2,000 or more hogs on hand accounted for 7% of the operations and 69% of the inventory. This is the fourth time operations with inventories over 2,000 head have controlled over 50% of the total inventory.

The number of operations with over 5,000 head of inventory at 2,005 accounted for 46.5% of the total inventory, up from 42% a year ago. The total number of hogs under contract, owned by those over 5,000 head operations but raised by contractees, accounted for 32% of the total U.S. hog inventory, up from 23% last year.

Chickens And Eggs

Maryland laying flocks produced 78 million eggs during November 1999, of which 71 million were table eggs and 7 million were hatching eggs. The average rate of lay was 75.7%.

Ag Prices

Prices received by Maryland and Delaware farm operators for December were down slightly from November. The biggest drop for crops appeared in the price for winter wheat, which moved down 13 cents to its current price of $2.07 a bushel, while the soybean price showed an 8 cent decrease. The price of corn, oats, barley, and soybeans either stayed at the same level or increased slightly from the previous month.

Small Farmers,

Cultivating For The Future

by Bernice Kepple, farm editor

Chickens are one of the easiest, most rewarding farm animals to raise. With very simple, but regular care they'll provide eggs, meat, and lots of entertainment. I always enjoyed standing for a few minutes in the chicken house on cold winter mornings surrounded by comfortable, satisfied chickens as they ate. They would sing to me, cocking their heads to one side when they looked at me, as though to say, "How nice of you to visit." A loud cackle from the next boxes would mean a new egg had just been laid to be gathered, still warm, and taken to the house along with six or eight others that our small flock continued to lay throughout the winter months. The roosters (we usually had more than one, although one is ideal) usually crowed while I was "visiting," proving that they not only crow early in the morning as the sun comes up, but any time during the day, and at all hours of the night (believe me, I know).

Our chickens were purchased after our oldest son, Tim, saw fancy chickens in a friends catalog when he was only 4 years old, and decided we had to have some. We ordered 25 day-old chicks, both hens and roosters, of mixed breeds from Murray McMurray Hatchery in Webster City, Iowa, and they arrived at the post office two weeks later. What I've neglected to tell you is that after being chased repeatedly by Leghorn roosters and mother hens as a child, chickens or birds of any kind really frightened me, and I only agreed to Tim's chicken idea if he and the rest of the family promised to take care of them. Well, of course they did -- a 3 year old, a 4 year old, an 8 year old, and a father who was never home during the day. As you've probably guessed, Mom had to overcome her fear and welcome the chicks into the family. I did, and eventually I was able to enjoy watching them eat insects and scratch in the dirt, gather eggs from under a hen, and harvest a rooster for the dinner table from start to finish, but it took awhile.

We had a very good "through-the-mail" chicken experience. Murray McMurray is a very respected hatchery, and I've talked to many people through the years who also had good experiences ordering chicks from them. I was excited, after 25 years, to find them still in business and on the Internet at www.mcmurrayhatchery.com. They have a wonderful site with pictures of all the breeds which you can order right through their web site. They also have a toll-free number, 1-800-456-3280, you can call to receive a free catalog. Their web site also provides little hints and trivia throughout the pages like: "Did you know? A batch of eggs that are hatched together are called a clutch."

You should be all prepared for your chicks when they come. You'll need a brooder light, which can be homemade, and a cardboard circle large enough to contain all your chicks comfortably. This circle is necessary to keep the chicks from crowding in a corner and smothering the unlucky birds on the bottom. Feeders and water fountains are also necessary, but are easy to get and very inexpensive. A very useful site for preparation and care is www.animalnews.com/news/farm/chickens.htm. There are many good books available on the subject. A very good source for chicken books as well as excellent information on all other aspects of small farming is Countryside & Small Stock Journal. Countryside has a web site where several books on raising chickens can be purchased. Books by Gail Damerow, The Chicken Health Book and Guide to Raising Chickens, are available and helpful. Also available is the "Your Series" of books for children ages nine and up. These individual books (including Your Chickens) cover raising all farm animals and are written by well-known experts. Then there are my personal favorites, the Countryside Livestock "Raising Series," which includes Raising Poultry the Modern Way, by editor and author Jerry Balenger, and provides both beginners and experts with detailed, easy-to-follow instructions for housing, feeding, breeding, and preventing diseases. If you're lucky enough to find a copy of this magazine that you can borrow, these books can be ordered from the magazine as well.

Another interesting site is: www.cyborganic.net/People/feathersite/Poultry, which lists chickens alphabetically by breed with pictures. This site also includes information about various species of fowl such as chickens, ducks, geese, guinea fowl, peafowl, pigeons, and turkeys, as well as links to a whole world of poultry and their needs. Again, those without Internet access might want to try the free service at the Ruth Enlow Library. So, if you are looking for a small farm animal that can be raised in a limited amount of space with a minimum amount of effort, consider chickens — and enjoy!

Delegates Stress Income Protection, Antitrust Scrutiny

Farmer and rancher delegates to the American Farm Bureau Federation's 81st annual meeting last week in Houston, Texas, elected new leaders and approved key resolutions related to the farm economy and consolidation in the agricultural industry.

Delegates elected Texas rice farmer Bob Stallman, a third-generation farmer from Colorado County, as the organization's 11th president. Michigan dairy farmer Jack Laurie was elected the organization's new vice president. Stallman succeeds Dean Kleckner, an Iowa farmer who had served as AFBF president for 14 years. Laurie succeeds Florida farmer Carl Loop, who had served in that capacity for five years.

On policy matters, delegates voted to back "countercyclical" farm income support payments and called for the creation of a "high-level" position within the Justice Department to enforce antitrust laws in agriculture.

Farm Bureau delegates from across the nation called for the implementation of countercyclical income support to supplement farm program payments, based on revenue history that would provide farmers formal income support during tough economic times without jeopardizing the concepts of the current farm law or returning to supply management programs. They continued to call, however, for a "complete re-examination" of the current farm law to ensure adequate financial support is available for all farmers.

The delegates said they would support continued "market loss assistance payments for all commodities, including livestock" until Congress approves fast-track trade negotiation authority for the president and agricultural trade improves. Delegates also expressed support for "investigating a national loan deficiency rate," improving the crop insurance program and developing a revenue insurance plan for livestock producers.

Delegates said they would oppose "a return to supply management programs, including mandatory acreage reduction," reestablishment of a farmer-owned reserve, and lifting the cap on crop marketing loans.

On the issue of agricultural mergers, the delegates said "consolidation and the subsequent concentration within the U.S. agricultural sector is having adverse economic impacts on U.S. family farmers." They called on Congress to review statutes and develop legislation to strengthen antitrust enforcement and asked for the creation of a high-level Justice Department official to focus on agricultural mergers and acquisitions.

By a 242-115 vote, delegates struck language that would have called for a moratorium on agribusiness mergers, should Congress fail to act. While delegates opposed a prohibition on packer ownership of livestock, they said the Justice Department must "ensure that proposed cooperative and vertical integration arrangements " continue to provide independent producers access to markets.

On other action, delegates voted to:

- Urge Congress to review and "ensure a workable and reasonable" implementation of the Food Quality Protection Act.
- Support Option 1A price differentials for Class I milk and regional dairy compacts.
- Ask the Agriculture Department to establish a method to monitor and report trends in farm-to-consumer price spreads for farm commodities.
- Support inclusion of ethanol in federal reformulated gasoline rules and biodiesel in Energy Department alternative and renewable fuels programs.
- Support tax incentives for the sale of property to beginning farmers.
- Seek reports on the impact to American farmers before the U.S. agrees to include any new nation in the World Trade Organization, and oppose attempts by competing nations to disguise protectionist trade policies as support for the "multifunctionalcharacteristics of agriculture."
- Recommend that all imported produce, meats, and seafood be labeled at the retail level as to country of origin.
- Support aggressive and effective implementation of mandatory livestock price reporting.
- Urge state and national governments to develop standards and strategies for biotechnology research, development, and consumer education.

In addition to policy action, the following farmers were elected to the AFBF board of directors. From the Midwest region: Al Christopherson, Minnesota; Charles Kruse, Missouri; Howard Poulson, Wisconsin,: Ron Warfield, Illinois; and Ed Weiderstein, Iowa. From the Southern region: Carl Loop Jr., Florida; Steve Kouplen, Oklahoma; Bruce Hiatt, Virginia; Larry Wooten, North Carolina; Sam Moore, Kentucky; David Waide, Mississippi; David Hillman, Arkansas; David Winkles; South Carolina; and Donald Patman, Texas.

Guy Donaldson of Pennsylvania and John Lincoln of New York were elected to the board from the Northeast region.

Elected to the AFB Women's Committee were Joyce Haak, South Dakota; Terry Gilbert, Kentucky; Leona Dell, Maryland; Alyce Block, Connecticut; and Margene Harris, New Mexico.

Ken Middleton, a cotton, soybean, and corn producer from Greenville, Miss., was elected chairman of the American Farm Bureau Young Farmers and Ranchers Committee.

On the Farm Milk Processing

Would you like to learn about a different approach to marketing milk products, whether it is cows, goats or sheep? Farmstead milk processing is becoming a more popular way of making and marketing a variety of milk foods including fluid milk, many types of cheese, butter, yogurt and ice cream.

The Maryland Cooperative Extension, University of Maryland is offering a technical program on Farmstead Milk Processing, Saturday, April 1, 2000, in Frederick. This 1-day educational program is designed for milk producers (cow, goat, and sheep) wanting to understand the fundamentals of successfully manufacturing legal, high quality milk foods on the farm. Additional information can be obtained by contacting the Garrett Cooperative Extension, 301-334-6960.

Sheep Behavior and Handling

Sheep depend heavily on their vision, and lighting conditions in a sheep handling facility can either improve or impede sheep movement. Sheep have a wide-angle vision and they can see behind themselves without turning their heads. The average sheep has a visual field of 270 degrees.

Long wool around the eyes may reduce the animal's panoramic vision.

To prevent sheep from being spooked by distractions outside the handling facilities, solid fences should be used in chutes and crowded pens. The crowd gate should also be solid to prevent sheep from attempting to turn back towards the holding pen they just left.

Sheep respect a solid barrier. They can be easily held behind a barrier constructed from burlap.

Sheep have a tendency to move toward light. Loading sheep at night will be easier if the producer places lights inside the truck.

The lights should evenly illuminate the interior of the truck and not glare into the animal's eyes.

In roofed sheep-handling facilities, spotlights can also be used to attract the sheep into the sorting or drenching chute. The lamps should illuminate the chute, but they must not shine into the eyes of approaching sheep. Sheep will balk if bright light glares into their eyes from either a lamp or the sun.

Biodegradable Decoy Reduces Insecticide Use on Apples

A biodegradable decoy that "fatally attracts" apple maggot flies or other insects has been patented by Agricultural Research Service scientists. Hung in trees at the edge of orchards, the spherical decoy—coated with sugar, high fructose corn syrup, latex enamel paint and an insecticide—may provide an alternative to repeated chemical insecticide sprays.

If not controlled, the black-and-white-striped adult apple maggot flies can inflict severe damage to apple trees. They lay their eggs just below the apple's skins. Maggots hatch and feed, creating tunnels through the apples, which begin to decay and then drop to the ground. The decoy is designed to suit insect's preferences for color, shape, size and surface texture. Apple maggot flies fall for an apple-size sphere painted black which, like a red apple, doesn't reflect ultraviolet light.

HOSPITAL AUXILIARY RECEIVES GRANT FUNDING — The Loar Auxiliary of Garrett County Memorial Hospital was recently awarded a $500 grant from the Garrett County Arts Council. The grant funding will be used toward the "Arts Project," through which the Auxiliary will select and purchase works of art from local artists to be placed throughout the hospital facility. Pictured left to right at the check presentation were Don Battista, president of GCMH, Denise Shay and Eleanor Plachta, Loar Auxiliary Arts Committee members and Steve Schlosnagle, director of the Garrett County Arts Council. Not available at the time of photograph was Betty Pritt, Loar Auxiliary president and member of the Arts Committee.

Loar Auxiliary Supports Hospital And Local Artists

Members of the Garrett County Memorial Hospital's Loar Auxiliary met recently with Donald Battista, CEO and president of the hospital, to announce their acceptance of a project that would accessorize the hospital facility. Through this project, called the "Arts Project," the auxiliary will select and purchase works of art to be placed in appropriate locations throughout the hospital.

Through a unanimous vote of the Loar Auxiliary membership, the group further agreed that works of art from local artists should be the first considered. With the assistance of Steve Schlosnagle, director of the Garrett County Arts Council, a selection committee has already started a review and selection process.

"This is an ongoing project," said Betty Pritt, president of the Loar Auxiliary. "Artists wishing to have their work considered should be associated with the Garret County Arts Council."

The Loar Auxiliary is a volunteer organization of the hospital that raises funds through the operation of the hospital's gift shop. "Garrett County Memorial Hospital has always celebrated and supported the healing aspects of art," said Charlotte Garner, volunteer coordinator at the hospital. Located on the first floor of the hospital near the Irvin Feld Boardroom is a gallery of Aza Stanton works, which was dedicated in 1996 posthumously to Stanton. Much of the work in the Stanton Gallery was donated by Stanton and his family.

On display in the hospital's main lobby is a lace tapestry that celebrates Garrett County women. The Laceworks project, sponsored by the Civic Club of Oakland, was coordinated by Jane Avery, with lace donated for the project by Polly Hanst.

Notes from Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

Margaret and Jim Wagner, and Sally Poholsky attended a 50th wedding anniversary celebration for Dan and Jean Wagner, which was held at the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Terry and Deb Brenneman.

Quite a few people in our community have had a bad flu bug, including Sally Poholsky, who I am glad to say is now on the mend. Not as lucky is Sally's aunt Beulah Moon, who is down now with a bad bug.

Reports are flowing that considerable progress has been made in the interior of Emmanuel's new church over the past week. Our vicar, Doug Knupp, happily reports that he has beaten his recent trouble with a kidney stone. His doctor is not sure where it went, but we are all glad that it is gone.

Many Bittinger youth are participating on Northern Middle's 7th and 8th grade basketball teams. Kids are glad to have something other than homework to occupy their time, and parents have fallen quickly back in the routine of taking kids to and retrieving them from practices and games. Participants from Bittinger include Claire Sussman, Brent Housley, Robbie Glotfelty, Matthew Bass, Max Beitzel, and Tiara Sines.

Earlier in this column, I predicted a normal winter for this year. I am not sure whether this winter can be called normal for Garrett County, but it is closer than the last few which I remember. The last few days of mid-January look more and more normal, with periods of snow and cold, cold nights. Last week we got enough snow that my daughter Claire spent almost the whole weekend at the Wisp skiing with her buddy, Meghan Shaffer. Caitlin and her cousin, Blakely Glotfelty, spent a day on their cross country skis, although it didn't seem like quite enough snow to me. They thought it was good. The last few days of bitter cold and wind reminded me of past winters.

We are hoping that it will be somewhat warmer with clear skies tonight (Thursday) to watch the eclipse of the moon. It is always frustrating to look forward to a spectacular show in our night skies, only to be disappointed by overcast conditions. The moon is supposed to turn brick red, a sight which I look forward to.

After a morning at the slopes, Claire suited up for her Sunday afternoon basketball game against Beall. Unfortunately for the young Huskies, Beall won all games, which were close and very exciting. We then rushed down to the Bittinger fire hall to attend the Bittinger 4-H club dinner, which is always a treat. After a delicious turkey dinner, the club inducted new members, including Mere Sussman, Emma Bass, and Alex Beitzel. (4-H camp, look out!) Officers for the 2000 year were installed and include: Robbie Glotfelty, president; Claire Sussman, vice president; Blakely Glotfelty, secretary; Andrew Hady, treasurer; and Darryl and Elliot Glotfelty, co-reporters. Members, families, friends, and some special guests attended and enjoyed the program. The club made a donation to the Bittinger Fireman's association, the Bittinger Fireman's auxiliary, and the Bittinger Fireman's junior fireman program, all accepted by Ken Buckel. All in all, I am glad all the running around is finished for a little while, as it is too cold for me.

GCCF Booklet Provides Info On Scholarships

The new scholarship booklet of the Garrett Community College Foundation is now available. The annual publication provides information about scholarships administered by the GCCF which are offered for the 2000-2001 academic year at Garrett Community College. The deadline to apply for scholarships is Wednesday, March 1.

The GCCF booklet contains information on the numerous sources of scholarship funding available through the foundation. The GCCF has competitive merit and need scholarships, both of which are offered to residents of Garrett County and other localities and are available for both part-time and full-time students. There is no fee to apply for a scholarship, and an application form is included in the booklet.

The scholarship booklet is available from the GCC Financial Aid Office, the GCC Library, and all branches of the Ruth Enlow Library. Northern and Southern high school students may obtain a copy of the booklet from their respective guidance offices.

Individuals, organizations, or businesses wishing to support higher education in Garrett County by partially or fully endowing scholarships may contact Bretta Reinhard, advancement officer for the GCC Foundation, at 301-387-3100.

Democratic Club Meets To Develop 2000 Action Plan

The Democratic Club of Garrett County executive board met recently to establish goals and develop an action plan for the coming year. The club selected the slogan "Join the Club: Make a Difference" as its theme for the year 2000. "With the help of voting district 'leaders' and club members, 'Join the Club: Make a Difference' will be heard in all county communities," said a club spokesperson.

Several committee appointments were made during the meeting. Joyce Andrews was appointed government liaison, with duties to include attending all state functions and serving as the contact person for all county visitors. Jay Cross will chair the Information and Education Committee, which is charged with increasing awareness of the problems faced in the county, and arranging for democratic ticket speakers and public forums. Andy Andersen will chair the Membership Committee, and Doris Goldsborough and Tom Bratten will co-chair the Political Advisory Committee. Earleen Beckman will chair the Public Relations Committee.

"The Fund-Raising and Special Events committees still need chairs," the spokesperson said, "and all committees need members to assist in meeting their objectives."

The next meeting of the Democratic Club of Garrett County will take place Wednesday, Feb. 2, at 7 p.m. in Room 315 of the Garrett Community College Continuing Education building.

Chamber Seminar To Address World Wide Web Topics

The Garrett County Chamber of Commerce Brown Bag Seminar Series continues at noon Wednesday, Jan. 26, when Marta Schroyer of Deep Creek Times will present a program titled "Web Savvy." The presentation will cover topics including the Internet and how to use it, information about search engines, and web page design.

"As the world of advertising turns more and more to this technology it is important to note that smaller businesses have the opportunity to compete right alongside of the big guys with the use of this advertising media," commented Ken Wishnick, the chamber's executive director. "Deep Creek Times is the only web site magazine covering the area, and has been for four years," Wishnick added.

The Web Savvy program will take place in the conference room of the Visitors Center in McHenry, and is free to all chamber members and $5 to non-members. Participants are encouraged to bring their own lunch, and drinks will be available at a nominal cost.

The Brown Bag Seminar Series is an educational series featuring Chamber members sharing information in their areas of expertise. "These seminars are a great way to invest some time in learning skills of value to businessmen and entrepreneurs," Wishnick said. "To be successful in business today you need to have a broad base of knowledge in many areas. Through this series we will provide access to many experts that will increase both efficiency and profitability."

Six additional Brown Bag seminars covering a wide variety of topics are slated through the end of May. For a complete schedule, persons may contact the Chamber of Commerce at 301-387-4386.

COVER STORY

Writing duo puts the Ally in WB's Brutally Normal

By Jacqueline Cutler
©TVData Features Syndicate

Eddie Kaye Thomas

The WB Network's most recent nod to teens, Brutally Normal, is brutally typical of the latest round of teen shows. There's dialogue attempting to be glib, adults depicted as buffoons and oh, the Angst of it all.

The half-hour series, which premieres Monday, Jan. 24, focuses on three buddies, Russell Wise, Robert "Pooh" Cutler and Anna Privoca (Eddie Kaye Thomas of American Pie, Mike Damus of Teen Angel, Lea Moreno of Legacy).

The problems this trio faces are, well, brutally normal: Anna questions who she is; Russell tries to fit in, while fancying himself a lover; Pooh worries about everything.

Many said Seinfeld was about nothing. The same could be said of this show. Seinfeld, however, was entertaining.

Maybe teens won't find it brutally boring, but that's a long shot despite the fact that the actors are good.

The gang attends Normal High School. In one episode, Anna is trying to prevent a candid photo from being published in the high-school yearbook. The yearbook editor is a slimy Lothario – with a refrigerator, king-size waterbed and neon sign in his bedroom – who looks too old to be in high school.

But it's when Anna decides to steal the photo from the yearbook office that the show switches to the brutally absurd. Suddenly, she is poured into a sexy Catwoman suit and envisions herself a jewel thief with the photo as the precious prize.

Such fantasy sequences may remind viewers of Fox's Ally McBeal. But Normal co-creator and writer Michael Goldberg says the similarities are not intentional. He says he's trying to take the scenes and push them "much further" than McBeal.

"When you develop shows, you have no idea of what other people are doing," Goldberg says. "We knew when we sat down, we wanted to go into the subconscious minds of kids – the things they can't illuminate in real life, sometimes scary, sometimes funny.

"(In) most European movies that you love, almost everyone has flashbacks and fantasy sequences, and America never got into that until recently. We do about three a show. We are just trying to illuminate what can't be illuminated."

In the same episode, Russell shares a deep kiss with a beautiful woman seven years his senior. She turns up at school as his substitute teacher and refuses any further romantic overtures.

"Every single story that you see in some way, is something that Tommy and I went through," Goldberg says, referring to his partner, Tommy Swerdlow, with whom he wrote the screenplay for Cool Runnings.

"Tommy was at a radical high school in New York, and he led a strike in his high school when he heard a teacher was being fired," he explains, adding, "What kid hasn't had a crush on a teacher? I kissed three of them, one in high school and two the minute I got out, and I had sex with one of them, but we won't talk about that."

If there's any one reason to watch, it is Tangie Ambrose (Martin), who plays Dru, Anna's confidante. Ambrose manages to deliver otherwise flat lines with panache. And, she, like the rest of the cast, is far better than the material.

Leslie Wagner (Tracey Gold) is an unwed woman who is convinced by her friend Karen (Lisa Zane) to carry an unexpected pregnancy to term. But what Leslie doesn't know is that her friend is planning on stealing the baby – right from her womb.

Mariska Hargitay

Q: Is Mariska Hargitay of Law & Order: Special Victims Unit the daughter of Jayne Mansfield and Mickey Hargitay? It seems to me that was the name of their baby at the time of Jayne's untimely death. –Betty Ridings, West Farmington, Ohio.

A: Yes. Hargitay, who turns 36 on Jan. 23, was 3 years old when she and her two brothers survived the automobile accident that killed Mansfield.

Q: I loved the recent TV movie version of Annie, but I disagree with a friend who says Victor Garber and Kathy Bates did their own singing. –Tullio Marchetti, San Francisco.

A: Your friend is correct. In fact, Garber has an extensive background of musical credits, including Tony-nominated performances in Damn Yankees and Stephen Sondheim's Sweeney Todd. Bates also did some singing early in her career but took some lessons to get back into vocal shape for Annie.

Q: Where can I write to The Nashville Network to express my unhappiness with all the weird changes they are making? It seems they are taking off all the good programs that have anything to do with country singers. –Beverly Shelby, Braceville, Ill.

A: You can vent by sending a letter to Viewer Services, The Nashville Network, 2806 Opryland Drive, Nashville, TN 37214.

Q: Stephen Collins of 7th Heaven looks so familiar. What else has he done? –Ethel Tarqueno, Worth, Ill.

A: The 52-year-old actor and novelist has had a varied career on both stage and screen. Before Heaven, he had series roles in Sisters, Tales of the Gold Monkey, Tattingers and Working It Out.

He also starred in such high-profile TV movies and miniseries as Chiefs, A Woman Named Jackie and Scarlett.

Among his many feature films are The First Wives Club, The Promise, Star Trek: The Motion Picture and All the President's Men.

Q: My husband insists that the actress who played Ally's mother on the Thanksgiving episode of Ally McBeal is the same woman who played Mrs. Keaton on Family Ties. Is he right? –Kim in Utica, Ky.

A: No. That was two-time Oscar nominee Jill Clayburgh on Ally; Meredith Baxter played Elyse Keaton on Ties.

Q: Did Alfred Molina (Ladies Man) previously play the soldier who dressed as a woman on *M*A*S*H*? –V. Boyer, Ranger, Texas.

A: The British-born Molina, 46, was never on *M*A*S*H*. Jamie Farr, 63, played Cpl. Max Klinger.

Q: Is it true that the father on The Wonder Years, Dan Lauria, died? –L.J. in Whitefish, Mont.

A: No, and you can see him in the new Showtime movie Common Ground, premiering Saturday, Jan. 29.

Culture Shock reflects on works of Manet, Twain

One was an artist, the other an author. But Edouard Manet and Mark Twain did share something in common: the creation of controversial yet influential masterpieces.

A new special, Culture Shock, looks back at two of art and literature's most controversial marvels in Born to Trouble: Adventures of Huckleberry Finn and The Shock of the Nude: Manet's Olympia. It airs Wednesday, Jan. 26, on PBS (check local listings).

Twain's Adventures of Huckleberry Finn was one of the first novels to cross the boundaries of race, class, censorship and culture.

In an effort to illustrate the injustice and absurdity of slavery and racism, Twain wrote a story in the vernacular involving an outcast youth who teams up with a runaway slave to flee Missouri.

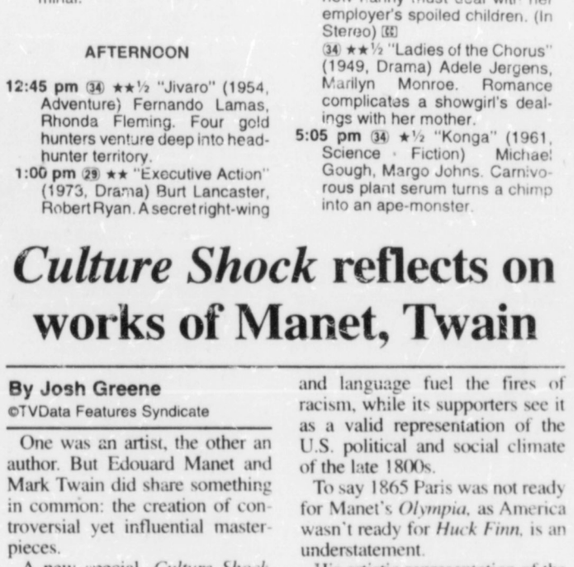
Opponents of the frequently banned book believe its content and language fuel the fires of racism, while its supporters see it as a valid representation of the U.S. political and social climate of the late 1800s.

To say 1865 Paris was not ready for Manet's Olympia, as America wasn't ready for Huck Finn, is an understatement.

His artistic representation of the human body eventually led to a change in French painting styles, but not before harsh criticism and outrage in the art world took its toll.

It wasn't so much what Manet created, but the means by which he covered the canvas. Moving away from the traditional art techniques of the times, Manet utilized bold brush strokes and simplified forms to represent a nude prostitute in a reclining position, boldly looking back at the viewer.

Even though Twain and Manet were both vilified for their works, they are still regarded as masters of their respective crafts and major influences on the art and literature community of today.



Controversial works by artist Edouard Manet (pictured) and author Mark Twain are revisited in Culture Shock, airing Wednesday on PBS (check local listings).

Q: Can you tell me what "four-and-core" means? I heard the term used in relation to the way the legs were made on a Stickley chair.

A: The five Stickley brothers were all involved in the furniture manufacturing business during the Arts and Crafts period, about 1900-1920. They made solid, unadorned Mission-style pieces but sometimes used different construction methods. L. & J.G. Stickley's company, owned by Leopold and John George, made a chair leg by locking four boards together around a square central core of wood. This construction method was termed "four-and-core." It was later used by other companies.

Q: I spent $1 at a Goodwill store for a 10-inch vase marked "Van Briggle" on the bottom. The other incised marks are "AA" within a rectangle and the number 9. The design on the vase starts at the bottom with daffodil bulbs. It continues up the vase with leaves, and ends at the top with daffodil flowers. The vase is maroon at the bottom, but fades to black toward the top. Is it worth more than $1?

A: Your vase was made by Van Briggle Pottery, which has worked in Colorado Springs, Colo., since 1901. The pottery's "Daffodil" design, No. 862, was created in 1911 by Anne Gregory Van Briggle (1868-1929). She was the widow of Artus Van Briggle (1869-1904), founder of the pottery. The two A's in the mark stand for the couple's first names. The "9" in the mark refers to a finisher who worked at the pottery in 1919-20. That is probably when your vase was made. The glaze on your vase is called "Deep Mulberry." That color was discontinued in 1946. Van Briggle is still making the Daffodil vase, but only in turquoise, lilac blue (purple) or dusty rose (pink). A new one costs about $55. Your old vase would sell for more than $600.

I hope you never placed your tongue on an ice-cold metal pipe when you were a kid. If you did, you probably remember how quickly your tongue stuck to the metal.

The same thing can happen to your dog if he spends much of his time outdoors in your yard and drinks water from a metal dish. Use a heavy crockery dish instead.

Should dogs wear boots in the winter? The answer is, why not? The Inuits in Alaska and Canada always put leather boots on their sled dogs. This was not so much for warmth, but to protect those delicate paws from being cut by ice or other materials that could lurk unseen under the snow.

If you like to run in the park with your dog in the winter, for example, this might be something you'd consider. Many large pet supply outfits have catalogs that feature these products. You can also talk to your vet about it.

Monthly Maintenance Calendar

We're well into the new year, and maintenance issues may already be piling up throughout your home. How will you keep up with furnace filter changes, regular appliance maintenance, or yard and garden work? A maintenance calendar might do the trick.

January is a good time to sort through all the tasks that need to be done, or that you would like to do, this year. With this in mind, put together a schedule to keep track and remind yourself of items you want to accomplish. A wall calendar, used in tandem with a maintenance notebook, is a good system because you can easily see reminders written on the calendar and mark them off in your notebook. A daily planner works, too.

Now, settle down in your favorite chair, open your notebook, and start scheduling tasks, month by month. Write down necessary maintenance and repairs first — removing heavy snow from the roof, for example — and add less critical tasks afterward.

Once done, hang your wall calendar where you'll easily see it, place your maintenance notebook nearby, and you're ready to go.

Furnace Emergency

Speaking of furnaces, a breakdown during the winter months can be miserable and dangerous. Here a few things to try, however, before calling a repairman.

First, check the following:

- Is there a general power failure? Try turning on lights on various circuits.
- Is the thermostat down or off? If so, adjust it.
- Is the system's emergency switch on? If not, turn it on.
- Is a fuse burned or a breaker tripped? Check the circuit box. Replace the burned fuse or reset the breaker.
- If the furnace has a pilot light, make sure it's lit.

If you still can't get the furnace working, you have a couple of options before picking up the phone. Check the oil supply level in oil-burning systems by dipping a long stick, marked in feet and inches, into the oil tank. In a warm-air system (oil- or gas-burning), turn off power to the furnace and check the fan belt on the furnace motor. If it has slipped, reset it; if it's broken, replace it.

If none of these actions work, it's time to call a professional.

New Horizons Still Offering Tuition Help

The New Horizons Program Special Populations Project, sponsored by Garrett Community College, has limited funding for tuition/books and child care/transportation from the Maryland State Department of Education, Career Technology Education Division. During the 2000 funding year this assistance will be made available to eligible program participants pursuing vocational training in credit CTE curricula.

Special populations eligible to receive this funding for Career Technology Education include: single parents, including single pregnant women; displaced homemakers; individuals from economically disadvantaged families, including foster children; individuals preparing for non-traditional training and employment; and individuals with barriers to educational achievement, including individuals with disabilities and individuals with limited-English proficiency.

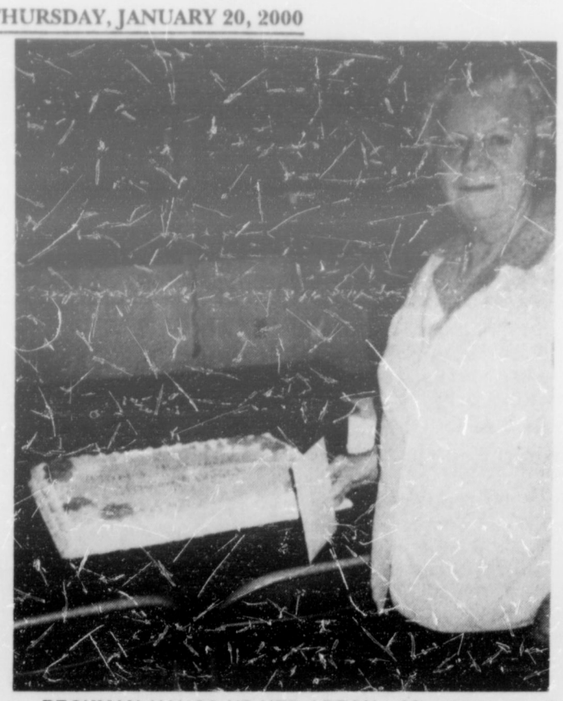
Interested persons may contact New Horizons between the hours of 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays at 301-387-3071 for more information or to schedule an appointment, or they may visit the New Horizons office at the McHenry campus of Garrett Community College in the Center for Community and Continuing Education, Room 302.

The New Horizons Program is funded by Garrett Community College and receives funding through grant money from Perkins III for tuition/books, and child care/transportation from Maryland State Department of Education, Division of Career Technology Education.

New Horizons Submits Mid-Year FY 2000 Report

The New Horizons Program of Garrett Community College recently submitted its mid-year report for fiscal year 2000. The program, which has been serving eligible participants since January of 1980, recently completed 20 years of program operation at GCC.

New Horizons, having undergone redesign for FY2000 because of budget cuts, now provides special services to single parents, including single pregnant women, displaced homemakers, individuals from economically disadvantaged families, including foster children, individuals preparing for non-traditional training and employment, and individuals with barriers to educational achievement, including those with disabilities and with limited-English proficiency. Services available for the eligible population include peer and career counseling, decision making, career testing, skills identification, pre-employment skills training, vocational skills training in both credit and non-credit courses, job awareness assistance, and service agency referrals.



BECKMAN HANGS UP HER APRON - After 18 years of service as a cook for the Community Action/Area Agency on Aging site at the Swanton Community Building, Louise Beckman is retiring. The Swanton resident has cooked lunch for her community's seniors each Monday and Tuesday since 1980, having volunteered her culinary skills for two years prior to being hired on a contractual basis. Her husband Irvin has been a dedicated volunteer at the site, helping to shovel snow, wash dishes, and perform many odd jobs to keep things running smoothly. Beckman has trained Diane O'Brien of Swanton to serve as her replacement behind the stove.

New Horizons provided program services for 24 individuals during the fall semester of FY2000. Eighteen program participants were enrolled in vocational education classes at Garrett Community College, with 16 students enrolling in credit courses and two enrolling in non-credit certified nursing assistant training at GCC.

New Horizons helped nine qualifying participants enrolled in Career Technology Programs at GCC meet training costs with tuition/book and child care/transportation assistance. Fourteen program participants qualified for full or partial financial aid through Pell Grants.

Persons interested in learning more about the New Horizons Program and eligibility requirements are encouraged to call New Horizons at 301-387-3071 Tuesday through Thursday, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The New Horizons Program is funded by Garrett Community College and receives funding through grant money from Perkins III for tuition/books, and child care/transportation from Maryland State Department of Education, Division of Career Technology Education.

Barge Sustains Major Damage In Tuesday Fire

A work barge being used on Deep Creek Lake as a diving platform sustained major damage as a result of an accidental fire Tuesday evening.

Volunteer firefighters from Deep Creek, Oakland, Deer Park, and Bittinger, along with the Southern Rescue Squad, were summoned by the Garrett County Office of Emergency Management at 9:44 p.m. when Beckman's Peninsula area residents thought a house or some other structure was on fire. It was quickly determined that the fire was on the barge, which was being used by workers to lay new sewer lines at the lake. The 16-by-25-foot craft was located about 300 yards offshore, and the workers had left the craft that afternoon. The barge is owned by Marion Hill Associates Inc.

According to a report from the Maryland State Fire Marshal's Office, damage was primarily to the equipment on board and was estimated to be $10,000. The cause of the blaze remains undetermined and still under investigation.

There were no injuries reported. Most units left the scene within about one hour.

AT LONG LAST, WORK HAS BEGUN — The long-anticipated renovation work at the historic Oakland train station got under way this week, despite frigid temperatures and blowing snow. Allegheny Restoration & Builders Inc. of Morgantown, W.Va., are taking out the false ceilings and have removed the old windows for shipping to restoration experts (note the boarded up areas). Pictured are Eddie and Omar Gonzalez of the Retro-Environmental Company from Sykesville as they work to remove asbestos. (Terry Marina is in the cab of the truck.) The $1 million project is scheduled to be completed in time for this year's Autumn Glory Festival and is being paid for through state and federal grants, as well as from donations from local private and corporate sources. A fund drive continues to help defray the costs and includes the selling of bricks that can be imprinted with names of donors or their loved ones. The bricks will be used to build a sidewalk that will begin at the station and end at the Garrett County Museum along Second Street. For more information on the bricks and/or on a special tax credit program for donors, persons may call the Oakland Town Hall at 301-334-2691.

BOE Technology Summit Focuses On Employment

Technology in the workplace increasingly demands upgrades in work skills. In order for today's students to succeed in the market place of tomorrow, education must keep pace with the growing demand for technological know-how in the business community.

This message was delivered by guest speaker Mark Snyder of MSA Consulting Group, Baltimore, to the educators and business leaders of Garrett County at the Winter Technology Summit, sponsored by the Garrett County Board of Education.

"I had heard Snyder speak before. He is dynamic and he has a message that we need to hear," said JoAnn Vent, supervisor of career and technology education in Garrett County. Vent said she invited Snyder to speak at the summit because she believed that Garrett County would benefit from the information he had to impart, which Vent described as "a real world picture."

With wiring in all classes and technology leadership of such teachers as Chuck Trautwein, Garrett County schools are pointed in the

GCC Extends Spring Semester Registration

Registration for spring semester classes at Garrett Community College has been extended through Tuesday, Feb. 1, from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., according to Deloris Edgar, director of records and registration. Students can register at the Student Assistance Center during these hours or call 301-387-3044 for course information.

The registration hours have been extended because of the recent inclement weather that necessitated the college's closure during the scheduled registration period.

Snowmobile Accident On Rt. 40 Takes Life Of Grantsville Youth

Jeremy Scott Wiles, 15, Grantsville, was killed Monday, Jan. 24, when the snowmobile he was operating struck a tractor trailer on Route 40, east of Pig's Ear Road.

Tfc. R.W. Cuthbertson, of the Maryland State Police, Barrack W, McHenry, reported that Gewaine Barron Durst, Salisbury, Pa., was operating a 1991 International tractor trailer eastbound on Route 40 at 3:25 p.m. when the accident occurred.

Reconstructionist Tfc. R.H. Sharp of the McHenry barrack participated in the investigation, which revealed that Wiles lost control of his snowmobile and struck the tractor trailer, the report said. Wiles was pronounced dead at the scene.

Grantsville VFD and Northern Rescue Squad responded to the accident.

Born July 31, 1984, in Preston County, W.Va., he was the son of Neil and Sandra (Armstrong) Phillips, with whom he resided, and Teddy T. and Tina Wiles, Terra Alta, W.Va.

He was a freshman at Northern High School.

In addition to his parents, he is survived by two sisters, Becky and Stacey, both at home; three stepsisters, Marlana, Taylor, and Jamilyn, all of Terra Alta; his grandparents, Betty and Henry Armstrong, Deer Park, Betty and Ken Phillips, Ellicott City, and Teddy Wiles Sr., Masontown, W.Va.; and a great-grandmother, Pearl Cohn, Kitzmiller.

Friends will be received at the Newman Funeral Home, Grantsville, from 7 to 9 p.m. today, Thursday, and from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m. on Friday. A service will be conducted at the funeral home on Saturday, Jan. 29, at 1 p.m., with the Rev. Theodore Uphold officiating. Interment will follow in the Addison (Pa.) Cemetery.

Pennsylvanian Business Relocating To Southern Garrett Industrial Park

C. Palmer Manufacturing Inc., an aluminum die cast manufacturer currently based in Westmoreland County, Pa., will be relocating to Garrett County, as announced by the Garrett County Board of County Commissioners this week.

The family-owned company, which has been in business for 53 years, will be moving into the former Buchman Optical facility at the Southern Garrett Industrial Park near Oakland. Phil Palmieri, owner and manager, is in the process of moving equipment to the Garrett County site and anticipates taking over the facility on a full-time basis by February 1. The business will operate as C. Palmer Die Casting Inc. in Garrett County.

"We are extremely pleased that Phil Palmieri and his family have selected Garrett County as their new business site," said Wendell Beitzel, commissioner chairman. "This is a family-owned business that has been in operation for three generations. The Palmieri family has close ties to the Deep Creek Lake area, so they are very much aware of what Garrett County has to offer."

Palmieri said he and his staff are excited about the move to Garrett County.

"Relocating our business is obviously a huge decision for us, but the potential rewards far outweigh the risks," he said. "I came to Deep Creek nearly every weekend as a kid and I love it here. We chose Garrett County mostly because of the people. They're friendly,

GCC, Our Town Theatre Link To Offer Expanded Student Courses

Through an agreement between Garrett Community College's theatre department and Our Town Theatre (OTT), students at GCC now have the opportunity to obtain hands-on theatre experience while earning college credit. The agreement was reached at the onset of this semester by Dr. Stephen Herman, college president; Ben Sincell, director of GCC's theatre department; and Jane Avery, artistic director of OTT.

"This arrangement benefits everyone," Avery said. "All theatre students need experience, and there's nothing like real theatre for that. These kids can get directly involved with a variety of productions in any area — acting, directing, designing — and then they will have that experience as they move on to a four-year school."

Sincell agreed, stating that "experience is the name of the game" in theatre, and at Our Town, where the facility is not state-of-the-art as of yet, young students will learn from the basics on up.

"Most large colleges have very high-tech theatre equipment," Avery said. "That sometimes leaves a little to be desired because, chances are, these students are not going to necessarily have the opportunity in the 'real world' to work with that kind of equipment. At Our Town, they will learn the art of lighting and sound and design, all at a

Grantsville Man Faces Felony Theft Charges

A Grantsville man has been charged in connection with a multi-state theft scheme that involved his alleged purchase and re-sale of a number of items of stolen equipment, according to the Garrett Bureau of Investigation.

Rodney Dwain Youmans, 41, faces four counts of felony theft after investigators determined that he allegedly dealt in property reportedly stolen by Richard Eugene Beal, who was arrested last week. Youmans, who was released following the serving of a criminal summons, faces the possibility of a maximum penalty of 60 years in prison and a maximum fine of $4,000.

GBI detectives recovered a pair of Stihl chain saws and a Mo Power 5,000 watt generator from Youmans on January 7. Valued at nearly $400 apiece, the chain saws had been stolen from the Golden Rule Home Center in Hyndman, Pa., and the $740 generator had been stolen from

DNR Vehicle Stolen; Suspect Killed In Crash In Cumberland

Maryland State Police continue investigating the theft of a state vehicle Tuesday, Jan. 24, that led to the death of one of the suspects in the crash of the stolen vehicle in Cumberland. Police reported the suspect was attempting to escape apprehension at the time of the accident.

The deceased suspect, identified as Gary S. Wood, 46, Baltimore, was pronounced dead Tuesday afternoon at Memorial Hospital, Cumberland.

Facing charges of auto theft and possession of drug paraphernalia is Amber A. Asimenios, 39, Baltimore. She was taken to Memorial Hospital for treatment of non-life threatening injuries, according to a police department report.

The vehicle theft occurred shortly before 11:30 a.m., Tuesday. Reportedly, a Department of Natural Resources employee parked his agency pickup truck, a 1989 Chevrolet, at a gas station/convenience store at Exit 22 of I-68 near Grantsville. When he left the store a short time later, he said he saw the man and woman, later identified as the suspects, leaving the parking lot in his truck.

The victim called the state police at the McHenry barrack, who broadcast a lookout for the truck, which was last seen headed east on I-68.

Minutes later, Cpl. Kenneth Fochtman of the Cumberland barrack was notified that troopers at the Finzel scale house had just seen the truck passing their location. Cpl. Fochtman spotted the truck eastbound on I-68 at Winchester Road, and after activating the lights and siren on his marked patrol car, attempted to stop the stolen vehicle, the police report stated.

The driver of the stolen truck allegedly accelerated to speeds up to 90 mph and began driving in a "dangerous and erratic" manner, weaving in and out of traf-

Commissioners Will Not Sign Union Resolution

The Garrett County commissioners this week reiterated their stance of not signing a resolution to recognize collective bargaining. Jim Bestpitch, spokesperson for AFSCME (the bargaining organization utilized by employees of the Garrett County Roads Department), asked the commissioners to agree to sign such a resolution, having asked them to do so last year as well.

"I can't help but quote that country song — 'What part of no don't you understand?'" said Wendell Beitzel, commissioner chairman. The commissioners did not agree to sign the resolution last year, and again stated Tuesday that they were not interested in signing.

"This action would take away management's authority. You're asking us to give up our tools in the contract process, and we don't want to do that," Beitzel said.

Deputies' Workload Still Expanding; Staffing Levels, Salaries Remain Low

The Garrett County Sheriff's Office has noted a marked increase in its calls for assistance over the past year, with an overall 10 percent increase in complaints handled by sheriff's deputies from 1998 to 1999, and a 16 percent increase in the number of driving while intoxicated (DWI) arrests over the past year.

The increasing responsibilities of the sheriff's office are being handled by a staff of nine patrol deputies, a number unchanged for the last five years. The last addition to the department's staff was made in 1995, when one patrol deputy position was added to augment the eight positions in existence at that time. The eight patrol deputies of 1992 handled 5,781 assignments, while the nine patrol deputies of 1999 handled 9,878 assignments — an increase of 42 percent.

Garrett County's deputies, charged with protecting nearly 30,000 county citizens residing across 668 square miles, remain the lowest paid county deputies in the state, with an entry salary of $22,265. Salary for a career deputy here tops out at $32,981, also the lowest in Maryland. Rural Worcester County, which has a population of 30,000 living within its 500 square miles, pays new deputies $26,224, while offering a maximum obtainable salary of $44,673.

In its role as a full service law enforcement and public safety agency, the Dangers Of Thin Ice Explained By DNR Office

While Deep Creek Lake and other local bodies of water are mostly frozen at the present time, the Department of Natural Resources warns persons to be extra cautious about traversing ice-covered lakes and ponds.

"Although the lake may be frozen as thick as eight inches in some areas, ice thickness can vary widely," a DNR spokesperson said. "Stream run-off, sunlight, snow cover, roadway run-off, springs, fluctuations in the level of water, and wildlife activity can all contribute to ice deterioration."

Ice fishing and cross-country skiing are popular winter activities on Deep Creek Lake, and the DNR advises fishermen and skiers to be aware that snow cover can hide unsafe ice.

"Persons should be particularly careful around bridges, where salt and abrasives run-off can weaken ice," the spokesperson said.

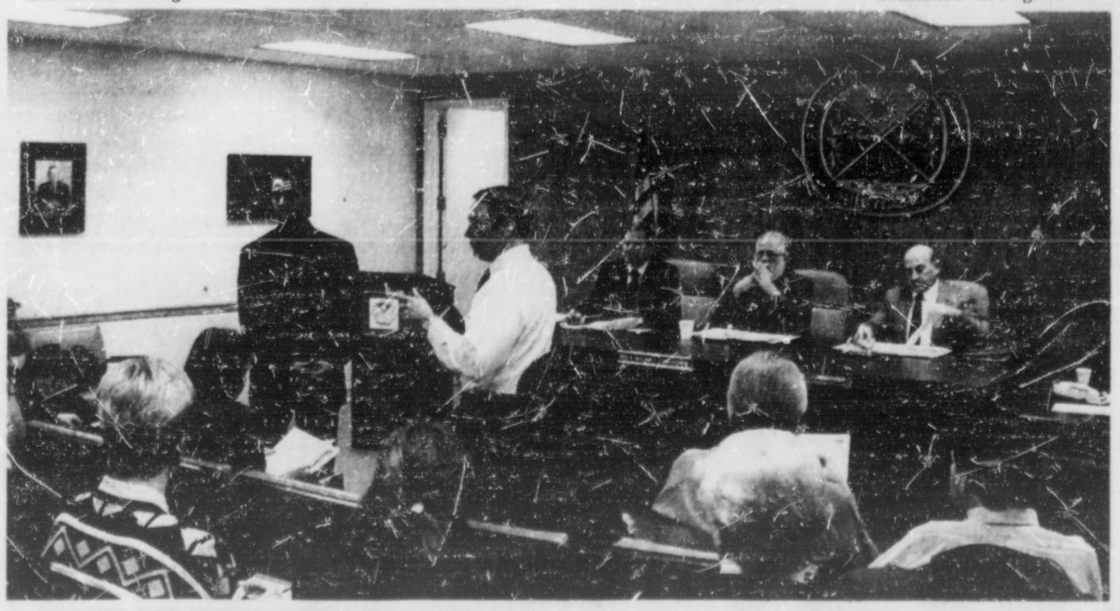
GCC AND OTT TIE THE KNOT — A collaborative effort between Garrett Community College and Our Town Theatre has resulted in a partnership that will enhance the college's theatre department, as well as the operations of the community stage. "Experience is the name of the game," said Ben Sincell, head of the GCC theatre department and the technical director at OTT. "Now students can get actual hands-on experience at a real theatre, whether they want to act, direct, design, or light — whatever they want to do — and get college credits for it." See story. Pictured left to right at the agreement signing are Stephen Herman, president of GCC; Jane Avery, artistic director and proprietor of OTT; and Sincell.



ANOTHER NEW BUSINESS WELCOMED — More good news came from the Garrett County Economic Development Department this week, as the announcement was made Tuesday that C. Palmer Manufacturing Inc., an aluminum die cast manufacturer currently based in nearby Pennsylvania, is relocating to the Southern Garrett Industrial Park. The new company, headed by Phil Palmieri (pictured standing at left), will hire as many as 30 local people in the near future. Commissioner chairman Wendell Beitzel introduced Palmieri at the county staff meeting Tuesday. Jim Hinebaugh, director of the economic development office, is pictured standing at right as he explains the new company to the county leaders. See story. Pictured seated left to right are Commissioners Beitzel, Fred Holliday, and Ernie Gregg.

Garrett CC Notes Fall Semester Enrollment Rise

Garrett Community College ranks third among Maryland's 20 community colleges in its enrollment figure percentage increase from the fall 1998 semester to the fall 1999 semester, according to the Maryland Higher Education Commission (MHEC).

Nine of the state's 20 community colleges showed an enrollment increase, with Montgomery-Takoma Park leading the list with a 4.2 percent increase and Worcester-Wicomico being second with a 3.9 percent increase, according to the MHEC information. GCC's 3.5 percent increase placed the local college third, while its student headcount was 686.

Among colleges showing a decrease in enrollment were Allegany College of Maryland with a 5.1 percent decrease and Hagerstown Community College with an 11.3 percent decrease.

Oakland Man Allegedly Fires Handgun At Car

An Oakland man was arrested Friday evening after he allegedly fired two shots at an occupied vehicle outside his Crellin Mine Road residence, according to the Garrett County Sheriff's Office.

John Glenn Arnold, 37, allegedly fired the shots at 6 p.m. in the direction of the vehicle, which was on the roadway. The vehicle was occupied by an adult, Patrick Newman, and a juvenile. Arnold reportedly told deputies that he had fired off a pair of powder charges from a black powder revolver, and that no bullets were used.

Arnold is charged with two counts each of first degree assault, second degree assault, and reckless endangerment. As of this morning he remained held in the Garrett County Detention Center on a $150,000 bond.

Chamber Tourism Promotion Set To Target Baltimore

The Garrett County Chamber of Commerce has slated a major promotion of the area's winter vacation activities for this Saturday, Jan. 29, at the Wisp Resort. The promotional package will include a live remote radio broadcast from upstairs at the McHenry House from noon to 2 p.m. that will feature Baltimore radio station WQSR-FM morning show celebrities Steve Rouse and sports announcer Tom Davis.

WQSR is coming to the county as part of a new marketing initiative by the chamber in promoting winter vacation activities. The promotional package negotiated by the chamber includes a full week of radio spots announcing the event and publicizing local businesses. This will be followed by an additional week of publicity as winners are named on the Baltimore station for donated Garrett County vacations and prizes, including a grand prize of a weeklong stay in the county, with restaurants and other amenities. In all, Garrett County is expected to be mentioned close to 100 times by the radio station.

Major resort areas have long recognized the benefits of bringing in the media for live remotes, according to Ken Wishnick, chamber president. "Remotes generate a great deal of excitement among listeners," he said. "People hear testimonials by the DJs as to how much fun they are having and want to experience it for themselves."

A 10-member broadcast team from the radio station will arrive from Baltimore Friday evening to prepare for the remote. Accommodations are being donated by Karen Myers of A&A/Long and Foster Rentals, and Doug McClive will be hosting the group for dinner at his McHenry restaurant.

Plans are being made to attract a Pittsburgh radio station for a similar promotion in the near future, according to Wishnick. "We need to increase our marketing in our core target areas, and this is a powerful way to do it," he stated.

Diane Miller of the Chamber of Commerce is serving as coordinator for this special event. Persons seeking additional information may contact Miller at 301-387-4386.

Correction Noted To Transportation Budget Report

A story that appeared in The Republican last week incorrectly noted the Maryland transportation budget package submitted by Governor Parris Glendening on Wednesday as a state record $8 million. The correct figure should have read a state record $8 billion transportation package, which includes $600,000 set aside for a preliminary study into the feasibility of a new north/south interstate highway in western Maryland.

It's Time To Pre-Register For Deep Creek Dunk

Coordinators of the second annual Maryland State Police Deep Creek Dunk said they expect this year's event to make an even bigger splash than last year's, with over 200 dunkers expected to participate in the fund-raiser for Special Olympics Maryland.

The ice-breaking plunge is scheduled for Saturday, Feb. 26, at 2 p.m., behind Uno's Restaurant and bar, where dunkers will be treated to lunch and given a free sweatshirt prior to splash-off.

Participants must collect a minimum of $50 in pledges. Internet users are invited to register on line at www.somd.org. Information brochures and registration forms are available at Uno Restaurant, Wisp Ski Resort, 104.5 WKHJ Radio, A & A Long & Foster Realtors, the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce, the Grantsville and Oakland offices of The Republican, and the McHenry barrack of the state police.

SHE CAME AROUND THE MOUNTAIN, AGAIN - Granny D (Doris Haddock) made a return visit to Garrett County last week after her trip to New Hampshire for a state celebration. She was picking up where she left off. In well-below-freezing temperatures and heavy snow, she was back on the road making her way down Route 40 through Grantsville and on into Cumberland, where she celebrated her 90th birthday this past Monday complete with a cake and interview by Good Morning, America. Known around the world for her courageous walk to Washington D.C., Granny D was tracked down in Grantsville by the BBC (British Broadcasting Corporation). In the photo at left, seated in the office of The Republican in the Grantsville Plaza, Granny fielded questions from a BBC reporter. "Soft money in campaigning is the cancer on our society," she stated, adding that when she gets to Washington she is going to ask all the legislators to sing her 25-word pledge. "It's very simple: I pledge my vote and full support to ban soft money — the $100,000 contributions to state and federal races that undermine our democracy." Would she consider running for office? "What, at my age?" she responded with a laugh. In the photo above, Granny meets with County Commissioner Fred Holliday, left, and Grantsville mayor Gerry Beachy. Holliday presented her with a Garrett County pin to wear on her vest with her other mementos. Holliday then walked for a while with Granny. "She is quite a woman. She is really com-mitted to her cause, and it's a good one,' said Holliday. In the photo below, Keysers Ridge resident Marcia Simmers, who is in the massage therapy program at Garrett Community College, on hearing that Granny would be stopping in The Republican office in Grantsville, volunteered to give Granny and her friends a massage. "I just thought it would help get her blood circulating in this cold weather and help relax her tired muscles. It was really worth it to see the smile on her face when I finished," Simmers said.

First Rabies Case Noted In County

A raccoon killed by a homeowner along Gorman Road earlier this month has tested positive for the rabies virus, according to Environmental Health Services of the Garrett County Health Department. The confirmation by the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene laboratory marked county's first rabies case of 2000.

The raccoon was shot on Monday, Jan. 10, after it was discovered inside a dog house. The dog that was tied to the dog house did not have a current rabies vaccination, and Environmental Health officials gave the owner the option of euthanasia or placing the dog in a strict six-month, double cage quarantine. The owner decided to have the dog euthanized rather than risk rabies exposure to his family.

"This case emphasizes the need to keep your pets' vaccinations up to date," an Environmental Health spokesperson said. "The need to euthanize pets can be a traumatic event, and can be avoided by keeping rabies vaccinations current."

The homeowner used precautions so that there was no human exposure to the virus, the spokesperson continued. Pets should not be handled for at least two hours after contact with a wild animal, because the rabies virus is transmitted through the saliva of the infected animal and can survive on the fur coat of a pet for up to two hours after a confrontation. Persons should wear protective gloves if a pet must be handled within the first two hours.

Pet owners should check vaccination records to ensure they are up-to-date. Maryland law requires that cats, dogs, and ferrets over 4 months old be vaccinated against rabies.

Three Oakland Residents Face Drug Charges

Two men and one woman, all Oakland residents, were arrested at a Steyer Mine Road residence last night by the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force. The trio face a variety of drug charges following their 9 p.m. arrest, according to Garrett County Sheriff Dick Sanders.

Paul R. Sigley, 25, Donna L. Moats, 21, and Michael A. Crosby, 34, were at the residence when Garrett County sheriff's deputies arrived to serve a Preston County, W.Va., arrest warrant on Sigley. Deputies reported observing marijuana and drug paraphernalia inside the residence at the time they were making that arrest. This led the Task Force to obtain a search and seizure warrant for the residence, and the resulting search uncovered those items as well as a quantity of crack cocaine and prescription pills.

Each member of the trio, Sigley, Moats, and Crosby, were charged with possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia. Sigley faces additional charges of possession of crack cocaine, possession of crack cocaine with the intent to distribute, and maintaining a common nuisance. DeWitt posted a $500 bond and was released from jail this morning, while the status of Sigley and Crosby has not been determined as of this writing.

Several New Officers Elected By GC Chamber Of Commerce Board

The Garrett County Chamber of Commerce board of directors held a mid-term election last week following a rewrite of the organization's bylaws. Jerry Geisler was elected chairman, Karen Myers was elected first vice-chairman, and Leonard Eiswert was elected second vice-chairman. Jonathan Kessler, secretary, and Jim Murray, treasurer, retained their respective posts because their positions were unchanged.

The new board named Ken Wishnick, the chamber's current executive director, to also serve as president of the organization, replacing David Moe in that capacity. As president and chief executive officer, Wishnick will be the chamber's designated representative to other organizations, boards, and committees, serving the board of directors on a contractual basis. Moe will remain on the chamber's board of directors and will serve as chairman of its legislative affairs committee.

"The chamber has matured to the point where we need to empower staff to make more of the day-to-day decisions," Geisler said. "We are pleased to have someone of Mr. Wishnick's caliber to lead our organization as president." Geisler also noted the board's gratitude to Moe, who served as the chamber's president before its merger with the Garrett County Promotion Council and as president of the newly formed organization. "The current organization owes much to Dave's dedication and hard work in leading the chamber through the transition," he added.

"The chamber has been involved in many successful activities," said Wishnick, "and I'm looking forward to serving in an enhanced role that will include further expanding our service and marketing programs."

Wishnick noted that the chamber has been active on several fronts in recent months, introducing a new low rate credit card processing program, and a western Maryland strategic tourism plan in cooperation with Allegany County, a brown bag seminar series, a monthly mailer, and a redesigned chamber web site. The chamber hosted what Wishnick said was "the most successful Autumn Glory in its history" this past October, and over the course of 1999 welcomed over 33,000 guests at the Visitors Center in McHenry.

The Chamber of Commerce is also in the midst of a membership drive that has added over 70 new businesses in the last few months, and is preparing for the upcoming publication of the its first Community Profile and Membership Directory.

Local Student Earns Lead In Mozart Opera

Mozart's opera Marriage of Figaro is being presented next week at West Virginia University's Creative Arts Center, and playing one of the lead roles is Oakland resident David Peterson, who is a junior vocal performance major at WVU.

Peterson, who attends the university on a full tuition scholarship, will be playing the role of Count Almaviva in the opera, which will be performed Feb. 3, 4, and 5 at 7:30 p.m. in the Falbo (main stage) Theatre of the CAC.

A 1997 graduate of Southern High School, Peterson has been performing in plays, musicals, and operas since the age of 13 when he first appeared as Amahl in a Garrett Choral Society production of Amahl and the Night Visitors. In other Garrett Choral Society presentations, he played the role of Winthrop in The Music Man and one of the Von Trapp children in The Sound of Music. He portrayed John the Baptist in the Ecumenical Youth Ministry's production of Godspell and the Elvis character in Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat, also produced by the EYM. He also performed in a number of stage productions while a student at Southern High School.

Peterson, who is a son of Tom and Susan Peterson, Oakland, has been singing with the opera theatre of WVU for several seasons; however, this is his first opportunity in a lead role.

Tickets for the performances may be obtained by calling 304-293-3020 from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Detectives Seek Leads In Loch Lynn Truck Theft

The Garrett Bureau of Investigation is asking the public for assistance in a burglary and motor vehicle theft that occurred earlier this month in Loch Lynn.

Nu-Finish/Action Towing, located along Maryland Highway, was broken into the night of Monday, Jan. 10, according to investigators. A 1992 Ford rollback towing truck, with a black cab and an 18-foot chrome bed, was taken from the garage. "Action Towing" was stenciled on both doors.

Persons with information are asked to call the GBI at 301-334-1909 or 301-334-1911.

ANNUAL ANNAPOLIS BREAKFAST HELD — As has become tradition over the past several years, Garrett County government officials gathered together with their state colleagues in Annapolis last week for the annual legislative breakfast. Hosted by the Garrett County Economic Development Corporation, in conjunction with the county commissioners, the event took place at the Loews Hotel in the state's capital. Discussion centered on the enhancement of economic development, to be accomplished through continued cooperation between the state and local governments. Seated at the table, left to right, are Speaker of the House Casper Taylor, Frances Glendening, Delegate George Edwards, and Senator John Hafer. Speaking at the podium is Lt. Gov. Kathleen Kennedy Townsend. All three Garrett County commissioners attended the event, as well as the county administrator. Members of the county chamber of commerce were also in attendance, among others. Photo provided by David Moe.

Coffee House Re-Slated At OTT Saturday

The coffee house event at Our Town Theatre that was canceled last weekend has been rescheduled for Saturday, Jan. 29, from 7 until 11 p.m.

Pandora's Box, which was slated to perform last Saturday, will not be performing this weekend, but music will be provided by Brian Rollman and his band, according to a theatre spokesperson.

Admission to the event is $2 per person, and all teenagers are invited.

Over 165 Trees Chipped In Recycling Effort

The sixth annual Christmas tree recycling event, hosted by Garrett County Office of Solid Waste and Recycling, was held on Saturday, Jan. 15. This year Randy Sisler and his crew from Oakland Timberjax Tree Service and Nikki Brown from the solid waste and recycling office started the day in the southern end of the county. From 9:30 a.m. until noon, 71 trees were chipped at the Southern Garrett County High School athletic field parking lot. All of the mulch was returned to participants in the event.

In the afternoon, the chipper was moved to the northern end of the county, where two schoolchildren helped chip the trees and earned several service learning hours. From 1:30 to 4 p.m. 45 trees were chipped at the Grantsville Municipal Building parking lot. All of this mulch was left at the site to be used in the spring at the town park.

In addition to these trees received at the recycling event, 51 trees have been delivered to the landfill thus far, Brown reported. These trees will also be chipped and recycled. The mulch will be applied to the landfill roads.

Christmas trees delivered by Garrett County residents will continue to be accepted free of charge (municipalities delivering loads of trees will be charged $20 per ton) at the main landfill along Oakland-Sang Run Road through the end of January. No trees will be accepted at any of the Garrett County refuse collection sites, Southern High School, or the Grantsville Municipal Building.

The office of solid waste and recycling staff expressed thanks to all Garrett County residents who delivered trees during the recycling event, as well as Randy Sisler of Oakland Timberjax Tree Service, Southern Garrett County High School, Mayor Gerry Beachy, and the town of Grantsville.

For more information concerning the recycling of Christmas trees or any other recycling issue, persons may call the office of solid waste and recycling at 301-387-0322 or e-mail gcsw@gcnet.net.

After-School Plan To Be Discussed By DSS, Citizens

A meeting to gather input on the development of a comprehensive after-school plan for Garrett County has been slated for Tuesday, Feb. 8, at 2 p.m., at the Department of Social Services office in Oakland. All interested citizens may attend. Participants will receive information on what after-school programs currently exist in the county and will be invited to share ideas on promoting child safety and development during the hours when they are often left unsupervised.

"Research shows us that children and adolescents are more likely to engage in high-risk behavior between the hours of 3:30 and 7 p.m. than at any other time during the week," said Bob Stephens, director of the Garrett County Partnership for Children and Families. "It is critical that we make sure children are safe at these times, and we also should make sure other needs are being met like tutoring, recreation, and character development."

The after-school planning process that will be utilized at the meeting will allow participants the opportunity to examine the types of structured recreation, tutoring, and child care programs that are available after school and on weekends. The group will also examine and study the locations of the programs.

The plan will be used to help allocate resources and secure funds to support and develop quality after-school programs. "It is important for the group to recognize the significance of informal and private efforts in providing structured activities for our children and youth," stated Duane Yoder, a member of the Partnership. "We need to make sure our plan builds on and around proven volunteer programs like Scouts, 4-H, and church youth groups."

The Department of Social Services is located at 12578 Garrett Highway. Persons interested in more information on the after-school planning process are encouraged to attend the meeting or call the Partnership for Children and Families at 301-334-1189.

Citizens Help Police Locate Missing Juvenile

A search in severe winter weather ended when a missing juvenile, who had left his home nearly five hours beforehand to try and find his lost puppy, was located by a pair of citizens who had volunteered their assistance.

John and Roger Evans, who had used a four-wheeler to travel nearly two miles into a set of woods in the area of the juvenile's Tichinel Lane residence, found the 15-year-old handicapped youth at approximately 7:30 p.m. The Evans's came upon the youth after a Garrett County bloodhound unit had tracked him to a four-wheeler path in the woods.

The juvenile was suffering from hypothermia and frostbite, and was transported by the Southern Rescue Squad to Garrett Memorial Hospital, where he was admitted for treatment and observation.

The search involved a number of citizen volunteers and public safety agencies, including the sheriff's office and rescue squad, the Department of Natural Resources, Maryland State Police helicopter Trooper 5, the Kitzmiller Volunteer Fire Department, and the Elk Garden (W.Va.) Rescue Squad.

Just Call Us...

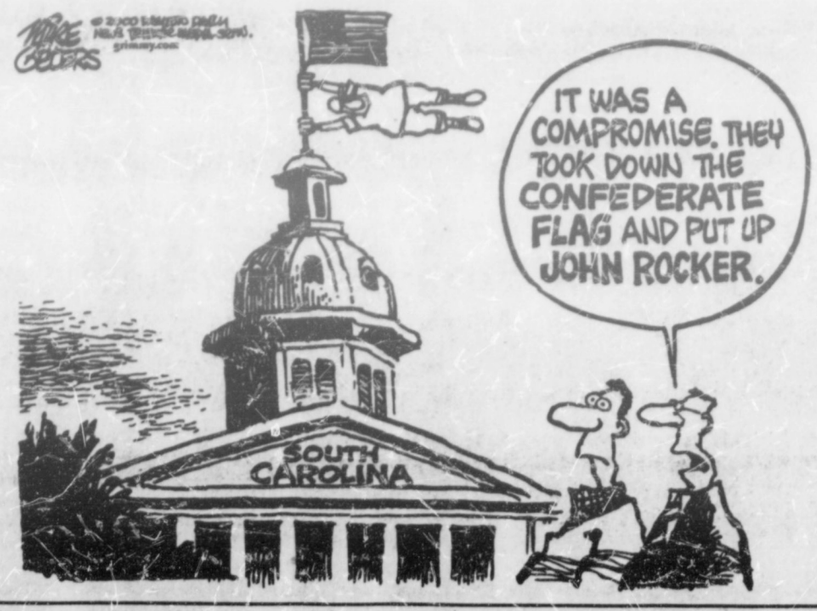
A local gentleman who must be on oxygen because of a chronic lung disease drove himself a number of miles to the local Motor Vehicle Administration branch office at Browning's Foodland in Oakland on Tuesday. He was surprised and disappointed to discover that the doors were locked. Of course, even in normal times the office is open for only two relatively small windows of time each week.

There was at least one crisis situation involving a local elementary school child on Tuesday. Handling emergencies that involve this child, and many others in the county, includes contacting the local Department of Social Services office. But the telephone at that office was not answered, because that office was also shut down. The professional intervention that was desperately needed for this child was simply unavailable.

Undoubtedly there were many more similar incidents that occurred Tuesday in Garrett and Allegany counties after Governor Glendening ordered all state offices closed because it was snowing so hard in his back yard. There was no telephone call that we know of from his staff to anyone in Garrett County to find out what the conditions were here before making such a blanket order. Even a quick check of the national weather radar map on television or the Internet would have clearly shown that the far western part of the state was receiving only minimal effects from the "nor'easter" that was hammering eastern and central Maryland.

This incident is emblematical of how unaware Annapolis is of western Maryland and what goes on here. If it's good for the Baltimore area, then it surely must be good for far western and eastern Maryland. And we are not blaming just Governor Glendening; it's been this way since the first pioneers came to settle in what is now Garrett County. But in the present day of incredible communications technology, there is no excuse for continuance of such ignorance.

The weather prognosticators say we could have another such storm late Sunday. If we do, please, Governor Glendening, just give us a call before you shut down every state office again. We're in the book.



Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

The Garrett County Humane Society Inc. is very grateful to all who donated to our Christmas for the Animals Program coordinated by our youngest member, Nicola Swiger. Almost every item a pet could use and need was donated.

The very generous monetary gifts will go to feed and shelter the many needy animals in this county and also for spay/neuter.

Nicola and her friend worked hard toward this project, and we hope next year we will have more younger people participating. Anyone caring to join the Humane Society and our fight against animal abuse can call 301-746-5725, 301-334-2401, 301-334-8274, or 301-334-1385. Volunteers are also needed at our local shelter.

We also appreciate the calls reporting abuse. We cannot know about abuse unless it is reported. Names are not revealed unless one wishes to do so.

Also, at this time we are in much need of donations toward our spay/neuter program and sufficient shelters for many animals living in boxes with inch cracks between boards and no bedding.

Article 27 — the annotated law of Maryland requires pet owners to provide sufficient food, water, shelter, veterinarian care, air, and space. Many have air—very cold—or many cats and dogs are found frozen and starved.

The Garrett County Humane Society members care for animals. Please help us!

Letter to the Editor:

With campaign 2000 here, we are beginning to hear "negative ads" from both political camps. Usually both swear they won't use them, but both generally do. I'm wondering why this happens, I came to the conclusion that it is the way most of us deal with one another.

We claim to not like those ads; we would prefer for candidates to talk about what they would do and not what the opponent hasn't done.

It seems that we all have become so cynical about everything that we tend to dwell on the negative. The media seems to prefer the bad in society as opposed to the good, as it sells product. And more importantly, we do the same every day with our interaction with others.

We tend to think the person who wants a new bypass or favors a Wal-Mart has some ulterior motive, something to gain. Or the group that opposes it just wants to increase sales downtown. Has it become so far-fetched that someone expresses his opinion because he really believes in something? Maybe he believes that we must plan for the future and face the reality of growth, or maybe he believes that we have a great downtown that may not survive the inevitable growth along the bypass route or a superstore.

Worse, it seems, is the tendency to insult, berate, or accuse others who believe differently, rather than acknowledging that they may just honestly disagree.

Back to my opening, maybe the political candidates are just acting as we do. Negativity gets attention and votes. "Nice guys finish last" may not be just an old saying.

I hope not. Garrett County is such a wonderful place to live and work. It should also be a place to openly disagree without such animosity and bitterness that seems to accompany so many debates about our future.

To the Editor:

No one doubts the high cost of health care today. It seems everyone is trying to find ways to cut the cost of it. I would like to suggest one way which I see practiced at a nearby Maryland hospital.

At this particular hospital, any patient over the age of 18 who is admitted is asked (and a legal document is signed) if he wants to be "a code" or not. There is no question in the medical staff's minds as to whether to perform basic or advanced life support on a patient. The admitting doctor is responsible for having this determined at the time of admission.

My father was "coded," but never wanted to be. He always said that if his heart stopped beating, then so be it. He didn't want to be "shocked back to life," or to be put on a ventilator; however, he was "coded," though he did not live through it. Why? you may ask. It was because he was never approached by his doctor regarding this issue.

I am an RN and I can't tell you the number of times I've seen patients "coded," only to hear their relatives state later that the patient never wanted to be. Hospitals have a Patient's Bill of Rights ... and whether they (patients) want advanced life support should be a right that they can refuse. We allow women to abort unborn babies (who have no say), yet we won't allow a patient the right to decide whether he wants to die naturally or not.

Millions, or perhaps billions, of dollars are spent on keeping people from doing what is only a part of living: dying. I think the medical providers think they can cheat death, but I say what Shakespeare states: "Death will come when it will come." The Bible states there is "a time to die."

I know some local doctors ask their patients whether or not they want advanced life support. I am thankful to those who do, but far too many do not. I hope that this would be an issue that is addressed locally. I've heard many nurses say, "I want "no code" tattooed on my chest! That should tell one something. This issue should be a personal one, but one made by the patient and not by a doctor or hospital policy.

Sincerely,
Norma J. Rodeheaver

The Garrett County Board of Education is wasting our tax money by having an alternative school.

It is a waste of money to utilize a school bus for two or three students to attend this school. It is also very unsafe in the winter because of the condition of the roads.

My daughter was blamed for something that happened at the high school she attends. Since she was expelled from school, she now attends the alternative school held at Southern High School. The principal at the high school told my daughter that she is not allowed to talk to her friends.

She leaves our house on a regular school bus, goes to Northern, gets off the bus, and then goes into the office where she waits for the alternative school bus.

The principal at Northern will not let her talk to her friends, or anybody. We live in the United States of America, the land of freedom and opportunity — at least it is supposed to be. My daughter should have the freedom to talk to whom she wants and the opportunity to attend school like everyone else.

My daughter arrives at the alternative school around 9:30, where she does her work for 2 of her 4 classes. Then she eats lunch. However, instead of going to the cafeteria like the other children, she must stay in the classroom and have her food brought to her. After lunch, she finishes her classes and then leaves at approximately 2:30 when she returns to Northern High School to once again catch another bus to bring her home.

Our children should not be treated like they are prisoners. The alternative school is more like a jail than a school.

We have five elected board members whom we elect when we vote. One elected school board member called my house and said that my daughter is guilty before we had a hearing. Is this what we call justice in Garrett County?

I called the Sheriff's Dept. They said the Board of Ed. has more power and authority they do. How can this be possible?

We send our children to school to learn, not to be harassed by principals and teachers. The Internet should be removed from our public schools.

I think the parents in Garrett County should take up for their children when they are blamed for something instead of always believing administrators and teachers.

Before Garrett County had the elected school board, the school system was much better. The elected board members think they are a judge and a jury.

Thank you for reading my letter.

To the Editor:

Imagine for a moment a small community, such as Swanton or possibly Loch Lynn. Now think about where your children are as you read this. I, along with my family, live here in Bristol, Ohio, a town no larger than either of the two aforementioned. While the community of Garrett County tries to come to terms with a Wal-Mart, and a proposed bypass, we are still grieving the loss of children in our little town.

In August a 14-year old girl commits suicide, despondent over the recent break up with her boyfriend. In December, three days before Christmas break, an 8-year-old boy hangs himself. Whether accidental or deliberate, the speculation remains. He was the subject of ridicule and torment, from what I have heard.

Neither of these children had a chance at life. Neither of these children turned to adulthood. I wonder as I sit here typing this if these two travesties could have been avoided somehow. For the families left behind wondering, "whatif?" unfortunately it's too late. For your family, it's not.

Recently, I read where some local teenagers reportedly stole some cars and created some havoc in your community. For a small community this is headline news. This was bad, yet thank goodness that you as adults can reach out to these children before it's too late. Maybe it's time for the residents of this county to stop fighting inevitable change, and concentrate more on the future of our children. I really don't feel that an addition of a Wal-Mart or a bypass through the county will lead to a premature death of a child. Maybe the focus of this community should be more toward the children.

It would be more beneficial to our children if we could instead concentrate on a place for our youth. A community center with chaperoned activities has to be better than gatherings in Foodland's parking lot on weekend nights. A social hall has to be more exciting (and more legal) than stealing cars or underage drinking. I hope that the people in the county who love to be heard and argue the points of bypasses and Wal-Mart openings will use their respective talents to better our children, instead of using their idle time to worry about a proverbial "change of scenery."

As I look forward to receiving my copy of The Republican each week, I anxiously await the week when the front page headline says "Recreational center for our children opens today." Will the people of this county step up? As the residents of our community can tell you, tomorrow may be too late. Speak loudly, speak clearly, the monies are available. You as residents of the county pay the taxes. Against the voice of the powers that be in the local government, the funds are there and they can be allocated. So use your voice that rings loudly in favor of, or against, the Wal-Marts and bypasses, and do it for the children. After all, isn't that our purpose in life — to make our children's life a little better than ours? Now that you have answered this question most likely "yes," be proactive, instead of reactive. Trust me when I say you will be better off for it, and the children have a better chance of maturing into adulthood.

Well, I hope that all is well and you will begin the steps of making your county and respective towns work for you. Begin this endeavor with the motto of If it's meant to be, it's up to me.

To the Editor:

An open letter to those who call themselves hunters and sportsmen:

Enough time has passed that I can calmly address this horror that occurred during the three-day bear hunting season in the state of Pennsylvania Nov. 22-24.

It is inconceivable how so few have managed to unite and enrage a community over the slaughter of a sow and her four cubs, not to mention the fact that you "waited" outside a well-known baited area to take your shot! You didn't hunt the bear, you ambushed them! The last time I saw the sow and her four cubs alive was November 19. She came to the campground to feed with her 11-month-old cubs. I watched the beauty of these wild animals for seven months. I watched as she taught her young ones the skills of survival in the wild. And, yes, I became very attached to them. As

CANDLEMAS AND GROUND HOG DAY

Sometime during the Reformation or the Puritan era that followed it, February 2 became Ground Hog Day. In the Catholic life, February 2 was, and remains to the present day, Candlemas, a little feast of Christmas, finally closing the celebrations which began with Advent two months earlier.

I can trace the development of Candlemas up to a certain point and the development of Ground Hog Day from a certain point. There remains a gap in my historical research in determining how the holy day yielded to the secular holiday. What links the two are the weather prognostications which were assigned to Candlemas before the Reformation and to Ground Hog Day afterward.

The Biblical origin of Candlemas comes from St. Luke 2:22-40 when Mary and Joseph took Jesus to the temple in Jerusalem for two purposes. St. Luke, the only Gentile — as far as we know — to pen a book of the Bible mixes the two purposes in a way that makes them somewhat difficult for the casual reader to discern.

February 2 is the 40th day from Christmas. In the Old Testament Law, a woman was ritually impure after any issue of blood. After the birth of a son she was considered impure for 40 days, at which time she was to undergo a ritual of purification.

The second purpose of going to the temple was to give God his own. Whatever opens a womb (birth for the first time) belongs to the Lord. In lieu of presenting her son to the priests of the temple (as Hannah gave Samuel to them), the Blessed Virgin Mary made the offering of the poor — two pigeons.

Candlemas marks both the purification of Mary and the presentation of the Lord. Until 1969 the Catholic Church officially called the feast "The Purification of the Blessed Virgin Mary." Since then it has been called "The Presentation of the Lord."

I prefer the informal name for the feast, Candlemas — the mass of candles. When the Holy Family visited the temple they encountered Simeon and Anna. As a pastor I recognize those two old people, faithful in their attendance at God's house when the young and able make excuses for staying home.

Simeon pronounced a prophecy which had become a hymn of the church by the time St. Luke wrote his gospel, often called by its first words in Latin, Nunc dimittis. In the hymn, Simeon says that Jesus is "A light to lighten the Gentiles, and a glory of thy people Israel." From that theme of light and glory, candles became the centerpiece of celebrating this small feast as the final unfolding of Christmas.

For a dozen years or more, I have been campaigning for the recovery of Candlemas as a feast for all Christians. A Lutheran pastor who has been a faithful correspondent over the years tells me about the ritual he instituted in his congregation. They observe Candlemas with a candlelight procession into the church, as well as with a blessing of the candles to be used in the coming year.

That lovely, gentle ritual has its roots in observances both in Jerusalem and Rome, which have been documented back to 400 A.D. The lighting of candles reminds us of the sacrifice of the old Jewish temple. Thus the lighting of a candle, whether at church or at home, becomes a powerful symbol both of the need to be purified and of the need daily to offer ourselves to the Lord. A lit candle becomes an expression of the light of Christ for all, Jew and non-Jew alike.

Ours is a free country. If people want to bow at the hole of a ground hog on February 2, they may do so. But wouldn't our lives regain a measure of loveliness if in our churches and homes we observe and celebrate Candlemas with its themes of purification and offering?

Proclamation Photos Curtailed

The news staff of The Republican newspaper has announced a change in procedure in regard to "proclamation" photographs. For many years, the staff has agreed to take photographs of persons or organizations who are proclaiming certain observations, causes, or celebrations. These photos have traditionally been of the Garrett County commissioners and representatives of the proclaiming organization. The newspaper staff will no longer provide this service.

However, organizations which engage in activities relevant to the proclaimed week (such as blood pressure checks for a health-related week, presentations for fire-prevention week, etc.) are encouraged to contact the paper to request coverage. Persons who wish to take their own photos of proclamations with the commissioners may bring these photos to the newspaper office for publication consideration. The news deadline is Tuesday at 5 p.m.

Special recognition by the commissioners, such as the honoring of Northern High School's football team this week, will continue to be covered by the news staff.

Correction Noted For SHS Parent Conferences Date

A submission to The Republican, that appeared in last week's issue contained incorrect information regarding the scheduled date of the parent/teacher conferences at Southern High School. The conferences will take place at the school on Wednesday, Feb. 2, from 5:30 to 9 p.m. It is not necessary to schedule a specific conference time.

In case of inclement weather and school is canceled, the conferences will be rescheduled for Thursday, Feb. 3, also from 5:30 to 9 p.m.

Visibility, Ice Cited In Several Vehicle Mishaps

Wintery weather played a part in several accidents over recent days that resulted in hospital treatment for some of the persons involved, according to the Garrett County Sheriff's Office. Drivers are reminded to use caution on roadways that may have sections of ice and snow, and should be alert at all times for blowing snow that may temporarily hamper visibility with a "white-out" situation.

A collision attributed to poor visibility along Garrett Highway near Ben DeWitt Road sent a Mtn. Lake Park woman to Garrett Memorial Hospital Friday afternoon. Carrie Lee Friend, 18, was driving a 1998 Mitsibishi sedan north along the highway shortly before 2 p.m. when she ran into the back of a Maryland State Highway snow plow truck operated by Dale Andrew Glotfelty, 42, Oakland. Sheriff's deputies said Friend lost sight of the truck due to blowing snow, and that the roads were icy as well.

The Southern Rescue Squad, which had responded to the scene along with the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department, transported Friend to the hospital, where she was treated and released. Glotfelty was not injured. No charges were filed.

A one-vehicle accident along Savage River Road just north of Bloomington Tuesday night injured the vehicle's lone occupant, Robert Clinton Sines, 20, Oakland. Sines was northbound along the roadway approximately one mile off Maryland Highway when he hit a patch of ice and his 1990 Ford Ranger pickup spun out of control and ran into a ditch.

The Tri-Towns Ambulance responded along with sheriff's deputies and transported Sines to Garrett Memorial, where he was treated and released. No charges were filed.

A morning accident on Saturday, Jan. 15, injured an Oakland woman and an un-named juvenile. The juvenile was driving a 1993 Oldsmobile sedan north along Foster Road when he lost control of the vehicle and crossed the centerline into the ice-covered oncoming lane. There his vehicle struck a southbound 1989 Ford Tempo operated by Mabel Sisler, 50. Both parties were transported by Southern Rescue to Garrett Memorial for treatment of their injuries, although further information on their status was not available.

Deputies cited the juvenile for failing to drive right of center.

The sheriff's office Accident Reconstruction Team concluded its investigation of the head-on collision of December 28 that resulted in a medevac helicopter flight to Cumberland for Jacqueline Sue Barnard, 51, Bloomington. Barnard, who was eventually flown on to Baltimore for more extensive treatment, was deemed by deputies to be at fault in the accident, and was cited for failing to drive right of center.

Man Convicted Of Burglary Is Sent To Jail

A former Baltimore man was sentenced by Garrett County Circuit Court Judge Fred A. Thayer to seven years in jail, according to a report from the county state's attorney. Richard Ashbrook, 38, pleaded guilty to a second degree burglary charge that stemmed from a Feb. 1, 1999, theft at the Rite-Aid Pharmacy in Grantsville.

In the early morning hours of that date, Ashbrook and an accomplice apparently pried open the door of the business and removed numerous cartons of cigarettes. The defendant was charged in July by officers of the Garrett Bureau of Investigation.

Charges in a second case in which Ashbrook was similarly cited for events that took place in March at the Citgo Funny Farm were dismissed as part of the defendant's plea, according to State's Attorney Lisa Thayer Welch.

In a separate case, Susan Lynn Whitacre, 28, Kitzmiller, was sentenced to one year in the local jail for a perjury conviction. Thayer suspended the term and placed the defendant on two years of supervised probation, according to the report.

Whitacre was indicted by the September Term Grand Jury for allegedly lying under oath about her employment status. The perjury took place during a child support hearing in June of 1999.

Child abuse and sexual offense charges against Rigoberto Medina Barajas were dismissed by the state's attorney last week because of insufficient evidence.

"The 15-year-old victim in the case has recanted her original reporting of events," Welch said. "A statement given by the defendant to police during the July 1999 investigation was held by the court not to be admissible."

Woman Injured In Collision On High Street

An collision between two vehicles on High Street in Oakland on Monday resulted in the transport of one woman to Garrett Memorial Hospital. Pfc. S. Fratz of the Oakland Police Department reported that the accident occurred at about 1:40 p.m. at the intersection of High and Ninth streets.

Just prior to the accident, according to the report filed by Pfc. Fratz, Betty June Corby, 50, Mtn. Lake Park, was operating a 1990 Buick eastbound on High Street, approaching Ninth Street. At the same time, Caroline Archer Harrison, 58, Oakland, was operating a 1994 Ford Escort northbound on Ninth Street near the intersection with High Street.

Pfc. Fratz said that Harrison failed to stop at a stop sign and pulled out onto High Street in front of the Corby vehicle. Rosalee Tasker, a passenger in Corby's vehicle, was injured in the ensuing collision. Taken to Garrett Memorial Hospital by Southern Rescue Squad, Tasker was treated and released.

Harrison was charged with failure to stop at an intersecting highway stop sign and yield right-of-way.

Chamber Sets Autumn Glory Town Meetings

The Garrett County Chamber of Commerce is hosting town meetings throughout the county to discuss ideas to expand and enhance the upcoming millennium Autumn Glory Festival.

According to Chamber president Ken Wishnick, plans must be made now if there are to be any changes for the 2000 festival. "Many people have requested that Autumn Glory activities be expanded to other areas of Garrett County. This is the time to discuss these and any other ideas concerning ways to make Autumn Glory an even bigger and better event in the year 2000," said Wishnick.

Because of the importance of the festival to Garrett County, Wishnick said he believes it is worth taking the time to get the views of as many people as possible before any changes are considered.

The schedule of town meetings is as follows: Tuesday, Feb. 1, Accident Town Hall, 7:15 p.m.; Monday, Feb. 7, Friendsville Town Hall, 7 p.m.; Tuesday, Feb. 8, Mtn. SHANK RECOGNIZED BY COMPTROLLER'S OFFICE - Brenda L. Shank, owner of the H&R Block office along Weber Road, has been recognized for attaining the largest percentage increase in electronic filing last year in Garrett County. Shank's 20 percent increase in e-filing was recognized yesterday in a presentation by Dave Benson, assistant manger of the Comptroller's Cumberland office. Shown from the left are Benson, Shank, and Rose Opel and Gloria Woods, managers of the local H&R Block office. "Electronic filing reduces costs and save time for individuals and businesses," according to Maryland state comptroller William Donald Schaefer. "When you file electronically, the data goes directly into our computers. It's safe, error-free, quick, and the returns can be processed overnight. Taxpayers who file electronically from home or through a professional tax preparer and who choose direct deposit can have their refunds in their bank accounts within 48 hours after their Maryland return is processed." Adorable Adoptables

TWICE AS NICE - Counselors say that a major stress factor in American marriages today results when one spouse is a Labrador retriever lover, while the other is partial to golden retrievers — so why not combine the two breeds into one dog? This 1½-year-old is a housebroken neutered male (more stressors to take off the list!) and is in need of a good home. Serious adoption inquiries may be made through the Garrett County Human Society at 301-453-3226 or 301-746-5725.

Healthy-O-Living in Garrett County

Abuse Of Elderly Signals Need For Community Effort

Results of a recent National Elder Abuse Incidence Study indicated that at least 500,000 elderly persons in domestic settings suffer abuse and/or neglect. Of this number, for every identified case of abuse or neglect, five cases go undisclosed, according to the report. This situation signals the need for increased community involvement and response, explained June Heselbach R.N., B.S., P.A.

The ombudsman for Community Action Area Agency on Aging, Heselbach noted that the elderly who are most at risk are those "hidden" or isolated from the community. Behind closed doors, these individuals may suffer from abuse inflicted by family members or caregivers, Heselbach pointed out. "Or they may be elders who live alone and threaten their own health or safety through self-neglect," she said.

One of the keys to discovering hidden abuse is watchfulness of individuals in the community who have frequent contact with the elderly, Heselbach said. "Heightening the awareness of the plight of many elderly should be a community effort," she said.

Heselbach emphasized the importance of knowing what resources are available in Garrett County. "If you suspect elder abuse of any kind, you can contact either Adult Protective Services at 301-533-3004 or the Area Agency on Aging at 301-334-9431 or toll free at 888-877-8403. All information will be kept confidential.

"We are looking for sentinels — guardians to watch over vulnerable elders who might be at risk for abuse. Help our seniors to live with dignity," Heselbach requested.

Grant To Fund Rx Program In Garrett County

The Western Maryland Prescription Program, which covers Garrett, Allegany, and Washington counties, was one of three state projects to receive grants last week from the Maryland Health Care Foundation. The three projects, all aimed at helping uninsured or underinsured state residents get prescription medicines, were given a total of $487,600.

The western Maryland program is a collaborative effort of the Washington County Health System, the Western Maryland Health System in Cumberland, and the Garrett County Health Department. "The project will streamline the complex process of applying for free medicines made available by pharmaceutical manufacturers," explained Marilyn D. Maultsby, executive director of the Maryland Health Care Foundation.

The system will be available to social service agencies, medical professionals, hospitals, and other appropriate organizations with the three counties. Some organizations will be providing matching funds to help the uninsured buy medicines.

"In addition, each county will have patient advocates and community volunteers to help patients access all other available state, local, and private programs that supply pharmaceuticals to those in need," Maultsby said.

Funding for the Western Maryland Prescription Program totals $165,000.

The Maryland Health Care Foundation, established in 1998 with initial funding from the Maryland General Assembly, is a nonprofit, charitable organization serving the uninsured throughout the state. It operates independently of any government or private agency. The mission of the foundation is to support efforts that will increase and improve access to quality health care for Maryland's medically underserved, underinsured, and uninsured residents.

Project Linus Brings Comfort To Little Ones

It has been just about one year since Accident resident Debbie Stemple started the local chapter of Project Linus. In that time she has handed out over 450 gift blankets to children who are suffering from cancer or other serious diseases.

A national organization, Project Linus accepts handmade or manufactured blankets and afghans, and distributes them through hospitals, clinics, and community service providers. Stemple has given blankets to Cumberland Memorial, Sacred Heart, and Garrett Memorial hospitals, the Dove Center, the Pregnancy Crisis Center, the American Red Cross, and the Missions for the Homeless.

Stemple said she knows that the blankets have been appreciated both by the agencies and the children to whom they are given. "I've received some very touching thank-you notes. One was from a little guy who was 5 years old. He told me he was from Frostburg and was in Sacred Heart Hospital with asthma and pneumonia, and that the blanket made him feel much better. Then he signed his named. I al-most cried," Stemple admitted.

Another "thank-you" card came from the mother of a child with cancer. "It's good to know that the blankets are appreciated, but that is not the reason I am doing this," Stemple stressed.

In recent weeks, like a large percentage of the population, Stemple has been battling cold and flu symptoms. This has kept her away from the hospitals. "I got a call at home from one of the hospitals saying they had run out of blankets and needed more because the children really love them," she said.

Project Linus experiences a steady flow of covers, quilts, and afghans from area groups, clubs, and individuals. The Homemakers Clubs of Garrett County, the Heritage Quilting Club, residents of Frostburg Village, members of the Oak Park Church and many others have contributed time and skill to creating the comfort covers for little ones.

ACCEPTING QUILTS FOR LITTLE ONES - The Heritage Quilt Club members were among the many generous people to take the time this past year to remember little children who are critically or terminally ill. The club donated 11 quilts to Project Linus to be distributed to children in the area by local coordinator Debbie Stemple. In the photo above, Stemple, fifth from the left, accepts the contribution on behalf of the children.

"There has been so much enthusiasm from people offering to help. Every time I think I'm getting low on blankets and had better start making some more, someone will call and tell me about blankets that have been made for the project," she noted.

Anyone who is interested in contributing to Project Linus may contact Stemple at 301-746-8749 or e-mail dstemple@hotmail.com.

Area Alzheimer's Chapter Slates Lobbying Trip

The Western Maryland Chapter of the Alzheimer's Association, which represents over 7,500 western Maryland residents currently living with Alzheimer's disease and dementia, and their families, will be participating in Alzheimer's Advocate's Day in Annapolis Wednesday, Feb. 9. A carpool is being formed that will transport participants from the chapter's Frederick office to the State Capitol for the lobbying event.

"Every person who has experienced Alzheimer's disease in their family has a story," said Barbara Pilgrim, executive director of the Western Maryland Chapter. "Helping legislators become aware of the devastating personal and financial impact of this disease is the most effective way to persuade them to take action. We urge people to take this time and teli their stories where it can make a difference."

The Advocate's Day has three priorities, Pilgrim continued: to increase state respite care funding; to implement the Medicaid waiver for homes and community-based service; and to support initiatives that improve the quality of care for residents in nursing homes with dementia and Alzheimer's disease. From 9:30 until 11 a.m., representatives from the Western Maryland Chapter and the three other Maryland chapters of the Alzheimer's Association will review these and other issues. Following the orientation, participants will meet with state legislators to brief them about the disease and the challenges, expenses, and psychological, emotional, and physical challenges of dealing with the disease.

More than 83,000 Marylanders are estimated to have Alzheimer's disease, according to the chapter, and one out of 10 people over 65 and half of those over 85 have the disease. Seventy percent of Alzheimer's patients live at home, where family members provide 75 percent of their care. "Respite and home health care play a pivotal role in enabling these dedicated caregivers to deal with everyday life and to find time to get the counseling and support they need to continue in this role," Pilgrim stated. "It also makes economic sense, since each month's delay in placing a person in a nursing home in the U.S. saves an estimated $1.12 billion annually."

Alzheimer's Advocate's Day is sponsored by the four chapters of the state's Alzheimer's Association and will include a box lunch. The Frederick office of the Western Maryland Chapter is located at 1730 North Market Street in Frederick. To register or for further information, interested persons may call the Western Maryland Chapter of the Alzheimer's Association at 1-800-696-6830.
